STEERING BODY PLANS TO KEEP SENATE IDLING

Appropriation Bills Are to Get Precedence Under Program.

FEW ARE IN CHAMBER AS RELIEF IS DEBATED

House Still Argues Aid for Drought Area; Woods Heard on Unemployment.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The Senate Republican steering committee yesterday evolved an order of business, carefully designed to keep the Senate talking idly for the rest of the session, with the exception of pauses to pass an appropriation bill now and then.

And in the meantime the appropriations committee sleepily discussed the unemployment situation with men who appeared before it, and the House continued to juggle the $45,000,000 drought relief measure.

The Senate seemed headed nowhere in particular. Alternately it discussed the Federal power commissioners and the drought situation, with seldom more than a corporal's guard on the floor. When Senator Robinson, minority leader, arose in midafternoon, to take direct issue with John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross, as to the adequacy of that organization's relief, a moot question, and involving the genuineness of the recent food demonstration at England, Ark., also highly important, there were hardly ten senators on the floor.

House Course Definite.

Sort of an informal discussion followed between Senators Smith, of South Carolina; Fletcher, of Florida, and Shortridge, of California, and finally after 5 o'clock Senator McNary, assistant Republican leader, came in and told everybody to go home and come back at noon today.

The House, on the other hand, seemed bent upon a very definite course, that of frightening the drought relief senators a while before letting the relief measure with its additional Senate provision appropriating $15,000,000 for personal food loans to the farmers, go to conference.

Once again there was the perfunctory procedure of Chairman Wood of the appropriations committee, making a motion that the bill go to conference, and Representative LaGuardia, of New York, objecting on the ground that there can be no appropriation for food loans to the farmers, when no such loans are available for the city unemployed. Inasmuch as Mr. LaGuardia's objection is just as safe in conference as in the House, his gesture in keeping the bill on the floor was generally looked upon as part of the House leaders' play to frighten the senators.

Politics Is Charged.

In the meantime, Majority Leader Tilson and Chairman Snell of the House rules committee issued statements that the "Democrats are playing politics."

The Senate appropriations committee again elicited the information that the public works program would be speeded up if Congress would pass bills removing obstacles in the procurement of sites and letting of contracts, and again the senators asked surprisedly, "Where are those bills? Why haven't they been reported out of committee?"

Passing these bills is about all Congress can do to help the situation, those who have thus far appeared before the committee have said; at least that is about all they can think of just now.

Cites Unemployment Figure.

Col. Arthur Woods, head of the President's unemployment committee, one of yesterday's witnesses, agreed that the situation is serious, and a poor commentary on our scheme of things. His information is that unemployment has now increased to between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 and he does not believe there will be any improvement before spring.

Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads, had the cheering news that employment would be given to about 100,000 men this year on the public roads. A total of $437,500,000 is scheduled to be spent, he said, of which the Federal Government will spend $293,500,000 and the States $144,000,000. It was he who urged Congress to "cut the red tape" involving Federal projects.

Woods said unemployment had increased 2,000,000 since the census, but that it was not so important now to count the unemployed but to get them jobs. His committee is trying to do this through local committees, he said.

Situation Intolerable.

"It is an intolerable situation," he said, "and one entirely foreign to our ideals, where men through no fault of their own can find no work. Our aim is to assist the localities—to act as a clearing house."

Asked by Senator Copeland, of New York, if he agreed with Nicholas Murray Butler that our social order is in danger, Woods said he thought a

Wood Becomes Soul Of U. S. Expedition Against Geronimo

"I Don't Know What I Would Do If it Was Not for Wood," Lawton Writes—Terrible Hardships Encountered by Surgeon Bitten by Tarantula.

The hardships of the pursuit of the Apaches forced Capt. Henry W. Lawton constantly to exchange his exhausted men for fresh troops. The commanding officer of Fort Huachuca sent Lawton a detachment of infantry including, among others, the contents of his guard house. The men, knowing the kind of campaign they were entering were in an ugly mood and the officer in command, Lieut. Robert A. Brown, just out of West Point, had a difficult time with them. Lawton teased Brown on his arrival, telling him his troubles were due to his youth and inexperience. Brown was glad to dump his problem on the veteran Lawton, while he and Wood went off on a scouting expedition.

By HERMAN HAGEDORN.

CHAPTER V.

Returning from a scouting expedition, Dr. Wood and Lieut. Brown found Lawton in camp a mile from the little town of Cumpas. A number of Brown's infantrymen were tied to trees about the camp and Lawton, frantic and profane, was asking where under the blue canopy of heaven he was to get an officer to take them off his hands.

Wood volunteered to take them.

Lawton turned to Brown. "The colonel put you in charge of these men. But you've got your hands full with the scouts. Would you have any objection if I gave the infantry to Dr. Wood?"

Brown had no objection whatsoever.

"The men are pretty badly demoralized," Wood wrote. "Lawton agreed, upon my suggestion, to withdraw all charges against the men under arrest. I gave them a plain talking to and told them I would do the best I could with them and for them."

Southward again. The temperature is 120 in the shade, or over. Dry, broiling, frightful heat.

Up over high passes, down through damp valleys. The Indians have been reported east of Oposura and Wood leads his men all day over volcanic rock so rough that the pack mules can not make their way through it. The men's shoes are torn to shreds and their calloused heels break and bleed; their knees and ankles are badly swollen.

Storms, day after day; devastating heat, overwhelming rains.

Wood is bitten in the thigh by a tarantula and suffers agonies. But there is no stopping now. They cross the Yaqui River and force their way through a thicket of cane whose sharp leaves draw blood. Wood's body

DRY FUNDS CUT $10,000 BY WET DRIVE IN HOUSE

Concerted Attack Merely Dents $93,000,000 for Enforcement.

PUBLICITY PROVISION STRICKEN FROM BILL

Linthicum Fails to Forbid Bureau From Operating "Speakeasy Traps."

(Associated Press.)

A concerted drive by House wets failed yesterday to do more than barely dent the fund provided in the first deficiency bill for prohibition enforcement.

The measure carried $93,000,000 to meet emergencies in various departments, including $543,370 for the Prohibition Bureau, a part of which was to provide 130 additional dry agents.

The wets succeeded in having eliminated a provision to expend $10,000 for prohibition publicity.

Dry forces held their line despite the battering of the wets led by Representatives Linthicum (Democrat), Maryland, chief of the antiprohibition bloc, and La Guardia (Republican), New York.

A point of order raised by Representative O'Connor (Democrat), New York, brought an amendment from Chairman Wood of the appropriations committee, eliminating the propaganda provision.

Judiciary Committee Acts.

Prior to this contest, the House judiciary committee took steps to press legislative action on two prohibition enforcement proposals approved by the Wickersham commission. It agreed to Senate amendments to the Stobbs bill to modify the Jones law by creating a class of minor offenders involving less than a gallon of liquor and a penalty not exceeding a $500 fine and six months in prison.

The committee also instructed Chairman Graham to seek legislative right-of-way for the Christopherson bill to strengthen the padlock law by notifying the absentee owners of property through publication. At the same time, it approved the Graham bill to make permanent sixteen additional Federal judgeships created in 1922 as another enforcement move.

At the outset of the fight over the publicity provision, LaGuardia produced a letter from Comptroller General McCarl citing that former Representative William D. Upshaw, of Georgia, had been employed by the Prohibition Bureau in educational work.

LaGuardia said the expense entailed by employing Upshaw "isn't worth it."

Linthicum Amendment Fails.

Linthicum offered an amendment to prohibit the bureau from operating speakeasies and poolrooms for the purpose, he said, of entrapping citizens and policemen. After his amendment was defeated 108 to 84, he declared that "it is up to you now to determine whether you want the Government's money spent to entrap citizens into violating the law."

The defeat by a wet of Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick in her race for the Senate from Illinois was cited by Representative Sabath (Democrat), Illinois, as indicative of the desire of the majority of the Illinois people to repulse prohibition. He asserted Mrs. McCormick tried to evade the wet and dry question in her campaign.

Representative Beck (Republican), Pennsylvania, said that regardless of how much money was spent for enforcement, Americans would continue to pursue their own desires.

The deficiency bill, which now

All that Patrolman Robert F. Langdon knows of the Limerick murder case will be told at the coroner's inquest to be held at 11:30 tomorrow morning, according to Harry T. Whelan, Langdon's attorney.

Langdon was taken last night from the Twelfth Precinct, where he is being held in connection with the murder of Beulah Limerick, to police headquarters. He refused to answer any questions 'on advice of counsel."

Attention of police again became riveted on the policeman after Sergt. George Darnell had informed Inspector William S. Shelby that Isadore Matin, alias Ted Martin, had confessed writing telegrams to the local police purporting to link himself with the killing. He did it for publicity, he said.

Stills in Langdon Home.

More troubles came to Langdon yesterday when police found two small dismantled stills in the cellar of his home while searching for additional guns. In addition to the stills there was a quantity of fermenting mash, which police will analyze, and a half gallon of alleged rye liquor.

Langdon was charged with having "implements designed for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor. Inspector T. R. Bean, under whose direction the stills were seized, said he will present his evidence in police court today to determine whether any additional charges will be placed.

In addition to the stills, Capt. Edward J. Kelly found three guns in the cellar, none of which could have fired the bullet which killed the girl.

In all, twelve guns of various makes and calibers have been taken from Langdon's home since his detention.

Wife Permits Raid.

Capt. Kelly and members of the homicide squad searched Langdon's home on January 2 and took from it nine guns, including two .25-caliber automatics, which Lieut. John J. Fowler, ballistics expert, said could not have fired the death bullet.

During this search Capt. Kelly noticed a pipe running from a gas furnace to a large compartment in the front of the cellar, which was boarded up. Capt. Kelly, during his search yesterday, became suspicious of the layout of the cellar and notified Inspector Bean.

Mrs. Rose V. Langdon, wife of the policeman, permitted the officers to open the compartment without a warrant. "I don't know what you will find down there. It doesn't belong to me. It belongs to him," Mrs. Langdon told Inspector Bean.

Inspector Bean, who is head of the liquor squad, looked in the compartment and went to United States Commissioner Needham Turnage for a warrant. Commissioner Turnage informed him that no warrant was necessary so long as Mrs. Langdon had given them permission to enter.

Langdon's Explanation.

Inspector Bean said that the seizures consisted of: One half gallon of alleged liquor, one bushel of rye grain, three 52-gallon barrels of rye mash, a number of corks and pint bottles, one 75-gallon still and one 20-gallon still.

Two of the guns found yesterday had the serial numbers filed off. When questioned regarding this circumstance Langdon said they were in this condition when they were given to him. The reason he owned so many guns, he said, is that he once had ambitions to become a ballistics expert.

Langdon explained to Capt. Kelly how he obtained possession of the

RITCHIE ADVOCATES ECONOMY PROGRAM

Retention of Present Tax Rate in Maryland Asked as Assembly Opens.

OUTLINES BUILDING PLAN

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The 1931 biennial session of the Maryland General Assembly met today, organized, heard the message of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, and then adjourned until next Tuesday.

Gov. Ritchie advocated economy and retention of the existing tax rate of 25 cents. However, he recommended an increase of $1,000,000 in State public building construction, over the previous two-year period.

The Legislature, after hearing the governor's message, recessed until next Tuesday.

Among other recommendations made by the governor were:

More than $1,000,000 increase in State public building construction for next two years.

More liberal praovision for welfare institutions and schools.

Appropriation of $1,500,000 for new University of Maryland Hospital at Baltimore.

Full-time health officers for every county.

Extension of parole system.

Recodification of motor vehicle laws.

New general registration of motor vehicle operators.

Extension of the State conservation policy to the waters of the Potomac River.

More study on the proposal recommended by a commission of a plan to bridge Chesapeake Bay.

A commission is to be appointed to study the unemployment situation, Gov. Ritchie announced.

He left in the hands of the legislature the constitutional convention plan approved at the November election, the recommendation of aproximately $500,000 of expenditures made by the tercentenary commission, and the voting machine proposal.

CONFEREES AGREE ON MUSCLE SHOALS

Three From House Accede to Senate Demand for U. S.-Constructed Lines.

ROAD AHEAD IS ROCKY

(Associated Press.)

A conference agreement opened the way yesterday for enactment of Muscle Shoals legislation, but leaders agreed that the road through the House and the White House would be rocky.

The conferees agreed upon a compromise bill for operation of the Government's $150,000,000 project after months of negotiations extending over from the last session. Three of the five House members capitulated to the Senate demands for Government construction of the transmission lines, the last important item in controversy.

Under the compromise the Government would operate the power plant at Muscle Shoals, the nitrate plant would be leased for private manufacture of fertilizer and its ingredients, and the Government would construct the proposed Cove Creek Dam on Clinch River at an estimated cost of $35,000,000. The conferees will meet again within a few days to work out the remaining details and draft their report, which will go first to the House. A bitter contest is expected there over the provision for Government construction of the transmission lines.

If the House adopts the report, the bill with routine approval from the Senate will go to the White House. Many members do not believe President Hoover will sign it as now written, although he has not expressed his opinion.

Should the House reject the report, Senate leaders believe another deadlock between the two houses would result.

The three House members of the conference committee who joined with two of the three Senators to

5 KILLED, 3 INJURED IN ITALIAN SEA HOP

Two Planes Crash When 14 Take Off for Brazil; 10 Reach Goal.

OTHERS DROP EN ROUTE

Bolama, Portuguese Guiena, Africa, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Five Italian aviators died and three others were injured at the start of the great aviation adventure which carried ten seaplanes safely from this point on the west African coast to Brazil yesterday.

The Stefani News Agency, official Italian press service, said tonight that two planes crashed shortly after the take-off.

Two others, which were forced to land on the ocean while Gen. Italo Balbo took the ten remaining ships safely into Natal, were taken charge of by Italian naval vessels. The Stefani Agency said both were expected to be towed to Fernando Noronha, Brazilian penal island not far from Natal.

This olicial announcement by the Stefani Agency clears up the confusion which has existed since Gen. Balbo and his ten ships skimmed to rest at Natal, after a speedy trip of 17 hours 15 minutes yesterday. First reports said that twelve ships left Bolama, with two of them landing at sea en route, but later dispatches from various sources asserted that two had not been able to take off. The official report shows that fourteen took off. Two of them were repair and replacement units, not scheduled to make the trip originally.

Of the two which met disaster, Capt. Regangno, took up one from the water, but it dived sharply after reaching an altitude of only about 50 yards, killing a sergeant major. The man killed was acting as mechanic and was riding above the right pontoon, which was shoved upward and wrecked when the plane dropped to the surface. Capt. Regangno, another officer acting as copilot, and the radio operator wre injured.

The other unfortunate ship, commanded by Capt. Boer, flew all right for about ten minutes after the take-off, but suddenly was forced to land at full speed.

So sharply did the heavy seaplane slap down on the ocean that fire started and the four occupants burned to death. They were captain Boer, Lieut. Barbicinti, Sergt. Mechanic Nensi and Radio Operator Barbicinti.

The accidents were attributed to the extremely heavy loads carried.

Kellogg Finds Europe Not in Favor of War

(Associated Press.)

Frank B. Kellogg, former Secretary of State and now a judge of the World Court, said at the White House yesterday that he saw "no war clouds hanging over Europe." The former Secretary said he had traveled extensively on the continent and that in no country did he find any sentiment favoring war.

"There is some unrest in Europe," he said, "but its foundation is an economic one. The people of Europe do not want and will not tolerate war."

VIENNA MOBS FIGHT POLICE OVER MOVIE

Fascists Aided by Soldiers Attack Cafes; Jewish Quarter Menaced.

"ALL QUIET' STIRS RIOT

Vienna, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Two thousand policemen were concentrated tonight to curb Fascists who staged new disorders in connection with the showing of "All Quiet on the Western Front."

For more than a week Fascists demonstrated against the picture while it was at the Apollo Theater, but after some one set fire to that building the film was transferred to the Schwedenkino Theater.

Repulsed by mounted police guarding the Urania Bridge and equally unsuccessful in forcing across the other spans, mobs of Fascists, with the heimwehr and soldiers backing them, flared into action on their own side of the river, racing through the streets, smashing cafe windows and battling against the police.

Police swung rubber truncheons heavily and laid out many of the demonstrators, but were unable to check the trouble completely.

Bands of shouting manifestants broke loose after dispersal of a procession which began at the Prater, a popular park, and headed for the theater, smashing windows of a Jewish cafe in the Rothenturmstrasse.

Others knocked the glass from the Franzensbruecken Restaurant, the Cafe Cristall and the Neues Wiener Journal, destroying the furniture in the latter two places.

The Schwedenkino Theater is situated in the Jewish district and the demonstrators attacked Jews in con-

METHODS OF LUCAS DISAVOWED BY NUTT

G. O. P. Treasurer Asserts Tactics Against Norris Were Mistaken.

CRITICIZES BANK LOAN

(Associated Press.)

Emphatic disapproval of the actions of Robert H. Lucas in opposing the reelection of Senator Norris and in pledging a Republican national committee bank account as security for a personal loan to pay for publicity use was voiced yesterday by Joseph R. Nutt, national committee treasurer.

Mr. Nutt, a white-haired Cleveland financier, said the senate campaign funds committee that Lucas, executive director of the national organization, had a right to "fight" Norris, a Republican independent leader, but "made a mistake" in the methods used. He, too, believed Norris should have been opposed by the regular Republicans because of his support of Alfred E. Smith in 1928 and his opposition to Coolidge and Hoover programs. Like Lucas, he held Norris was a Democrat.

While Lucas sat close by, apparently unperturbed by the examination and volunteered statements of his brother officer, Nutt said the executive director had no right to send a letter to the Commercial National Bank pledging a $50,000 special campaign account of the national committee as collateral for his $4,000 loan.

Consequently, Nutt added, the security "did not amount to a snap of your finger."

"The loan should never have been made," he continued, "and the letter never should have been written. No one had the right to pledge that account for any purpose."

Nutt said Lucas was "sincere and enthusiastic and wanted to do what was right, but he made a mistake in the methods used." He added he would have opposed the steps taken had he been consulted. Lucas had testified he talked with no one on the national committee about the anti-Norris literature and accepted sole responsibility for its printing and dissemination.

"I don't blame Lucas for fighting Norris," Nutt said. "Of course," he continued, "that might not have been good politics, but its the way I look at it as a business proposition."

Nutt said he had endeavored to persuade Chairman Fess, of the na-

Bermuda Reached Safely On 'Pay Load' Ocean Flight

Rain, Wind and Oil Leak Hamper Tradewind on Hop From Norfolk; Resumption of Trip to Paris, Via Azores, Possible Today.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The white monoplane Tradewind, washed by rain that was driven before a strong northwest wind, sped down out of gray skies to a safe landing in Hamilton Harbor this afternoon. It thus completed the first leg of a pay-load flight from Norfolk, Va., to Paris.

Its motor roared again, almost as soon as the pontoons touched the water, and its red-haired woman pilot, Mrs. Beryl Hart, drove the plane upward from the choppy seas and flew to a safer spot in front of the hangar on Hinson's Island.

Mrs. Hart and her navigator, Lieut. William S. MacLaren, appearing fresh and untired after their long journey, stepped into a waiting motor boat and proceeded to a hotel, where they were greeted by a large crowd that had scanned the skies for their arrival.

The landing was made at 1:55 p. m. (12:55 p. m., E. S. T.), 6 hours 55 minutes after the take-off from Hampton Roads.

Slight oil trouble developed during the flight, which is to be continued by way of the Azores as soon as repairs are made, but it was insufficient to hamper the functioning of the motor.

The side of the plane was spattered with oil, and mechanics tonight prepared to locate the cause of the leak.

Shortly after the plane climbed into the sky and pointed eastward at Hampton Roads at daybreak this morning, MacLaren said bumpy winds were encountered and occasional rains occurred.

The skies were cloudy and during

Calvin Coolidge Says:

There will be general satisfaction that the note of our Government sent to Liberia by Secretary Stimson has made us one of the first nations to use its influence where its influence could properly be effective to abolish the remnants of human slavery in the world.

Our relations with Liberia have been very intimate ever since that country was designated about one hundred years ago as a settlement for freed slaves from the United States. That gave us an especial interest, rising to a duty, to preserve a state of freedom for its colored people. After learning from an official investigation by a commission having American representation of the existence in that republic of forced labor, good faith on our part required immediate and firm action.

We have discharged a moral if not a legal obligation. If other nations will take a like attitude where they have a like responsibility, the five million slaves reported by Lord Cecil, of the League of Nations, to exist in the world speedily will be set free. From our own history we know this can be done. But these unfortunate people should not be turned adrift. They must be assisted in becoming self-supporting.

Howell Dry Bill for District Gets Right of Way in Senate

Senator Blaine Welcomes Announcement of Republican Steering Committee as Making Possible Discussion on Prohibition.

Senator Guy D. Goff (Republican), of West Virginia, chairman of the Republican steering committee, yesterday informed his colleagues that the Howell prohibition enforcement bill for the District had been given first place among the many measures pending for consideration.

Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, greeted the announcement with: "Fine. It is a good bill to cause a lot of discussion. It involves very important principles which should be debated carefully."

The Howell bill was placed first on a list of four measures. Senator Goff said it should be made the unfinished business after disposition of the pending maternity help bill.

When the Howell bill is called up for consideration there is likely to be a somewhat general debate on the merits and demerits of prohibition. One of the Republican leaders has declared that if the senators voted as they felt the bill would be defeated, but that in view of the general situation he believed the measure would be passed.

The measure has been disapproved by the Attorney General because of certain of its features which, he said, violated the constitutional rights of citizens on the question of search and seizure without due process of law. Nonetheless, President Hoover advocated enactment of the measure in his annual message to Congress.

The reasons for such special favor for the Howell bill, of course, lie in the field of speculation and the result of the speculation depends on the premise from which one starts.

weapons. All of their sources, however, will be checked by police.

The guns seized are: One .44-40 Colt revolver, one .44-caliber Colt revolver, one .32-caliber Colt automatic, one .45-caliber Colt Army automatic, two .32-caliber revolvers (no name), two .25-caliber automatics, one .38-caliber U. S. revolver, one .45-caliber Colt U. S. Army automatic, one .38-caliber Smith & Wesson police service revolver, and one .38-caliber U. S. revolver.

While police were seizing the miniature arsenal and the alleged liquor-making apparatus a large crowd gathered near the Langdon home on Oates street near Twelfth northeast.

Langdon was in a jovial mood when he left Police Headquarters last night. As he stepped into the dark alley behind headquarters, photographers were crouched in the shadows of the Twelfth Precinct patrol wagon. "Come on out. I'm not going to cover up. Take all you want. There'll probably be plenty of pictures before this thing is over," he told them. And the photographers answered with their flashlights.

The Philadelphia angle of the murder collapsed after Isadore Matin told Detective Sergt. George Darnell that he sent telegrams to the police, under the name of Albert Mason, so as to throw himself into the limelight.

"The whole thing was just a fake," he told police. "I never knew the girl or anything about her until I saw the accounts of her murder. I wanted to get publicity to increase my golf instruction classes.

"So last night I called a Washington newspaper and told them to look up Ted Martin, as he was the man wanted for the murder, and gave my address. Then I sent a telegram to the Washington police and signed it Albert Mason. Finally, to make the job complete, I called up the Philadelphia police. Then I went home and awaited developments. They certainly came fast enough. It was a great stunt, but I didn't think it would end this way.

Matin's Story Disproved.

Matin's statements came after Sergt. Darnell had spent the whole day in proving that Matin could not have committed the murder. Matin had previously said that he met Miss Limesick in August, went to a party with her, but never saw her again. He said he kept clippings about the murder to bolster his story of an acquaintanceship with the girl.

Philadelphia police said they would not hold Matin, as he apparently did not realize the seriousness of his action.

All of intimate acquaintances and relatives of the slain girl have been summoned to appear at the coroner's inquest. In addition to Langdon, those who are being held are William E. Paddy, the girl's escort on the night before the murder; Vernon Limerick, her brother, and Richard Reed, a roomer in the Limerick home on Nineteenth street near East Capitol street southeast, where the murder occurred.

U. S. Recognizes Guatemalan Ruler

Andrade Not Regarded as Having Taken Part in Uprising.

(Associated Press.)

The State Department extended recognition yesterday to Provisional President Andrade of Guatemala, the fourth chief executive that country has had in three weeks. Instructions directed to the American Legation at Guatemala City to inform the Guatemalan government that the Andrade regime was formally recognized by the United States. Undersecretary Cotton said the recognition was in line with the policy under the treaty signed by the Central American governments in 1923.

Since Andrade was not regarded as having had a part in the recent revolt, the way was considered open for recognition. The United States, although not a party to the 1923 treaty, adheres to its spirit in declining to recognize those who come to power through participation in a coup d'etat.

The Central American signatories of the pact will follow the United States in recognizing Andrade.

HOOVER TO SUBMIT WICKERSHAM DATA

To Rush Law Enforcement Repjort to Congress as Soon as Read.

FINDINGS NOW DRAFTED

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

When President Hoover receives the prohibition report of the Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission—and he expects to receive it within a week—he is going to send it to Congress just as soon as he has finished reading it. Consequently, that long-awaited document should be on Capitol Hill before the month is out.

The President, it is understood, is committed to such a procedure even though it may help to bring about an extra session of Congress.

There had been predictions that Mr. Hoover, or the Commission, would hold up the report for fear of causing an extra session, but it was learned yesterday that such predictions had no basis of fact.

Whether or not the President ever did have any such procedure in mind, there is no question but that he would be roundly criticised if he did try to hold up the report.

Dry Repoft Expected.

The concensus of speculation now is that the report of the Commission will be dry; that is to say, it will recommend a further trial for the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act on the ground that they have not yet had a fair test.

For the most part, the political friends of President Hoover are fervently hoping that this speculation is true. The President, naturally, is expected to stand by the Commission, to make its views his views; and the aforementioned political friends sincerely believe that his best chance for reelection lies in a dry platform, notwithstanding recent wet gains.

The commission's report has been drafted and is ready for the printer. It is expected to consist of about 100 or 150 mimeographed pages. What is holding up its transmittal are the individual opinions that are to be appended to it.

Each Member Gives Views.

Each member of the commission, it is understood, is writing an individual opinion of the value of prohibition which will be appended to the main report, and through these the public will be able to tell which members were dry and which were wet.

The absence of Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, and now a member of the commission, led to considerable speculation yesterday. It was reported that he was about to sail for Europe.

HOWELL'S DRY BILL GETS RIGHT OF WAY

But from whatever premise a start is made it is almost inescapable that the decision of the steering committee adds just another hurdle to be jumped by Congress if it is to get through without leaving so much undone that an extra session of the new Congress is imperative.

The second measure on the list of the steering committee is the House bill providing for a 44-hour work week for postal employes. This measure was passed by the House just before adjournment for the Christmas holidays.

The other measures provide for pensions and increases in pensions for certain soldiers and sailors of the civil war and their widows and children; and for the withdrawal of the sovereignty of the United States over the Philippines and recognition of their independence.

"It should be understood," Senator Goff said in his letter to his colleagues that "all of these suggestions are subordinate to appropriation bills, conference reports, and executive business."

goes to the Senate, carries $55,750,000 for the Veterans' Bureau, $34,000,000 for Federal highway aid, $192,000 for the sesquicentennial celebration of the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown, Va., and $500,000 for the establishment of the colonial national monument in Virginia.

It also provided $125,000 for the Indian School at Pine Ridge, S. Dak., to replace a dormitory destroyed by fire.

Appropriation Measures to Get Precedence Under Program Outlined.

ROAD WORK OPENS JOBS

warning had come in time. He emphasized that he was impressed with the spirit of cooperation on the part of business generally.

He declared he encountered a "different trend of industrial thought" everywhere.

Pointing out that the tendency heretofore has been to discharge workers, he said:

"Now we find coming into industry a wholly different attitude. It is not yet characteristic of industry, but still there are signs of a new view.

New View Found.

"Business men are trying to keep their workers, and if they have to discharge some they are dropping those who can stand it best. Also they are trying to find other work for those let out.

"The tendency is growing to anticipate reconstruction and necessary relief work, instead of putting it off. Men are doing this not out of charity, but as good business."

With the 50,000 men estimated to be employed by this year's public building expenditures, MacDonald's estimate of 100,000 receiving employment from the public works program, the total so far promised employment by the administration's program is 150,000.

Says View Incomplete.

In the Senate, Senator Robinson declared he was satisfied that "neither the President, the Secretary of Agriculture nor Judge Payne know the seriousness of the situation." He was referring to the drought situation and he read a telgram from Gov. Parnell of Arkansas, saying that in the telegrams he sent to Eastern newspapers Monday night he did not mean to convey the impression that all assistance possible was not needed.

Mr. Robinson declared that if Secretary Hyde "would make a survey" of the drought areas he would not have the view he has.

"President Hoover does not know, the Secretary of Agriculture doesn't know, and the head of the Red Cross doesn't know, and probably will not know," Senator Robinson shouted, "the conditions which I am about to disclose."

Fund Held Inadequate.

He read a letter from Charles E. Southinger, chairman of a local relief committee in Mississippi County, Ark., which said that $2,500 had been received from the Red Cross, but that this amount "could be spent in one day, judiciously and without haste."

Referring to Red Cross reports that that organization was now feeding 100,000 persons in Arkansas and expected to be feeding 200,000, Senator Robinson asked how it was conceivable that the $4,500,000 fund of the Red Cross was adequate.

He challenged the policy also of "making honest men ask for charity." All they want is a loan which they will pay back, he insisted. Secretary Hyde contends the loans would not be repaid, and therefore that they would come dangerously near constituting a dole.

Advance Four Bills.

"I am satisfied," he said, "that the country has not realized and Congress has little knowledge of the true situation in the drought area. I am also satisfied that if we would calmly determine the facts there would be little difficulty in agreeing upon proper relief."

The steering committee put four bills on the program of business, two of which mean endless debate and with no likelihood that they will be passed, while the other two are relatively unimportant. They all seem to be just something for the Senate to play with. They are the Howell bill for prohibition enforcement in the District, a House bill to establish the 44-hour week for postal workers, a bill increasing some Civil War pensions and the Hawes-Cutting measure giving independence to the Philippines.

tional committee, to "repudiate" a statement that the committee would support all Republican candidates, including Senator Norris. He said he called the Ohio senator from his home in Cleveland about the matter, but failed to move Mr. Fess in his determination to let the statement stand.

As for the $3,500 personal loan he made to Lucas to pay off the $4,000 note, Mr. Nutt said he had confidence in Lucas' integrity and expected him to repay it.

"I called Mr. Lucas in Louisville," he said, "and told him that note should be cleared up, as the national committee should have nothing to do with it."

Mr. Lucas replied, the witness added, that he could not take up the note in Kentucky because of the banking situation there. Mr. Nutt said he then suggested the personal loan and ignored Mr. Lucas' statement that such action might lead to "criticism."

"I felt I had a perfect right to do it," Mr. Nutt said, "I wanted to get it away from the national committee."

Earlier Mr. Nutt had said the national committee had adopted a "hands off" policy in Nebraska.

Double Ship Lane To Avert Collisions

Arrangements Completed for Use of System Along Coast.

(Associated Press.)

Completion of arrangements for double lane steamship travel from Maine to New York and on Chesapeake Bay to minimize danger of collisions was reported to Secretary Lamont yesterday by a committee of ship owners and operators.

Operation of the system will begin as soon as the Government has provided the necessary additional lightships and buoys. The double lanes are expected to be extended southward along the Atlantic steamship lanes after further conferences.

The system, to be established through voluntary action by the ship operators, was proposed by Dickerson N. Hoover, chief of the Federal Steamboat Inspection Service, after he had investigated the Fairfax-Pinthis collision off the Massachusetts coast several months ago which took 50 lives.

FLOOD CONTROL BILL IN MARYLAND HOUSE

Metzerott Introduces Measure to Protect Highways at Bladensburg.

POLICE DOCKET IS HEAVY

Oliver Metzerott, Republican floor leader and a delegate from Prince Georges, yesterday introduced the Bladensburg flood control bill in the Maryland House of Delegates.

The bill provides that the State roads commission shall have authority to condemn lands and make constructions to prevent the flooding of the Defense highway and the Baltimore boulevard at Bladensburg. There has been some doubt as to whether or not the commission has authority beyond the right of way, and the bill is designed to meet this point.

A new procedure is introducing bills on the first day of a session, before the Legislature is organized, and before committees have been appointed. Although a Democratic opposition to this was possible, it did not appear, and the bill was later referred to the committee on roads and highways.

While the bill does not stipulate that the work shall be done immediately, it is marked as a piece of emergency legislation, and would become effective as soon as passed. It makes no appropriation for the work, but provides that funds for the flood control shall be taken from the general road funds.

The floor leader also introduced another bill, which proposes changes in the election laws. It was referred to the committee on elections.

In the Police Court.

Convicted in the Hyattsville police court of the possession of liquor, Mrs. Kathleen Lange, of Riverdale, was fined $100. Policemen Claude Reese and R. E. Brown, when they raided the woman's house, are said to have found a still, but the charge of manufacturing was not pressed. Attorney J. Wilson Ryon appeared for the woman.

Before being turned over to New Jersey authorities, who want them for joyriding, three men from that State were fined for that offense in Maryland. They are said to have taken a car in New Jersey and were arrested in Maryland.

The men are Benny Turbak, John Melik, and Edward Sever, and each was fined $50. Turbak, who was driving, was fined $16 more for having neither permit nor registration card.

Charges of using fictitious automobile markers, placed against Noble F. Rushe, chief of the Hyattsville Fire Department, caused him to be placed under bond of $200. Rushe's case will probably be tried next Wednesday.

Charged With Drunkenness.

Anthony Jarusso appeared against his wife, Bertha, whom he charged with drunkenness. Jarusso swore out the warrant on which the woman was arrested, but when arraigned, she said that he furnished her the wine which caused the arrest. Frank Stamp, of Landover, was fined $50 on the charged of possession of 32 bottles of beer.

Beer was also the downfall of Clifton H. Dodson, of Mount Rainier, Md., who was fined $101 for driving while drunk and reckless driving. Dodson, who pleaded guilty, admitted to drinking three bottles of it.

Cases against five men, based on the alleged use of expired tags, were continued until next week. The men are Norman L. Clark, of Brentwood, Samuel F. Blackman, Clifton Darcey, Arthur McDermott, and William Duvall, all of Hyattsville. The men were arrested by Chief Albert Anderson and Roland Reed of the town force.

Charles H. Fuller, who was arrested a few minutes after midnight on New Year's eve, succeeded in having charges of using expired tags dismissed. Fuller explained that he did not know it was so late, and that he was taking a friend home.

Yesterday broke all records in Police Court, with 74 cases tried, and nearly $1,500 in fines imposed. About 70 more cases were continued, as the court sat until long after 6 o'clock.

The retiring president reported the closing out of the debt on the heating plant installed in Lee Camp Hall several years ago.

Mrs. Charles W. Howell, chairman of the committee arranging the annual banquet of Robert E. Lee Camp, United Confederate Veterans, on January 19, to celebrate the birthday anniversary of Gen. Lee, announced that the entire membership is expected to help in preparing and serving the banquet.

Mrs. H. M. Benson, of Netcha, N. J., is confined to the Alexandria Hospital as a result of an accident on the Richmond-Washington highway at Little Hunting Creek Bridge Tuesday night, when an automobile driven by her husband collided with a truck driven by Herbert Daniels, of Washington.

Mrs. Benson was taken to the hospital by a passing motorist, and was treated by Dr. M. D. Delaney for minor cuts, bruises and shock. Her condition was reported last night as not serious, although she will be confined to the hospital for several weeks. Both the husband and the driver of the truck escaped injury.

Amos W. W. Woodcock, national prohibition director, will be the principal speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club today. The total assessed valuation of real estate, personal property and public service corporations in Arlington County at the close of 1930 was $24,463,804, a decrease of $4,249,315 from year before, it was disclosed in the report of Harry K. Green, commissioner of revenue of the county, made public yesterday. The decrease as explained by Commissioner Green is the result of the recent annexation by the city of Alexandria of a large portion of the Jefferson district.

Of the total valuation, $4,135,794 was in Jefferson district, $14,520,497 in Arlington district, $5,406,327 in Washington, $23,440 in that portion of East Falls Church within Arlington district and $375,746 in that section of East Falls Church within Washington district. The report shows the total tax of $103,394.91 levied in Jefferson district was distributed as follows: $38,154.28 for county purposes, $43,425.84 for schools and $24,814.80 for roads. The rate of levies for Arlington and Jefferson district, where there is no bond issue for roads, was $2.50 on the $100 valuation, while in Washington district, where there is a levy of 15 cents on roads, the total tax levy is $2.65 on each $100 valuation. The levy in East Falls Church within Arlington district is $1.65 and that section of East Falls Church in Washington district is $1.80 on the $100 valuation.

A total of $36,096.94 was levied for school bonds in the county, distributed as follows: $6,203.68 in Jefferson district; $21,780.77 for Arlington district, and $8,112.49 for Washington district.

The report includes a special levy for fire protection, which yielded $24,463.81 in the county, $4,135.79 of which was collected in Jefferson district; $14,520.50 in Arlington district, $5,408.44 in Washington district; $32.44 in East Falls Church within Arlington district, and $375.75 in East Falls Church within Washington district.

Commissioner Green states that this report only includes local levies. The amounts the county receives from the State for roads, from gasoline tax and for schools has not yet been compiled and is not included.

With not more than one-half of the 5,000 motorists in Arlington County having obtained their 1931 license plates, J. V. Turner in charge of the distribution of the tags again calls to the attention of automobile owners that Wednesday, January 14, is the time limit that 1930 tags will be honored.

With only a small force of help in the distribution of the tags, Mr. Turner asks that persons have the cards properly signed before arriving at the office of Sheriff Howard B. Fields, where tags are issued. The hours are from 9 in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Tags may be obtained in the evening at the office of Mr. Turner in East Falls Church.

BOTH PARTIES CALL CAUCUSES OF HOUSE

Republicans First to Meet, February 26, to Plan for New Session.

BARE G. O. P. MAJORITY

(Associated Press.)

Republican and Democratic chieftains have called their forces of the next House to caucus here in the last days of this session and lay plans for controlling that branch in the Seventy-second Congress.

Republicans will caucus February 26 and two days later the Democrats will convene. The formal Republican call was sent out yesterday by Chairman Hawley, of the Republican caucus, and Chairman Wood of the Republican congressional committee.

Although the formal Democratic summons has yet to be issued, Representative Garner, of Texas, the minority leader, has announced his forces, including fifty-one new members, would meet February 28.

The Republicans hold a bare majority of 218 of the 435 seats.

Representative Tilson, the majority leader; Chairman Snell, of the House rules committee, and Hawley asserted there was no dispute as to which party would organize the House. Hawley said "the country directed us to keep the power when it gave us the majority."

The Democrats hold 214 seats. In addition there are two normally Democratic posts recently vacated by death. Representative Kvale, Farmer-Labor, holds the other seat.

Representative Garner said, however, that until the new Congress has convened no one would know which party would control.

The Republicans plan to select candidates for Speaker, leader, a committee on committees and officers of the House. The Democrats expect to select a candidate for speaker, and to leave the question of selecting the leader until the new Congress assembles.

Garner indicated he thought it unwise to select a candidate for leader until it was determined whether one was needed. If the Republicans organize the next House, Garner, slated for Democratic Speaker, would automatically become minority leader.

Deputy Treasurer Of County Missing

Friends and Officials Know of No Motive for Disappearance.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 7.—Alarmed by the disappearance last Sunday of Emmett L. Carter, a deputy treasurer of Albemarle County and well-known business man, search was instituted for him today by citizens of Scottsville. Relatives and friends fear foul play.

After working in the treasurer's office Friday, Carter left the following morning for Richmond on business. Failing to return home, his father and brother visited the capital, but found he had not been seen by the men whom he was to visit.

Neither Mrs. Carter nor G. Stuart Hamm, county treasurer, could advance any motive today for the disappearance. The former said she knew of no troubles that might have caused him to leave Scottsville, and the treasurer said his books were in good shape.

GOV. POLLARD TRIES TO SETTLE STRIKE

Danville Indications Point to Failure of Effort at Mediation.

EACH SIDE STANDS FIRM

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Jan. 7.—The primary purpose of Gov. John Garland Pollard's visit to Danville yesterday was, it developed today, the most deliberate effort yet made to bring both sides in the local textile strike deadlock to terms. While maintaining a complete silence on the effectiveness of his efforts, a silence enjoined also on the representatives of labor, it looked tonight as though another failure to end the stalemate had been registered.

Gov. Pollard was for two hours in conference with H. R. Fitzgerald last night, from 8 to 10 o'clock, at the mill president's home. Present also were Malcolm K. Harris, mill attorney, and John W. Carter, Commonwealth's attorney, of Danville. This morning Mr. Pollard was in conference for half an hour with leaders of the local union, Buford Nash, president; J. C. Blackwell, secretary; Miss Matilda Lindsay, women's organizer; C. S. Garrison, the union publicity representative, and C. W. Bolick, strike organizer.

Union Group Silent.

None of the union group would say anything about the meeting today except that they had been asked not to discuss it in any form.

There is reason to believe that the governor came here not with any definite settlement plan drawn up but to determine for himself just how far the two elements remain apart, with a view to seeing if there could be any mediation. There also is reason to believe that the mill president did not change his decision not to meet the union representatives also that the union leaders are equally insistent on union recognition as a prerequisite to calling off the strike. It was learned that the union representatives were not invited by the governor to meet him but on hearing he was here waited on him and were given an audience in a hotel conference room.

Carolina Invasion Denied.

While here the governor conferred with Maj. Reese Grubert in charge of the militia at Schoolfield and received assurances that no members of the force have operated over the Virginia-Carolina line nor have they turned back trucks coming into Virginia. He also conferred with peace officers and received a close-up picture of the strike. Mr. Pollard left for Richmond at 3 p. m.

The bombing of Trinity Pentecostal Church at Newtown yesterday evening was followed by two more acts of lawlessness during the night. The home of Henry Oliver was a target for rocks and the home of J. W. Laprade was shot at. No one was hurt.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

WE do hope, and these words are intended to reflect our deep feeling and emotion in the matter—we do hope the Senate passes that maternity bill in order that the thousands of women who were cut off from such an interesting work with the repeal of the Sheppard-Towner act, may be reengaged.

Anyone will realize instantly that in such trying times as these it is all important that the women not be permitted to become restless. There must be something to keep them occupied and there is nothing quite as engaging; indeed, as fascinating as going around telling other women how to rear their babies.

It is so much more purposeful than the rounds of teas and bridge, and all of us serious minded women who just must do something useful must have a maternity bill as an outlet for our energies.

BUT it does seem that if this Government supervision over the rearing of babies is to be set up against that we could put more efficiency into it.

Why can't it be provided that all the Government agents should visit a family together and at the same time. That is to say, we could establish a national Government visiting day. Thursday afternoon is preferable because that is the maid's afternoon off and what could be better than to turn the afternoon over to the entertainment of Government agents.

• • • •

NOW let's see: The group of them would be composed of the Children's Bureau agent, the prohibition agent, the agent looking for aliens and the agent engaged in ferreting out the Bolsheviks who operate stealthily on our grain exchanges. That would be four of them, you see—a squad of them, in fact.

As they operate in the Army, the oldest agent of the group in point of service, not age, would serve as corporal.

Very well then. At 2 o'clock of Thureday afternoons the agent designated as corporal would knock on your door. The wife would receive the Children's Bureau agent in the nursery, the husband would take the prohibition agent into the kitchen, the eldest son would talk with the grain agent looking for Bolsheviks in the living room, and the agent looking for aliens—ah, his work is the most delicate of all.

He would take the little 5-year-old talkative daughter out on the lawn and by giving her candy, question her all about the ancestry of her parents.

"Nice little girlie," he would coax, "and does mama and papa sometimes talk in Roosian."

It would be amazing how soon with this system our great big country would become just an intimate little family group.

B. & O. MERGER PLAN MEETS OPPOSITION

Hagerstown and Other Interests Object to Its Control of Western Maryland.

WABASH MAY ASSIST

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 7.—A new fight against the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad retaining control of the Western Maryland Railroad under the plan for railroad consolidation recently announced, will be launched before the Interstate Commerce Commission and also through United States Senators and representatives, W. M. McCormick, Baltimore manufacturer, said today. Mr. McCormick led the opposition several years ago which resulted in the commission ordering the Baltimore & Ohio to divest itself of Western Maryland stock.

McCormick indicated that the Taplin Brothers, of the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railroad, would also take part in the opposition before the commission as well as the Wabash. He intimated that the Wabash might not seek to gain control of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia and the Western Maryland, because of inability to get sufficient financial support for its plan for a fifth trunk line.

The Hagerstown Chamber of Commerce will likely join with the Baltimore interests opposing the Baltimore & Ohio control of the Western Maryland, because it is feared that the Western Maryland Railroad shops, the city's largest industry, would be moved, and that the Western Maryland system would eventually be junked under the Baltimore & Ohio.

HINES TO DISCIPLINE ATTACHE OF BUREAU

Finds Some Irregularities Complained About by Cannon Trivial.

DENIES PLOT CHARGED

Charges of irregular administrative practices in the Veterans' Bureau, made by Dr. Wallace B. Cannon, a son of Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, will result in discipline of a subordinate official, it was stated yesterday by Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs.

An investigation following Dr. Cannon's complaint, Gen. Hines said, revealed the existence of some irregularities, most of them not worthy of action. The charges followed Dr. Cannon's transfer from the regional office at Charles Town, W. Va., to that at Milwaukee, his selection, he said, being made by drawing his name from several in a hat.

This Gen. Hines said, had occurred only on that one occasion and steps have been taken to prevent its recurrance. Charges by Dr. Cannon that discriminatory methods in making his assignments and that a conspiracy existed among Veterans' Bureau employes to affect his interests adversely were found to be groundless, Gen. Hines said.

Another charge, that a subordinate official had borrowed money from those under his direction, was investigated. This practice, as well as others on the part of the official concerned, is in direct violation of bureau orders, Gen. Hines stated, and corrective measures had been taken.

Among the charges which Gen. Hines said were investigated and found not sufficiently serious to warrant any action was that money was collected for the purchase of flowers to be presented to an official of the Veterans' Bureau recently promoted, and to buy lemonade. The director stated that steps have already been taken to correct "certain isolated conditions not in keeping with good administration," which were disclosed by the investigation.

Gen. Hines refused either to confirm or deny a rumor current last night that the official under fire is a physician known in Washington. He said, however, that the man in question does occupy an official position in the department which was under investigation.

It was understood that among the charges investigated were that this official gambled and had faced divorce proceedings because of his friendship for a Mexican woman.

Tax Receipts High, In Spite of Drought

Survey Made at Winchester Shows Favorable Comparisons.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 7.—Although a severe drought gripped this section of Virginia last year, farmers received lower prices than usual for their crops, and the general economic depression made itself felt in many circles, tax payments compare favorably with a year ago. A rough estimate of Winchester tax payments to January 1 this year by W. A. Baker, city treasurer, indicates that approximately 85 per cent of the anticipated city tax revenue has been collected, and about 90 per cent of the State taxes collected by that office.

Robert S. Smith, treasurer of Frederick County, estimated that tax collections for the county are only about 4 per cent below the previous year, when 85 per cent of the anticipated revenue was paid by December 5, 1929.

W. A. Bradford, treasurer of Clarke County, stated that taxpayers of that county had paid about 75 per cent of the anticipated revenue, which was about the usual amount paid by this time of the year. He also said the payment of taxes in that county had been "marvelous" in view of the serious damage and loss sustained by farmers during the drought.

Mrs. H. M. Benson, of Neptune, N. J., received severe lacerations about the face and head when she was thrown against the windshield of the automobile in which she was riding on the Washington-Richmond highway at the Little Hunting Creek Bridge near the Mount Vernon road yesterday. The car was driven by her husband when it sideswiped a truck loaded with poultry driven by Herbert Daniels, of Washington. Both Mr. Benson and the truck driver escaped injury, but both cars were considerably damaged. Following the collision the truck crashed through the guard rail on the bridge approach and barely escaped plunging down the steep embankment into the creek.

Mrs. Benson was rushed to the Alexandria Hospital by a passing motorist and was treated by Dr. D. M. Delaney. The traffic along the roadway was tied up for a short time until the wrecked machines were removed. The Benson car was headed south at the time of the accident and the truck northbound.

COURT WILL REVIEW SCHOOL BOND ISSUE

Virginia Appellate Bench Grants Error Writ in Prince William Case.

CITIZENS ATTACK LEVY

Charles Pickett, of Fairfax, attorney for the group of citizens of Prince William County, Va., who last spring filed a suit against the Prince William County School Board to enjoin it from proceeding with a $40,000 school bond issue for a new high school at Haymarket and to repair, equip and furnish a colored school at Thoraughfare, has been notified that the Virginia Court of Appeals has granted a writ of error to his clients. The citizens are represented by Mr. Pickett and F. Shield McCandlish, of Fairfax. The Prince William County School Board is represented by Robert A. Hutchison and T. E. Didlake, of Manassas.

The suit was filed immediately following the bond issue election when the voters of Gainesville district had carried the measure by 22 votes. Judge Howard W. Smith in the Prince William County Circuit Court continued the case on the ground that he had prior cases to dispose of before his resignation became effective. When the case was presented to Judge Walter T. McCarthy, successor to Judge Smith, he ruled that he was without jurisdiction and an appeal was taken last month.

The petition for the injunction is based upon four main points. It is contended that the school board has to levy an unlawful special school tax to carry the interest and sinking fund on the bond issue; that the judge of the circuit court failed to approve the loan, as required by law prior prior to authorizing the calling of the special election; that the $40,000 is to be spent for an unlawful purpose, as in their opinion a bond issue for school purposes must be spent on building construction alone; and not on furnishings; and that the election laws were violated during the conduct of the bond issue election.

It is believed that the court of appeals will not be able to hear this case before the November, 1931, term. This will automatically delay any action by the county school board in constructing the new building until the issue has been decided by that court.

Public Meeting to Be Held Tonight to Consider New Ordinance.

COMMITTEE ASKS VIEWS

Citizens of oRckville will be given an opportunity to express their opinion on the zoning ordinance for the town at a public meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in the Rockville Fire Hall.

The hearing is to be held by the committee appointed by Major John Roger Spates and the town council to consider the feasibility of zoning the county seat. The committee has made a preliminary report to the mayor and council which is understood to be satisfactory to that body, but it is the wish of the committee to hear the town's residents before completing its final report.

The committee includes Donald A. DeLashmutt, Julian W. Whiting and Porter G. Ward. Much of the survey work was done by Irving C. Root, chief engineer of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission. A map has been prepared and framed and is on view in the fire hall together with detailed information about the proposed zoning ordinance.

After the committee has assimilated the views of the citizens, it will make its final report to the town council. The town fathers then will hold another public hearing after due advertisement before promulgating the ordinance.

FRANCE PAYS FINAL TRIBUTE TO JOFFRE

Body of Marshal Lies Near Napoleon After Rites in Cathedral.

MILLION VIEW CORTEGE

Paris, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—France, in a final tribute of love and respect to the "savior of Paris," gave Marshal Joffre today a national funeral which in its grandeur reminded of that "day of ashes" when the body of Napoleon Bonaparte was brought back from St. Helena.

Tonight the body of the valiant victor of the Marne lay, like that of Napoleon, under the great dome of the Invalides, in a disused sacristy of the chapel of St. Louis, dedicated to the old Crusader king. It was placed there so that Mme. Joffre might pray beside her soldier husband in silence.

Some months from now the body will be transferred to Chestnut Grove, the marshal's country home, where it will be entombed in a mausoleum like that of Washington at Mount Vernon.

Church and state united today to make the last rites of France's beloved soldier a full expression of the republic's gratitude. The thousands of French people who filled the Cathedral of Notre Dame and the million or more who lined the route of the cortege from the cathedral to the Invalides, testified abundantly the love that Paris bore for "Papa" Joffre.

Student Disturbances Are Renewed in Madrid

Madrid, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Student disturbances at the University of Madrid were renewed today. Students in the law courses declared a strike in protest against what they called mistreatment by police of students arrested in the recent unsuccessful revolutionary movement.

The law classes were closed and it was expected the strike might spread to other departments of the university.

Wales Mine Owners Blamed by MacDonald

Seaham Harbor, Durham, Eng., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in an address here tonight threw all blame for the South Wales coal dispute on the mine owners.

The prime minister charged the owners had refused to recognize the national industrial board, and declares if the board had been recognized "there would be no cause or fear of a dispute in South Wales."

Plane Lost in Fog On Croydon Field

Hunts for Hangar After Safe Landing; London Pall Lifting.

London, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The fog which has shrouded England for several days was clearing somewhat tonight, but remained dense in patches. At Croydon it was so thick an airliner, which had landed safely, became lost while taxing to its hangar.

Employes of the airfield, who heard the noise of the engine and rushing out to help the plane, were also lost, and it was a half hour before the hangar finally was reached.

The tug Hercules was sunk in a collision with the Blue Star liner, Napier Star, at the mouth of the River Tyne, and three lives were lost. It was uncertain, however, whether the accident was due to the fog. Steamer service was rendered today to the Isle of Man, which had been isolated since Saturday.

5 Persons Killed In Plane Crashes

Passengers Are Included in Texas and Oklahoma Accidents.

Marshall, Tex., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Three persons were killed when a Wedell-Williams passenger airplane crashed 8 miles west of here today.

The dead: Art Brown, pilot; Eric Williams, New Orleans; Ralph Wilson, 18, Fort Worth, Tex.

Ada, Okla., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Wayne Spencer, 21, operator of the Spencer Flying School, and Lee Davis, a passenger, were killed in the crash of their airplane 5 miles southeast of Ada today. Both lived here.

25,000 Textile Hands Menaced With Lockout

Burnley, England, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—A lockout involving 25,000 workers in the cotton trade was threatened tonight by a decision of the Burnley Master Cotton Spinners Association, members of which voted to close their mills Saturday unless a strike now in effect at other plants is settled in the meantime.

Senator Smith (Democrat), South Carolina, and Representatives Reece, of Tennessee, and Ransley, of Pennsylvania, Republicans, voted against the agreement. Reece and Ransley may submit a minority report to their house.

Before the final report is drafted, the House conferees must agree upon the wording of the section providing for leasing the nitrate plant.

most of the trip the ship kept close to the sea, which heaved in mountainous swells before the strong wind.

Mrs. Hart held the controls most of the way, with MacLaren navigating. He found his part in the flight extremely difficult because of poor visibility.

Excited over their safe arrival after Saturday's disappointment, when the two fliers were forced to turn back and land in Hampton Roads because of having lost a sextant after taking off from New York, Mrs. Hart and MacLaren were eager tonight to continue to the Azores as soon as the plane is ready. The start may be tomorrow. They had no trouble, they said, in locating the island.

AT END OF TRAIL WITH GEN. NELSON MILES

WOOD ASSISTS EXPEDITION

is chafed badly and his thigh is swelling out of all semblance to itself. He lances it again and again to relieve the pressure and pushes on. He marches at the head of his men, and can scarcely wait for the fight with the Indians which is always just a day beyond. These men will acquit themselves. They on their part have come to look to him for something more than orders. The growls and insubordination have long ceased.

This grave, grim person, who can laugh as heartily as any on occasion; this herculean creature, always volunteering for the toughest jobs; doctor, officer, civilian or what?—this man is to be followed. Everybody respects, fears, obeys Lawton, there is no question who is captain here; in that gigantic body, force itself seems to be marching. But Wood has become somehow a kind of joint leader with Lawton. Other officers come and go; Wood remains. Others become exhausted; Wood goes on. Others become disheartened, even the captain himself; Wood keeps his head and his heart steady. When everybody is saying that the enterprise is futile, that no white man can walk down Apaches, and that Geronimo will not be captured in twenty years, Wood keeps his faith clear and makes others believe that the thing can be done. Out of the abundant riches of his own energy and determination he has a way of feeding the failing energy of his companions, until Lawton himself, gruff and domineering as he is, comes to look upon him in a fashion as the soul of the expedition.

See Apaches in a Trap.

On the summit, through the crack of an outlying ledge, they can see the Apache camp far below on a little plateau hemmed in on two sides by mountains and on the third by the river. The scouts, the infantry close in and dash into the camp.

Horses * * * food * * * clothing * * * camp impedimenta * * * everything is there * * everything except Geronimo and his band.

The reaction from the high hopes, the excitement, the march under the broiling sun, is terrific. The men lie about half dead. Even Lawton, powerful as he is, is completely done.

Wood, wracked with pain, can do nothing except to lance again and again the swollen, poisoned wound. Then, finding a quiet eddy near the river bank, he sits down with the water up to his armpits, easing the pain a little, relieving the fever. There he passes the night; there he passes the greater part of the next day; there, half conscious, in the afternoon, he throws out a fishline * * * just to be doing something.

The next day he is up and striding at shifting boulders and shale at the head of his men; but after five miles fever and chills overcome him, and Lawton, torn with pity and anxiety for this man who, under the stress of an epic quest, has become as dear as a brother to him, insists on making camp. At dawn Wood is afoot again, and marching with the pack mules in the lead. Lawton sees him reel dizzily and fall, and rise and struggle on and again fall, and says to himself that not in a four-year war or since has he seen such fortitude, such devotion to a cause. Wood can not keep on his feet.

Delirious Hours on End.

All day and all night he is delirious with a high fever, lying in the open, with enormous parrots shrieking wildly about him and a tropical downpour drenching him.

Lawton is at his friend's side all night giving him quinine at short intervals.

"I am almost broken up at this misfortune," he writes his wife. "It not only leaves the command without a medical officer, but no one to look after him, and he has always been my warmest friend and supporter. I don't know what I shall do without him. It seems as though I were having misfortune after misfortune."

But to Lawton's delight Wood is better next day and on the trail once more.

Agony * * * hunger, thirst, weariness * * * disappointment * * * no support from headquarters * * * supplies gone * * * men marching in bare feet. * * *

"Gen. Miles will never catch the hostiles with half-equipped and half-organized expeditions," Lawton wrote his wife, "and promises will not feed or clothe a command or make experienced officers. * * * The infantry, poor orphans, have to get along the best they can with no one. But for Dr. Wood the Lord knows what would have become of them."

Early in August Wood set out with Tom Horn, chief of scouts, and 25 Indians to find out whether the hostiles had swung north along the divide of the Sierra Madre.

"I don't know what I would do if it was not for Dr. Wood," Lawton wrote his wife that day. "He is the best officer I ever had with me. If I had three or four, or rather if all my officers were like him, I would catch Geronimo in short order."

The expedition carried nothing except a few sacks of coffee and salt, counting on deer for their meat and prickly pears and roots which the Indians knew. Wood, marching famished on one occasion behind an Indian carrying a haunch of venison, still bleeding, could hardly hold himself back from striking the man down and thrusting his teeth into the raw deer meat. They come to a fortified ranch and are taken for hostile Apaches by some terrorized ranchmen.

"I tried to shout out to them that we were friends, but was answered by a shot which came dangerously near. After a time I managed to convince them that I was not an Indian and they permitted me to come up to the ranch alone; here, after a good deal of palavering, I managed to make them understand who we were and what our object was. We stopped here for an hour or so, toasting some fresh corn which they gave us."

They strike into the heart of the Sierra Madre. Two of the Indians die from overexhaustion.

Nearly Shot by Hostiles.

"We were working up a canyon," Wood wrote in his diary, "when suddenly a couple of bullets struck so near to us that we were both covered with dirt. My mouth and face were full of it. Horn was also well covered. We dropped under cover of the nearest rocks without waiting to ask any questions. Kept under cover for some time and finally worked back carefully under cover over the ridge. The people who fired at us must undoubtedly have been Indians on the opposite side of the canon * * * hostiles * * * watching our movements."

Once the loyal scouts themselves go beserk. It is outside a little Mexican town where the hospitality has been warm and powerful. Lawton has gone ahead, leaving Wood in charge.

"Shortly after leaving town I noticed that the Indians in the rear of the column were getting pretty drunk. * * * They were very friendly with me personally. Soon I was surrounded with a bunch of them and asked to join in the celebrating. They proposed that we should go off and kill some Mexicans, which latter action they were most anxious to take. As the Indians were shooting at everything in sight, it took some time to get them straightened out * * * as the drunken men would load their arms * * * and fire, sometimes toward us and sometimes in the air. The only thing to do was to wait until a man had an empty gun and then down him. The sober Indians used the butts of their guns freely. The result was a rather damaged looking lot of drunks. * * * When we got them into camp we had to tie up some of them."

Adventure * * * hardship * * * peril * * * laughter * * * constable service. * * * Then the sudden emergency and Wood is all doctor, laboring to save Lawton's life as Lawton had agonized to save his. A can of corned beef, open all day and eaten at dusk * * * ptomaine poisoning. * * * The captain reels and falls from his horse, unconscious. All night it is touch and go, and the next day is half gone before the danger is past.

Heat * * * heat * * * deluges of rain * * * and a communication from Washington transmitting Leonard Wood's commission as first lieutenant in the Medical Corps. * * * Heat * * * heat * * * hunger * * * rotting food, rotting clothing, mosquitoes, blow flies * * * maggots * * * rattlesnakes * * * and the Apaches forever elusive in the vast wilderness of northern Mexico.

Geronimo, meanwhile, was not feeling at all triumphant or secure. The capture of his horses and supplies had badly crippled him. But his situation was not yet desperate and rumors were reaching him which were meat and mescal for his resourceful mind. The United States Government was quarreling with the government of Mexico. An American named Cutting, editor of a newspaper in El Paso, had printed libelous comments on the editor of a paper in Juarez and on his next trip across the border had been incontinently clapped in jail. There were rumblings throughout the United States * * * indignation meetings * * * talk of war, shouts of "Remember the Alamo!"

Here, indeed, were troubled waters for Geronimo to go afishing in. He was too shrewd a politician not to bask in the warmth of such a situation. He pretended to want to make peace with the Mexicans. What he actually wanted above everything else in the world at that moment was rest and a good drunk. He had both, promised to meet the Mexicans for another parley at Fronteras and slipped away once more into the mountains.

Takes Cue From Crook.

(Gen. Miles, meanwhile, finding that his campaign of annihilation was succeeding no better than Crook's plan of negotiation, took a leaf out of Crook's book and sent two loyal Apaches with Lieut. Charles B. Gatewood, Sixth Cavalry, to join Lawton and, if opportunity offered, enter into peace parleys).

Lawton gave Gatewood ten picked men, an interpreter and a pack train, with orders to push rapidly ahead and open communications. Three days later Lawton and Wood, with a lieutenant of the Tenth Infantry named Clay, a tall Kentuckian who had just joined the expedition, arrived in Fronteras. Clay, who was a grandson of Henry Clay, was in vigor and courage a worthy third to Lawton and Wood. They found Fronteras in a turmoil of excitement. Geronimo, rather than Lawton, had been expected and 60 Mexican soldiers concealed in the houses were waiting for him. They resented the coming of the Americans, desiring the prey for themselves.

The Prefect of Arispe, who had been in negotiation with Geronimo, was in Fronteras and invited Lawton to luncheon, with Clay and Wood. The wine was plentiful, but there was a taste in it Wood did not like, and he put down his glass untouched. Lawton drank heavily of the drugged liquor and told the Mexican officers precisely what he thought of them. It was touch and go for a fight, with Lawton, Wood and Clay standing with their backs against the wall ready for anything.

Great White Father Speaks.

Meanwhile, the Great White Father, Grover Cleveland, fishing at Saranac, in the Adirondacks, thrust himself with a few plain words into the situation. "I hope nothing will be done with Geronimo," he telegraphed to the Secretary of War, "which will prevent our treating him as a prisoner of war, if we can not hang him, which I would much prefer."

Gatewood knew nothing of that telegram. If he had known of it, he might have thrown back at Grover Cleveland his own familiar phrase, "It is a condition and not a theory which confronts us."

Gatewood entered Geronimo's camp and held a parley with him, telling the savage old Indian that he must surrender and accept exile to Florida or "fight it out and be smashed." Geronimo, on the other hand, expected a homecoming like the prodigal son's. What Geronimo wanted most at the moment was food. Diplomatic conversations languished while Wood brought up the pack animals.

"Reached the river shortly after light," Wood wrote, "and found the outfit hard up for rations. * * * Some of Geronimo's Indians * * * were down at the river * * * and we managed to get some rations across to them."

The Apaches came into camp that afternoon. They seemed to Wood anxious to surrender.

"Geronimo stated: 'We have not slept for six months and are worn out.' All they seemed to dread specially was falling into the hands of the civil authorities in Arizona. The Indians are literally worn out with anxiety and hard traveling. They have been constantly on the watch, frequently attacked, and have again and again had close calls."

Having feasted, Geronimo proceeded to business.

"If you will tell me that Gen. Miles will do all he can to save our lives," said Geronimo, "we will come in, but if we are going to be killed anyhow, we might just as well fight it out right here, because in that case a few of us might possibly get away."

He agreed to surrender to Miles on that condition. American soldiers, Lawton replied, did not kill their prisoners.

It was decided finally that the Apaches were to retain their arms and to camp near Lawton to await the arrival of Miles, with Gatewood sleeping in their camp. If no agreement was reached with Miles, the Apaches should have 24 hours to get away.

It would not have been Geronimo if the savage old fraud had not contributed a final pearl or palaver. He would trust Capt. Lawton to the utmost, he said, as he had never known an officer to deceive him.

Kidnaper of Boy May Be Hanged

Warrant Charges Abernathy With Crime Carrying Capital Penalty.

St. Louis, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—A warrant charging first-degree robbery with a deadly weapon, a capital offense under the Henry law, was issued today against Charles Y. Abernathy, Negro kidnaper of 13-year-old Adolphus Busch Orthwein.

The warrant was issued on an affidavit by Roy Yowell, chauffeur employed by the boy's father, Percy J. Orthwein. Yowell was with the lad when the Orthwein car was stopped by Abernathy New Year's Eve and the boy taken away by the Negro, to be held until the following day, when he was returned to his family.

Abernathy is charged in another warrant with kidnaping, which carries a maximum punishment of ten years in prison. Bond on the robbery charge was set at $50,000, the same amount required on the kidnaping charge. Abernathy today told reporters he intended to plead guilty to kidnaping the boy, "even if I get the rope."

Alexandria Postmaster Is Confirmed by Senate

Reappointment of Ferdinand C. Knight as postmaster of Alexandria, Va., was among several nominations of Virginia postmasters confirmed yesterday by the Senate.

Other Virginia postmasters whose nominations were confirmed were: Louise J. Nottingham, of Eastville; Augustus R. Morris, Jetersville; Georgie H. Osborne, Keysville; Clinton L. Wright, Norfolk; Albert L. Taylor, Parksley; Charles V. Tucker, Phenix, and Patrick J. Riley, Portsmouth.

50 Sail to Shore on Ice Floe.

Moscow, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Fifty fishermen, swept to sea on an iceberg Monday when the floe broke loose in the frozen Caspian Sea, sailed ashore today before a driving wind. They had ridden horses onto the ice along the coast and were fishing through holes when a storm broke a huge floe from the shore. Airplanes and several ships had been searching for them.

Drown as Car Falls Through Ice.

Tallinn, Estonia, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Nine persons were drowned when the automobile in which they were crossing the frozen River Ema, near Tartu Dorpat, went through a hole in the ice. Four bodies were recovered.

OIL CRACKING OWNER CASHES IN MILLIONS

Coinventor of Process Sees Faith of His Father and Armour Vindicated.

DUBBS "GOING TO WORK"

Chicago, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Carbon Petroleum Dubbs, having sold his stock in the inventoin his father started and he finished, is going back to work, $3,582,045 richer. The Universal Oil Products Co., owner of the Dubbs oil cracking process, was sold last night for $22,249,999. Today the fortune that the sale brought him appeared to be more of a starting gun than a finishing flag to Dubbs.

"I'm so glad it's all over," said the tall, mild-mannered man with the unusual name. "It has been a real strain, but now I can go back to work."

The widow of J. Ogden Armour had millions in her strongbox again today.

The faith of the multimillionaire packer in the Dubbs oil cracking process enabled Mrs. Lolita Sheldon Armour to salvage more than $8,000,000 from the wreck of her husband's estate. Armour's widow received more than a third of the $22,249,999 paid for the process.

Armour's name was linked with the process invented by Jesse A. Dubbs in 1914, when he became convinced that it was more than a dream, put up about $3,000,000 and helped organize the Universal Co.

Rockefeller Home Closely Guarded

Letters From Mysterious Inventor Contain Threats.

Tarrytown, N. Y., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Extra precautions to guard the Pocantico Hills estate of John D. Rockefeller from cranks were taken today after receipt of several threatening letters to his family. The letters are similar to those sent to other prominent persons by a mysterious inventor.

Heretofore the private police at the estate have been on duty in two shifts of twelve hours each. This has been changed to three shifts of eight hours each with additional guards.

The elderly millionaire and his son, John D. Rockefeller, jr., have received about 25 threatening letters each in recent months. John D. Rockefeller, the elder, is in Florida.

year of 1933 was set at $36,673,414.27, which would be taken care of by the 1932 surplus, $12,787,415 from general funds and $22,498,864 from special funds. These figures, at the close of the fiscal year of 1933, would leave a cash surplus of $1,763,023.64.

Among the construction recommendations made by the governor were improvements to the State Normal Schools at Frostburg, $31,000; Towson, $100,000; Salisbury, $200,000; to the Training School for Boys and the Montrose School for Girls, $220,000, and a total of $1,300,000 for hospitals for the feeble-minded.

The hospitals for the insane appropriations would go to the Springfield State Hospital, $221,000 for 200 additional beds; Spring Grove Hospital, $424,000 for new building to care for 200, new power plant and remodeling the criminal insane building; Crownsville State Hospital, $525,000 for a new building to care for 200 patients and a separate building to care for 100 feeble-minded. At the Rosewood Training School, $130,000 for a new building and equipment and improvements.

An appropriation of $900,000 for the new Washington County Penitentiary was recommended.

The governor recommended appropriation of $1,500,000 for the construction of a new university hospital in Baltimore, which is conducted as part of the University of Maryland Medical School.

Construction for hte University of Maryland at College Park in the amount of $200,000 was recommended. This fund would be used for improvements to the buildings at College Park in accordance with a plan to be worked out by the regents of the university.

Completion of the marine laboratory at a cost of $10,000; completion of addition to the Annapolis Emergency Hospital to cost $25,000; improvements at St. Mary's Female Seminary to cost $19,093; remodeling buildings at the Maryland School for the Deaf, $10,000; the completion of rebuilding and remodeling of the State tobacco warehouse, $34,375, and an appropriation of $35,000 for the State forestry department were included in the construction recommendations.

"The budgets for the fiscal years ending September 30, 1932, and September 30, 1933, respectively, are based on the existing laws and in preparing them consideration has been given to several paramount factors which really constitute the budget plan," the governor said.

The first of these considerations is, he said, the necessity not to raise the State tax rate from 25 cents; conservatism in estimating revenues for the next budgetary period; the desirability of leaving in the State treasury a larger cash balance than has been considered necessary in the past, in the event that even conservatively estimated revenues might not all materialize, and limitation of new projects to those of great necessity.

"I am recommending bond issues totaling $6,934,468, of which $4,984,468 will be for general construction at State institutions and $2,000,000 will be for reconstruction of bridges on State highways," he said.

Smith Receiver Hearing In Delaware Deferred

Special to The Washington Post.

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 7.—Hearing on the motion for the appointment of a receiver for the F. H. Smith Co., of Washington and New York, which was set for today, tomorrow and Friday in court of chancery, has been postponed until some time in February. The action against the Smith company was instituted several months ago by Attorney General Reuben Satterthwaite, jr., upon the relation of several stockholders.

The application for the appointment of a receiver pendente lite and also for permission to examine the books of the company, made by complainants, has been abandoned.

Canada's 'Wintry' North Sends Out Spring Tales

Jasper Park, Alberta, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Spring is here. Story No. 1, series of 1931:

Vernon Slitter, schoolboy, walking along Cabin Creek trail, yesterday found three warm robin eggs in a nest in a spruce tree.

Moosejaw, Saskatchewan, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Spring is here. Story No. 2, series of 1931:

Not even the oldest old-timer, hereabouts can remember a winter as mild as this one. Pussywillow is in bloom, robins chirp in the parks and one citizen says hollyhocks in his garden are 6 inches above ground.

NEW LEGISLATURES URGED TO GO SLOW

Governors Warn Convening Bodies Against Too Many Laws.

NEW YORK QUIZ SOUGHT

(Associated Press.)

The mills which grind our State laws began to function in approximately a dozen more States yesterday, but not without some warning that the fewer new laws the better.

In Massachusetts Gaspar G. Bacon, president of the Republican-controlled Senate, warned of "the futility and the danger of attempting to do too much by law."

A somewhat similar thought was left with the New Hampshire Legislature by retiring Gov. Charles W. Tobey, who declared what the country most needed was fewer new laws and more enforcement of the old ones.

It was opening day for the legislatures throughout New England and in New York and Minnesota.

In New York Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democrat, placed on the Republican-controlled Legislature the responsibility of deciding on a general inquiry into the judiciary of New York City.

In Massachusetts a caution was sounded in the House of Representatives by Speaker Leverett Saltonstall against undue expenditure of public money to relieve business depression and unemployment.

In Connecticut, Gov. Wilbur Lucius Cross, Democrat, told a Republican-controlled Legislature the country was foundering in a morass from which the only outlet was repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

In New Hampshire, the House of Representatives convened with one seat vacant—that of the Rev. Napolean J. Gilbert, Catholic priest, who was elected despite his public protestations.

In Minnesota, Floyd B. Olson, in his inaugural address as the State's first Farmer-Labor Party governor, urged repeal of the State newspaper suppression law, under which a newspaper publishing libelous and defamatory matter can be suppressed by court order.

Harry Wardman Announces Plans

As Trial of Suit Ends, He Says He Will Start New Building.

The suit of minority stockholders of the Wardman Mortgage & Discount Corporation, which has been in progress in the Corporation Court, Judge William P. Woolls, presiding, for several weeks, was closed yesterday with arguments on both sides, and was taken under consideration by Judge Woolls.

Harry Wardman, head of the company, was on the stand Tuesday afternoon, and testified that he would start a new development and would at once start work on twelve new houses; that he confidently expected to take care of all the stockholders; that he had put $40,000 in the corporation, owns 500 lots, and has an equity in the old British Embassy in Washington.

He stated that if stockholders of the corporation would "leave him alone" he could make $1,000,000 out of the present assets of the company.

Bill Overruling McCarl Approved by Committee

(Associated Press.)

The House naval committee decided yesterday the comptroller general had erred when he refused to allow naval officers who studied in Europe a $6 a day living allowance.

The officers were ordered to schools in Paris and Madrid. Capt. George W. Steele, jr., advanced $1,674 for expenses of the five officers and Comptroller General McCarl disallowed the amount. The committee approved the Britten bill directing the comptroller to credit Steele's account to that extent.

I. C. C. Is Told Need Of Bus Regulation

Railroad Witness Asserts Same Basis Should Apply to Each.

Chicago, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Equitable conditions can never be obtained between bus and railway companies until bus fares are regulated on the same basis as that applied to railway fares, L. M. Allen, vice president of the Rock Island Lines, testified today before Examiner Leo J. Flynn, of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"At present," Allen continued, "there is no law under which the Government can control bus activities and fares. They operate as they will, on whatever basis they will. They have cut fares until it is impossible for railroads to compete with them.

"As a result, railway profits have been cut to such an extent that it is becoming increasingly difficult to keep up equipment. Railroads can not serve communities along their routes properly if there is little chance of getting a return on investment.

"The only fair manner of adjusting the difference between buses and railroads lies in the Government's regulating bus rates as it does rail rates. Buses run over highways which were laid at public expense, and therefore represent public investment. This investment is just as sacred to the people as our investment in rails and right-of-way is to us."

New York, Jan. 8.—The American Tobacco Co. and its subsidiary, the American Cigar Co., today began their 1931 advertising campaign with the largest volume of newspaper advertising orders in the history of either organization.

The campaign was launched, the companies stated, "because we believe that this year, like 1930, will be a year of bigger business with us." Current sales of Lucky Strike cigarettes and Cremo cigars, it was stated, are "unprecedented."

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Society Likes Hunt Days in Old Virginia

Piedmont, Leased by the Greggs Whole Month, Near Richmond.

AFTER spending December in Orange, Va., Mr. Alexander Gregg has returned to Washington and Mrs. Gregg will return from Orange to join him in a few days.

The Greggs leased Piedmont, the estate of Mrs. Egbert Leigh, of Richmond, for December, and during that time Mr. Gregg, who practices law in Washington, commuted back and forth by plane. Piedmont, located in the hunting section of Virginia, about 90 miles from the Capital, is one of the show places of the State.

Mrs. Gregg, during her residence there, has been indulging her favorite pastime, hunting. An equestrienne of ability, she decided to spend the holiday season in that picturesque country "following the hounds" with nearby hunts. Although Mr. and Mrs. Gregg only took a month's lease on the house, Mrs. Gregg decided to linger in Orange for a short time and is at present staying at a hotel there.

Society, it seems, has definitely taken to liking the great open spaces. Only a month or so ago, Mr. Jouett Todd, of Louisville, Ky., brother of Mrs. S. Parker Gilbert, jr., leased a home on the outskirts of Middleburg for the duration of the hunting season. He has become so charmed with the "blue grass" section of Virginia that he has become established there permanently. Several days ago he purchased one of the old places which he will alter extensively, building stables and making the many improvements which have changed countless old Virginia homes into the most pretentious of country estates.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

TOO LATE.

The Senate has discussed for two days the question whether it may not change its mind in the matter of confirming nominations to the Federal Power Commission. The rules of the Senate provide that a senator voting with the majority may move to reconsider on either of the next two days of actual executive session, but if the President has been notified, the motion to reconsider must be accompanied by a motion to request the President to return the notification to the Senate. The secretary of the Senate is directed not to notify the President within the time allowed for reconsideration, except by order of the Senate.

In the present case the President was notified, and the nominees took office and performed official acts. These acts offended certain senators, who now seek to reverse the vote by which the nominations were confirmed.

The Senate rule providing for reconsideration of a vote on a bill which has been sent to the House requires that the motion to reconsider must be accompanied by a motion to request the House to return the bill, and this motion must be acted upon immediately and without debate. Evidently the Senate in making this rule had in mind the necessity of effecting reconsideration before the House acts upon a bill. If the House has acted, an attempt by the Senate to reconsider would be virtually an attempt to deny legislative authority to the House.

After appointees have been confirmed and have taken office and performed official acts it does not seem proper that they should be exempt from removal or impeachment for several days, while the Senate reserves the right to change its mind and cancel its confirmation of their nomination. There are innumerable instances in which officers have taken office and performed official acts on the day they were confirmed. Are all these official acts subject to nullification by the Senate, and the officers subject to removal by a method not provided in the Constitution? In that event a rule of the Senate becomes paramount to the Constitution.

Common sense seems to terminate the power of the Senate to recall nominations after confirmed officers have taken office and performed official acts, just as the Senate's power to recall a bill seems to terminate after it has gone to the House and the House has acted upon it. Endless confusion would arise if the Senate could exercise the power to cancel official acts of officers duly confirmed and the acts of the House of Representatives.

SLAVERY IN LIBERIA.

Liberia was founded in 1822 as a colony for freed American slaves. With the assistance of American colonization societies the foundation was laid for a black republic. In 1847 Liberia became an independent nation, peopled entirely by the African race, with a constitution patterned after that of the United States.

The State Department now finds it necessary to call Liberia to terms on the question of slavery. The international commission which inquired into the questions of slavery and forced labor found that nearly all the high officials of the Liberian government indulged in the oppression of natives. That government made every effort to withhold information from the commission, and although it promised to follow the commission's advice, no action has been taken. Slavery, it seems, persists in this one country where the abhorrence of slavery would be expected to be strongest.

The United States has great influence over Liberia. Doubtless the ultimatum of the State Department to the effect that the present policy of the Liberian government "will result in final alienation of the friendly feelings which the American Government and people have entertained for Liberia since its establishment" will be sufficient to bring about the desired reforms.

DOLE LEADS TO SOCIALISM.

In America a few radicals are looking steadfastly forward to Government insurance as the cure for unemployment. In Europe the nations which are now "on the dole" are hoping for the abolition of unemployment gratuities. Subsidies to the idle are represented here as a means of industrial salvation. In Europe, where actual operation of the dole is understood through long use, it is known to be one of the chief causes of distress.

Hermann Dietrich, finance minister of Germany, has delivered the most recent indictment of the dole. Unemployment insurance, he says, is a mortal danger to the capitalistic system. The present industrial set-up can not survive if it does not find a means of creating jobs to replace the present scheme of financing idleness. Since Germany is pouring $750,000,000 into the dole fund every year, Minister Dietrich is certainly in a position to speak with authority. He suggests that it would be more profitable to make the dole a premium to employed workers than to continue to pay it to those who do not produce. In other words, why does not the government put to work those man whom it supports? This brings government factories and complete socialism into the perspective.

When a government launches an unemployment system it is headed directly for socialization of industry. When the dole has once been established it is almost impossible to take it away. Yet no government can go on perpetually supporting a considerable portion of its people in idleness. Therefore, the government must create work for them in competition with private enterprise.

European countries which have been on the dole for years are just beginning to realize this. Yet no one could ask for a more convincing demonstration of the fallacies inherent in the system than has been given by Germany and Great Britain. Both nations admit the necessity of getting rid of the dole before industrial prosperity can be restored.

MUSCLE SHOALS SURRENDER.

The House conferees on Muscle Shoals have made an ignominious surrender. For the sake of ending a controversy the majority delegation has forsaken the principles of its party and turned away from its own best judgment. That atrocity known as the Norris resolution for Government operation of Muscle Shoals again becomes a national menace.

Conferees named by the House to work out a compromise between the Senate plan for Government operation of these plants and the House plan for private operation had previously surrendered on almost every point of controversy. But they had refused to consent to the expenditure of Federal money for the construction of power transmission lines. Now they are reported to have weakened on this point. In spite of the steadfast opposition of the Republican party to governmental participation in business, these conferees vote to set the Government up as a generator and distributor of power.

The provision for construction of power transmission lines is the heart of the bill. Several weeks ago the conferees agreed to let the Government operate the power plants, provided it sold power at the switch. But the socialists of the Senate were not satisfied. They demanded that the Government go into the distribution business so that private enterprise could be crowded out of this field and the foundation laid for socialization of the power industry.

The House conferees apparently have capitulated merely to get rid of this troublesome issue. Certainly they could have found no other justification for abandonment of their party's principles. But their surrender will not dispose of the Muscle Shoals question. The Norris resolution is not one to make economical use of Muscle Shoals, but is clearly a power bill, drafted for the express purpose of putting the Government into competition with its own citizens. Instead of being disposed of, the fight will open up along broader lines.

How can the House accept the capitulation of its conferees? Once before the House failed to stand by its convictions on this issue, and it became necessary for President Coolidge to veto the Norris monstrosity. There is good reason to believe that President Hoover will accord it the same treatment, if it ever reaches him. But the House can not afford to surrender to the socialist bloc in this manner. If Republican leaders are on the job, the House will repudiate the action of its conferees and insist on a measure which it can defend before the whole country.

ITALY'S AIR FEAT.

The flight of the Italian air fleet from Orbetello to Brazil constitutes a dramatic demonstration of the progress that has been made in the development of aircraft of recent years. Planes have flown the oceans eastward and westward between Europe and North and South America, each flight serving to demonstrate the worth of a single plane and the ability of its pilot, but the Italian fleet was composed of twelve planes, ten of which completed the crossing safely, each carrying a crew of four men. The success of the venture testifies to the ability of Italian plane and engine makers; it serves to prove to the world that Italian airmen stand in the first rank for courage and skill.

The flight opens a large field for speculation upon the use of aircraft in war. For communication, for the quick transfer of commanding personnel and for scouting it is now demonstrated that military aircraft in formation have the oceans for their field. As this fact dawns upon naval experts they are likely to liberalize their views as to the importance of aviation and grant it an enlarged sphere in naval strategy. Defensive methods must be revised, and the offensive possibilities of air raids will be more thoroughly explored.

The fleet will continue onward in a day or so to Bahia and thence to Rio de Janeiro. When the flight has been concluded a thrilling chapter will have been added to the great book in which is written down the achievements of the aeronauts.

GENIUS TO ORDER.

Prof. Julian Huxley expresses the belief that within two or three generations geniuses can be produced by the proper manipulation of glands. At present less attention is paid to the human machinery than to the perfecting of automobiles, but in the great days to come a child will be placed under special treatment and transformed from an ordinary specimen into a genius.

It is a glowing prospect that is unfolded, however humiliating it may be to present-day humans who have struggled along without benefit of gland treatment, well knowing that they have in them the makings of geniuses. Of course, bearing in mind the present economic breakdown, the specialists of the future will avoid the dangers inherent in mass production. Genius must not be made a drug on the market, whatever happens. On the other hand, steps must be taken to guard against monopoly. Greedy corporations will attempt to gobble up the formula and control the product. The "anti-Sherman act," as it is affectionately termed in the United States Supreme Court, must be kept in full vigor.

One difficulty that will confront the genius-makers is the proper allocation of the product. A genius misplaced is worse than a nongenius. Recent examples of the misapplication of genius ought to serve as reminders of the danger of putting philosophers in charge of third parties and gifted counterfeiters in Congress. Let every genius be fitted to his place, and let him stay there. If he is a genius in buying wheat with Treasury money, let him not aspire to excel in hog-calling or mule-driving. Specialists are useful, but if the future is to turn out Admirable Crichtons there will be no room at the top.

GET RID OF THE BORLAND LAW.

The District Court of Appeals finds against the municipality in the last of the four suits brought to test the legality of the so-called Borland law. In the Johnson case, previously adjudicated, the courts held that the size, shape, improvements or favorable location of the property is not the test to be applied in deciding the validity of an assessment under the front-foot ruling, but rather that the test is the relation of the property to the other properties in the neighborhood. In the more recent Dodge case the court held similarly that the question was not whether the property itself is benefited, but whether other property in the vicinity is equally assessed. Pointing to the variation in depth of the lots in the square in which the Dodge property is located, the court held that the assessment was imposed under a statute that can not be validly applied. The decision, according to Corporation Counsel's office, "practically knocks out the present Borland law, as there are very few places in the city where all the property in the neighborhood is of the same depth."

A new method of making assessments for street and highway improvements must be evolved. The Commissioners have presented a bill to Congress calling for the modification of the Borland law to meet the objections brought by the courts, hearings upon which are now under way, but the proposed new law is nothing more or less than the old law revamped. In view of the comprehensiveness of the objections sustained by the courts against the old law it does not appear likely that any method of making assessments based on a front-foot calculation would be valid. The proposed new law is unsatisfactory, at least in that it would grant the Commissioners wide latitude in the reduction, rebating, adjustment and elimination of assessments. Serious abuses might arise as a result of this clause.

The need is for revision of the method of assessing the cost of street and highway work upon those who are benefited thereby, rather than for the modification of the Borland law. After sixteen years of almost constant litigation it should be obvious that the Borland law is inherently unsound.

HUNGER IN ARKANSAS

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to state a few facts concerning the situation of the people in this drought-stricken country.

Hunger for man and beast stalks unhindered over the great Commonwealth of Arkansas. There is not one man out of ten with food or feed for his stock that will last one week. The Red Cross is helping a little in the matter of food for human consumption. There are some families that are allowed $2 per week, no more; it does not matter how many there are in a family. Men have to work for that on the public roads, but there is no kick on the work; men are willing to work at just anything in order to keep bread for their children.

There are worthy men without anything to eat that are being turned down without a bite. I personally know men walking the roads trying to get any kind of work, but the powers that be locally will not let them work for their Red Cross dole. There is no allowance whatever for any kind of feed for stock. If there is any hard winter ahead any amount of stock will die.

What has come over this grand and glorious Nation of ours that will sit idly by and see men and women, to say nothing of children, go hungry, when there is an abundance to eat stored away, for both man and beast?

There are men who offered their all on a foreign field of battle who now go hungry. Strong men go with the look of some stricken animal, ever watching the newspapers, thinking, hoping, praying that Congress will do something; but they play politics.

What will that $45,000,000 do toward helping the situation? Not a thing. The people now want something to eat; they are willing to work for it, but they are hungry now. To get any of the $45,000,000 they will have to put up all they have and get gilt-edge security on top of all that. Then they can not buy food with that.

The drought-stricken country asked for bread, Congress and the administration gave them a stone.

I am not asking for a single dime's worth for myself. I will get through, but my neighbors can't make it.

I am not belly-aching because I am a Democrat and the administration happens to be Republican. I am a Republican myself. It is the condition of mankind that I am trying to get you to see.

People at Monette, my trade territory, don't want help; that is, the so-called leaders. They say that if the Red Cross or the Government helps the people here it will "knock the locality." They want to keep the property values up to fool some unwary Northern and Eastern buyers of land here. Now, this will bear investigating.

If it was necessary I can or any one else can get a monster petition to present any man or body of men showing the condition of this country and State.

Such conditions as obtain at this time are what breed the hellish conglomeration that infests Russia.

If you are not like all the rest, heartless, bring this to the attention of some one that can and will do something. J. L. BAKER.

MARY WASHINGTON'S HOME.

The quaint little home of Mary Ball Washington is perhaps the most interesting spot in Fredericksburg; it is a simple home, dedicated to his mother by George Washington. • • • It is a well-built little house, according to Marietta Minnigerode Andrews, in "George Washington's Country," and time has made small inroads upon its security. It is in the midst of a dear bit of a garden, a spot in which the independent old lady busied herself mightily with bulbs and slips, digging and pruning and transplanting as is the happy hobby of serene old ladies who still have the will and the wit to advance the world, if only by the growing of two blades of grass instead of one.

This little old house was taken over many years ago by the Society for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities. • • • They not only restored the building, but have year after year seen to it that relics specifically identified with the mother of George Washington should be assembled there in the house her loving son gave her. Like all good housekeepers, Mary Ball Washington loved her own utensils and treasured her ornaments and household goods; and it is pleasant to see that so many of them have come home from the various heirs who received them under her will, and whose descendants have generously restored them to Fredericksburg.

PROGRESS.

Use your eyes and use your brain,
Every day sees something new,
Someone welds a stronger chain;
Someone finds a way to do
This or that in quicker speed,
That or this in better style.
Somewhere for the things we need
Men are working all the while.

There is no such thing as best,
Progress keeps us on the move;
All that seems to meet the test
Somebody will soon improve.
Nothing's fashioned to endure,
Everything must pass away.
All that seems so safe and sure
May be bettered in a day.

Science throws the old aside,
Thinkers find a newer plan.
And when it is proved and tried
All the world is changed for man.
Just a thought and methods old
Are abandoned for the new;
Something else is being sold
Which a thinker learned to do.

Far from finished is the earth,
Far from done the work of man,
Future men will come to birth
Doing what we never can.
Not for long will life remain
In the old accepted groove,
Every record mortals gain
Soon another will improve.

Never Yet Has One Man's Malice Prompted Another to Repent.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THERE is little moral difference between a mob lynching and the ordinary criminal trial in America.

Both are prompted by a thirst for revenge.

Only the enlightened and compassionate few understand the purpose of law, and there is no hope of reform until the people outgrow the savage belief that man has a right to punish man.

When civilization was young and kings claimed equality with the gods or pretended to rule by divine appointment, their right to punish the mere cattle who acknowledged their sovereignty was unquestioned.

Common men had little value, and hanging them was less bother than trying to reform them: Even the insane were tortured to death. It was the easiest way to get rid of nuisances.

The human conscience had little intelligence to guide it.

When subjects grew weary of servitude and fought for and won their freedom, they rid the world of many cruelties and absurdities, but they retained many of the old customs and traditions.

They couldn't start at scratch and build a new world to match their new freedom.

They didn't know how. They weren't enlightened enough or decent enough. The most they could do was to substitute a majority of themselves for a king and carry on in the only way they knew.

"The State" had meant the king; now it meant the people—not all the people, but the particular sect or faction or party that constituted the majority.

The majority ruled, and the majority retained the right to punish.

But since it is absurd to suppose that a political or geographical boundary can define morality, if we assume that the majority in a State has the right to punish men, merely because it is a majority, then we must concede an equal moral right to any majority—to the majority in a county or town—to three men in any group of five. If three men were marooned on an island, two of them would have the moral right to punish the third for disobeying them.

The assumption that one man or any group of men has the right to punish another is offensive alike to reason and to decency.

The right to confine an evil man is obvious, for men have a right to protect themselves. To confine dangerous men is just and reasonable; to attempt their reformation is both sensible and decent.

But you can't reform men by assuming the right to punish them in revenge for their wrongdoing.

PRO AND CON

Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great Show, "Politics," Staged in Congress.

Gov. Smith on Unemployment.
New York World.

In the first of his series of weekly articles, which appeared in yesterday's World, former Gov. Smith offered some practical suggestions for dealing with unemployment which are clearly based on his own experience as a legislator, an executive and a public-spirited citizen. Mr. Smith believes that there are very definite limits to the relief which the national, State and local governments can accomplish at present by their programs of public works, because of the tendency of legislative bodies to define too closely the manner in which the funds are to be expended, and he comes emphatically to the support of Mr. Hoover in the recent controversy between the President and the Senate over the allocation of the appropriations for new construction.

But if the maximum benefit is to be obtained from this public works program it should be planned in advance of the coming of unemployment. "In times of plenty," says the former governor, "provide for the day of want."

Politics Never Adjourns.

Unfortunately, the record of this session to date does not encourage the hope that most of these days to come will be devoted to expediting the public business, with "politics adjourned." That pledge of cooperation now reposes in the congressional waste basket, along with other mere "scraps of paper."

Everybody's a Third Party.
Chicago Tribune.

Senator Walsh, as a Democrat, resents the action of Mr. Lucas as a Republican campaign manager in his efforts to defeat Senator Norris, a Republican, and to elect Mr. Hitchcock, a Democrat. Mr. Lucas' objection as a Republican to Mr. Norris as a Republican is that Mr. Norris worked for Al Smith, a Democrat, against Herbert Hoover, a Republican. Mr. Walsh was for Mr. Smith and against Mr. Hoover, but for Mr. Norris and against Mr. Hitchcock.

There is much production of newspaper copy, but none of it tends to a real clarification. Mr. Norris ran against a Democrat. Mr. Lucas worked for a Democrat. Mr. Norris isn't a Republican. Mr. Lucas is. Party lines in Washington look like hay wire. The Senate's response to the third party movement could be the showing of 30 of them. Wherever there's a hat there's a party.

Pinchot's Defeat.
Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Members of the State Senate, at the outset of the new session of the General Assembly, by their reelection of Senator Dalx as president pro tempore in the face of the determined opposition of the governor-elect, have served formal notice upon Mr. Pinchot to stay on his own side of the fence. This action was in effect a definite and clear-cut assertion of the principle of the constitutional separation of the executive and the legislative functions of the State government, and an intimation that there are bounds beyond which the executive shall not be allowed to cross in dictating the policies and decisions of the lawmaking department.

Misplaced Labels.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Building and Loan Associations Conserve Savings and Make Cottager Independent.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The nation-wide celebration of a century of activities of building and loan associations has inspired general newspaper comment and formed the subject of an intellectual effort some days ago by Mr. Coolidge.

In addition to the many good things said about that form of business venture as a promoter of national welfare in encouraging thrift, it should also be emphasized that in assisting people who work for a living to become land proprietors, it measurably fortifies labor against the land monopolist and the whims of the capitalist.

More power to such associations as one of the nation's conservators of the savings of the people, and as one of the strongest bulwarks against poverty and pauperism. The sharp pangs of business depression and unemployment are not so keenly felt by the humblest cottager as they are by the landless. He is not unduly perturbed when rents, wages and interest get out of adjustment and business, generally, goes down the hill, bucking and back-firing and rattling to pieces like a forlorn Model T.

The fundamental cause of poverty and the periodic depressions in business are attributed by at least one school of economic thought, not to underconsumption or overproduction, but to the constant pressure of the unearned increment of rent arising from a monopoly of land—the basic factor in the production of wealth and comprehending the soil and other natural resources.

Everybody Wants to Know the Answer to This Question—Who Got the Money That Everybody Lost?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When a billion dollars is knocked out of stock market valuations somebody gets the money. It seems to be agreed that in so far as actual value is concerned there is just as much of it in this country now as there was in 1929, at the peak of stock prices, the difference being that distribution has been materially cut down. Seven out of every ten, in the 1929 market, have either been "cleaned" completely or "badly bent," but it goes without saying that somebody got our money, and I think I voice the natural curiosity of a good many of your readers in desiring to know who it was. I am not in favor of increasing income taxes on the average John or Mary, but it does seem to me that those that "cleaned up" in the 1929 bull and 1930 bear markets ought to be tickled to death to do a good turn for the war veterans of 1918 and donate the cash necessary to get the boys through the present depression. Certainly it is not going to hurt the country to take it away from those that made it in such large wads as it has been made during 1929 and 1930.

Won't you please publish this letter, so that I can get a little light on what I consider an inquiry of considerable interest to very many of your devoted readers.

Circles Make Washington Traffic Problem Different From That of Western Cities.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With regard to your editorial, "Sluggish Local Traffic," I beg to call your attention to the fact that Western cities are laid off in squares—streets at right angles making traffic problems less difficult than here in the Capital. The circles here at intersections of streets and avenues not only confuse, but render the traffic question very slow and difficult for strangers as well as residents.

When the planning of the city was laid out by Maj. L'Enfant such difficulties were not thought of, but, fortunately, wide streets were planned for the requirements of the city of the future—and our older cities with narrow streets are obliged to confront other traffic problems.

Is it not better to save a life than to save a minute? Can our automobile drivers not understand that safety first is more to be deserved than speed? M. WEBB.

Pilgrims and Puritans.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In reading the story of "Boyhood of Gen. Leonard A. Wood" in The Post of January 4, I notice the statement that Gen. Wood was "born of parents descended from Puritan stock who settled in Massachusetts from decks of the Mayflower."

The Pilgrims came over in 1620. The ancestors of Gen. Wood were among that little band of God-fearing men.

The Puritans came over much later, and should not be confounded with the Pilgrims.

As a member of the Society of Mayflower Descendants, I wish to correct the above statement.

U. S. EMPLOYMENT RECORDS INCREASE

Idle Factories Shown to Be Resuming Work; Place Big Steel Order.

MANY REGIONS REPORT

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The delicate needle on the gauge of national employment shot upward today under the pressure of encouraging news. Industry in every section of America began answering in brighter tones than it has hummed for many months.

A survey by the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce showed sixty-nine concerns there planning to increase their payrolls this month. One thousand employes already have been recalled by one clothing company.

The Beech Grove repair shops of the Big Four Railroad, at Indianapolis, reopened today with 1,910 men having the encouraging prospect of steady 8-hour-a-day employment five days a week. Six hundred workmen returned to jobs at the Ford plant in Indianapolis.

Upturn Noted.

The first weekly steel trade reviews today noted a sharp business upturn. Ingot production, placed at 41 per cent of its rated capacity, was reported by Iron Age to have recovered its December losses. Automobile steel, railroad steel, tin plate and structural tonnage are contributing most to current mill activity, the magazine said.

The Pennsylvania Railroad announced placing orders for 200,000 tons of steel rail for the year, the contracts at present prices totaling $8,500,000. Expenditures for attachments—frogs, switches, tie plates—will bring the expenditure to more than $15,000,000. Fifteen per cent of the rail order is for immediate delivery.

Shops of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, which have been shut down several weeks, reopened with more than 1,000 skilled workmen returning. About 1,500 men went to work in Newark, where steam shovels are being replaced by hand labor to create more jobs on a city railway project.

Plant Reopens.

The RCA-Victor Co. plant at Camden, N. J., reopened after a month's suspension, affecting about 4,000 workers. There were numerous increases in employment in New England.

On the West Coast similar optimistic reports were heard. Between 2,000 and 3,000 workers heard the promise of employment soon in the Los Angeles area, by reason of the expansion of fourten industrial plants and the opening of eleven new concerns.

Oklahoma plants of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. are to be expanded. The plants showed an increase of 90 per cent in employment last month.

In Augusta, Ga., railroad shops there was a pick-up of employment today. Two hundred and fifty shopmen returned to work at the Georgia Central shops after a three weeks' lay-off.

Mayor Miller of St. Louis ordered the construction of a $4,000,00 municipal auditorium as the first step in the city's program for relief in the building trades.

Indian Delegate Decries Distrust

Asserts British Incapable of Either "Ruling or Getting Out."

London, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Indian delegates to the round table conference today challenged British distrust of the British Conservative party, as expressed in the speech of Sir Samuel Hoare yesterday, of their country's readiness for responsible government.

Ma Jinnah, one of the most influential of the representatives of India, declared British statesmanship will be proven bankrupt if the Indian problem is not settled before the end of the present parley. Sir Samuel said he had found the elements for a responsible government do not at present exist in India.

Ma Jinnah said there is in India one solid body of people standing for complete independence and another for a complete dominion status. Britain's task, he contended, is to win the majority to a liberal offer for future government. He referred to an old British saying in India that the British must rule there or get out, and he cried: "You can neither rule India nor get out." Sir Bhupendra Mitra said there was no question whatever of repudiation of the Indian public debt.

Lease Family Meets Third Fire Casualty

Lease's brother, Frederick G. Lease, was burned to death last June when an airplane in which he was a passenger crashed while taking off at the old airport near Cresaptown. William H. Kelly, pilot of the ship, who married a sister of the Lease's, also was burned to death.

EXPOSE OF SLAVERY IN LIBERIA IMPENDS

State Department Awaits Voluntary Move Toward Its Abolition.

PRESSURE MAY BE USED

(Associated Press.)

A move by the Liberian government toward abolition of slavery was awaited by the State Department last night as the American Government prepared to publish a full report of the investigation of slavery conditions in the Negro republic.

Undersecretary Cotton said the department had not yet received a reply to its demand upon Liberia on November 17 that slavery be abolished and those responsible for it brought to account.

The demand was contained in a memorandum handed to the Liberian Consul General at Baltimore for communication to his government. President King and Vice President Yancy of Liberia resigned after the memorandum was presented to the Liberian Legislature.

Aside from bringing pressure of public opinion through publicity, State Department officials have not yet determined the course to be taken in insisting upon compliance. Officials discredited suggestions of forcible intervention. Diplomatic pressure through the American legation at Monrovia was being considered, however.

Harvey Firestone, jr., of the Firestone Rubber Co., of Akran, Ohio, holder of large rubber concessions in Liberia, urged State Department officials to insist that their demands be carried out.

The Sharp memorandum, based on the report of a commission of investigation to be made public Saturday by the department, probably will be sent to American missions abroad. At their discretion, American Ambassadors and Ministers may furnish it to interested foreign offices as showing the position of the American Government.

The Public Health Service at the request of the State Department has recalled a surgeon sent to Liberia last year, because it was said he had been unable to secure cooperation.

Robbers Kill Merchant; Three Men Are Seized

Lexington, N. C., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Three men were arrested as suspects today as Lexington County and South Carolina sought the slayers of B. W. Hendrix, 42, merchant, shot to death by bandits last night. Two of the three men arrested were taken in Lexington, after officers found blood on their automobile's running board. They gave their names as P. F. Matthews, of Bennettsville, S. C., and W. C. Seamore, itinerant Georgia sign painter.

The third man, resident of Lexington, was held in jail here. Officers refused to divulge his identity. Hendrix was slain in a gun battle with four masked men who entered his store.

NAIL IT UP In Your Office

Calvin Coolidge Says:

When I was a boy in the hills of Vermont, 12 miles from the railroad, the only merchandise I saw was in the country store. But my horizon was widened by certain publications containing pictures and descriptions of things that appealed to youth. I read and bought. The man who supplied them became rich and died a great philanthropist. He advertised.

It is essential in the first instance to make good merchandise. But that is not enough. It is just as essential to create a desire for it. That is advertising.

The person or association of persons who can produce that combination of excellence and demand is performing a real public service. They enlarge the mental horizon and provide new forms of utility and beauty. The material benefits pass over into spiritual benefits. Culture and charity are the by-products.

A country that is spending $2,000,000,000 annually in the production and application of beauty lotions has resources with which to make large purchases of what it concludes it wants. The only way for the people to become acquainted with what they want is through judicious advertising. Goods not worth advertising are not worth selling.

THE Radio Commission received two jolts this week from the District Court of Appeals. The first was when the order issued by the commission, fought by stations WHAS, Louisville, and WHAM, Rochester, providing for the shift in frequencies of 26 cleared channel stations with the announced objective of eliminating cross-talk interference was held void.

The second reversal was when the Court held that the 40 short-wave frequencies previously assigned to Universal Wireless Communications, Inc., now defunct, must be reallocated among the appellants. The court thus prevents the commission from converting these channels to other purposes, threatened at one time.

The reassignment of these short waves are therefore limited to RCA Communications, Inc., the Mackay Radio & Telegraph Co., and the Wireless Telegraph & Communications Co.

ALSO reflecting court action the validity of the radio law will not likely be threatened again for some time as a result of the refusal of the United States Supreme Court to give an opinion on it in prolonged cases involving two Chicago broadcasters. Likewise, the claim of broadcasters of a vested right in the ether received a distinct setback.

Dr. William Knowles Cooper, in the Sons of American Revolution broadcast, will speak over WJSV tonight at 8:15 o'clock. Dr. Thomas Edward Green also will speak.

The speech of Jouett Shouse, of the Democratic national committee, at the Jackson Day dinner in Springfield, Mo., will be relayed East tonight (WJZ network, 10 o'clock).

A portion of the annual banquet of the National Sojourners Club in Washington will go on the air tomorrow night.

JACK DEMPSEY will assume the role of an oracle in the studios of Station WTIC, of Hartford, at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday night, January 13, when he promises to answer the fifteen most provocative questions put to him in advance by members of the radio audience.

This broadcast will come into Washington over the WBAL Baltimore wave length as WBAL and WTIC alternate in using the same wave. Jack has signed for a series of programs to be transmitted over a national network late this winter.

Dr. Lee de Forest, upon his return from California, said that he was surprised with the television progress made during the past six months at a laboratory in New Jersey.

"When I left last spring, the images were only small heads," he said. "They flickered and faded. But now I saw street cars, automobiles and people on the streets via a television screen."

Jane Interprets the Mode

The popular cowl neck, the peplum and the unusual manner of introducing fullness into this lovely black satin gown give it distinction. (Courtesy of Redfern, Paris.)

Paris, Jan. 7.

THE one thing a truly lovely lady is very, very careful about, I have noticed, is the way her cosmetics are applied. She knows that whether her make-up looks crude and glaring or whether it is something subtly and unostentatiously a part of herself, depends solely upon the way she applies it.

Naturally, all of us know that we can get face powder, rouge, lipstick and any other aids to beauty we need in shades that are blended especially to enhance our individuality. We have been told how to apply our rouge in order to give our face the most attractive contours. We have been told that if our lipstick is warm when we apply it, we will avoid all that uneven, blotchy look that hard lipstick will produce. And now, beauty specialists from that place where beauty is paramount, Vienna, have discovered for us a method of applying face powder smoothly and easily.

For this purpose they have invented a little brush. This is about an inch high of white camel's hair, and mounted in gayly painted wood. It is easy to hold and fascinating to use. And the results—perfect! This dainty little brush, soft as your ermine collar, blends your complexion as no ordinary powder puff ever could!

* * * *

O-oh, I hope this Peruvian what's-it doesn't decide to scamper through my nightmares—fascinating though it is!

* * * *

You don't always have to be an artist to see what "line" can do for an otherwise simple frock, for it is "line" that makes the Redfern gown I have sketched for you today so lovely and so distinguished. It is of black satin this gown, with an unevenly draped cowl neck, a draped peplum that is higher on one side than the other, and an incrusted skirt that brings the skirt fullness well to the front. And isn't the shirring on the left shoulder unusual, and aren't the flowing sleeves the gracious, proper ones for this kind of gown?

* * * *

I went out one day with lots 'n' lots of francs in my best purse, and the first thing I saw was an adorable Agnes hat. So-o-o, that's what happened to my lots 'n' lots of francs. But I had the hat, and I put it right on and went on strolling. And it rained. And poured. And deluged. Of course, I gave my lovely hat up for lost and wished I was where I could shed bitter tears for those lots 'n' lots of francs. But a day or so later I picked up my hat from where I had carelessly thrown it—and it was as good as new! Honestly, the rain hadn't spoiled it a bit. Naturally, I wondered if all my readers wouldn't be thrilled to death to own such a hat, so Mamzelle and I worked and experimented and twisted and turned—and found out that it's the simplest thing in the world to crochet this hat, if you have my illustrated leaflet, with its clear and technical terms that any one can understand—which you may have by sending your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post. Hurry, I know you'll want several of these for your spring wardrobe.

Au revoir!

What Today Means to You

"CAPRICONI."

IF JANUARY 8th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to noon, and from 6:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 10 a. m., and from 2:30 p. m. to 4 p. m.

The astrological picture indicates that an atmosphere of pessimism and worry will overshadow you January 8, and it will be a poor time for attempting those things which require clear thinking. Be careful of what you enter into in the way of contracts and agreements.

The child born on this January 8 will have eyes to see the beautiful things in life, and the heart to feel them. It will be unselfish, and ready to be of service to the world, in whatever capacity it is most fitted. It will have an extremely well balanced nature, and a great fund of common sense.

If you join the ranks of those whose birthdays fall on a January 9, you do not expect the impossible of life, but you aim to win through fair play and honest effort, your share of success and happiness. If anything, you pitch your expectations too low, and are always surprised and grateful when you find unexpected and bountiful returns flowing in. You put other people on pedestals, but you never climb there yourself. Modesty is both your curse and your charm—your lack of self-advertising advances you in certain planes of living and good breeding, but in the competitive world, it is a decided detriment. You do not pull your own strings, when it would boost you to do so.

You give a great deal of love to the world; the love which makes you a friend to the under dog, and a pal to every child; the love which makes you a loyal and devoted companion; and the passionate love which makes you a glorious sweetheart to the man or woman of your heart. You win through industry and common sense that which others win through a more subtle wit or spectacular brain.

You have very domesticated tastes, and you seek most of your pleasures within the home. Most of your plans and efforts center around your home and those within it. You will never, on your own accord, seek foreign fields.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

ON Memorial Day I planted some geraniums which so far have bloomed three times. I water them generously and they get some afternoon sun, not much, however. Please tell me why they do not bloom.

MRS. G. C. B.

Geraniums must be kept on the dry side. As your plants are in pots, they should be watered only every other day. In order to develop blooms they must be in the sun at all times. Better move them to a place where they will have both morning and afternoon sun.

Does the daphne (garland flower) bloom in the fall as well as in the spring? HARRIET T. L.

Yes. In May the daphne oneorum or garland flower is covered with flowers. Later, in the fall, it will bloom again; the flowers at this season are not affected by frost and frequently can be picked in early December. This is a wonderful little evergreen plant which has become very popular within the last few years, due to the pleasing fragrance of the blossoms, which are such a beautiful shell-pink color. It grows about one foot high, but spreads over a space of 2 feet.

I have just bought two chrysanthemum plants, which we have been enjoying in the house. When the plants are through blooming, can they be planted outdoors with my hardy chrysanthemums, provided the ground is not frozen? CARRIE E. B.

Yes.

Please tell me whether I should remove the mulch from newly planted evergreens at this time. I set out the plants in the early spring and they have all done well. A neighbor tells me that leaving the mulch in place in the winter is likely to start up a deadly decay of some sort. Is she correct? MRS. HARRY V. T.

No. It is a good practice to cover the ground around evergreens with a mulch of well-rotted manure or peat moss during the entire year, especially when they are young or newly transplanted as yours are.

I am planning to build in the spring and I will have quite a lot of hedge planting to do when my house is completed. Please tell me at least three species of low-growing hedge plants from which to choose. I think there must be other varieties besides privet. MRS. THOMAS T. R.

Anthony Waterer spirea can be kept eighteen inches high by frequent pruning and will produce a mass of flowers all summer if trimmed after each crop of flowers. The foliage of this plant is beautiful. Box barberry is another desirable low-growing, interesting, little plant. This plant is much like the Japanese barberry except that it can be kept as low as three inches. It has long roots, which necessitate careful planting. Of course, for general boundary planting there is nothing better than California privet. The rugosa rose makes an excellent blooming hedge. Unlike many other roses, this one is free from insect pests and diseases. The flowers, according to the variety chosen, are white, crimson or pink.

Please tell me when to transplant a palm and a rubber plant which need transplanting very badly, both plants having been in their present containers for at least five years.

KSIE T. P.

You may transplant either of these plants at any season.

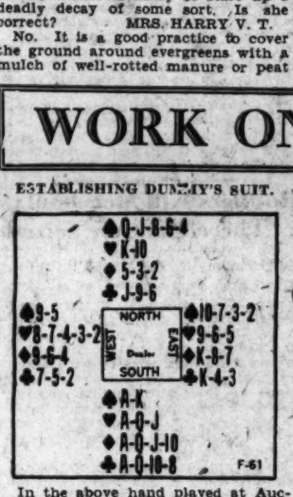
WORK ON BRIDGE

ESTABLISHING DUMMY'S SUIT.



In the above hand played at Auction Bridge, South would bid one No Trump, which would end the auction.

Played at Contract Bridge, South, having a count of 28, would bid four No Trumps; and North, having a count of 7 and a five-card suit headed by Queen-Jack, doubtless would bid for the small slam.

When the hand was played, the small slam was bid, but South failed to make it. A Heart was led and dummy's King won the first trick. Reasoning that Diamonds was his strongest suit, Declarer then led a Diamond and took the finesse; but not being able to get back in dummy, was obliged to lead Clubs from his own hand and East's King won dummy's Jack. East returned his partner's Heart and South had to lead the Queen of Diamonds to the last trick, East's King winning; as the King of Clubs also won, Declarer failed to make his contract.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

A small slam was very easy for the Declarer to make; and with the King of Clubs in the right place, thirteen tricks could be won, although it would add only 50 points to the Declarer's score, as only the small slam was bid.

The proper play of the hand was to win the first (Heart) trick in the South hand and lead the Ace and King of Spades to unblock for dummy. Then put dummy in with the King of Hearts and cash the three established Spades, South discarding the Queen, Jack and Ten of Diamonds—not Clubs. With Jack-Nine in dummy, the Club suit is of the same strength as the Diamonds; but the Club distribution is better for finessing. After running the Spades, lead the Jack of Clubs and the thirteen tricks are assured whether East covers or not.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

A Husband's Rights.

MEN have the weirdest ideas about their importance. Some of them have not yet awakened to the fact that they are fast going out of style entirely. A few more years and woman will be passing laws for pensioning unattached and therefore indigent males. The whole works will belong to woman and man will just appear when a buzzer sounds. And then he will jump.

Meanwhile he would do well to mind his step and mend his manners. His day is almost done. The woman alone is accepted as regulation in theater, restaurant and hotel. Escorts are no longer the necessary evil they once were. Woman goes and comes as she pleases. If she takes a man along it is because he happens to be an exceptional man or there is going to be dancing. And presently dancing will go. And the stag line will form—outside. Man has been weighed in the balance and found wanting. Where once he was needed to carry things he is now no longer a necessity. Merely a luxury. But he has not made the grade from necessity to luxury. He is still uncouth and far from luxurious. He yawns. He looks at watches. He stamps around. He throws things. He has not the wit to take his cue and make himself indispensable. He is still crowding the scene. And his fate is sealed. Forever.

And yet he takes pen in hand and delivers himself of a self-directed panegyric like this:

Dear Frances McDonald:

For the benefit of some of your benighted female correspondents, I would like to say a few words on the respective rights of man and woman in marriage. Most of the wives who find expression in your column seem unfamiliar with history. Certainly nothing in the history of their sex would justify their unreasonable claims upon man.

Man has raised woman from the estate to which she rightly belongs—that of slave. She was created in the first place to serve man and to see to his comfort. She was never appointed his supervisor, guardian or keeper. She was a trouble-maker and busybody from the start and should have been relegated back to whatever limbo produced her in the first place. But because of man's needs she was suffered to remain. For utilitarian purposes solely. The bearing and rearing of young, keeping of the home and other activities. Because of her limited duties she was given little if any judgment, intelligence or reason. Man had to develop what scant powers were hers. And now she rises up to declare herself his equal, to claim title with him to the earth. On what ground? And she goes even further. She attempts to rule man, to legislate his acts and liberties, to question his goings and comings, to dictate to him. And for most part he, poor weakling, allows it.

No woman, simply because some man has made her a wife, should be allowed to dictate the conduct of that man. No law should permit her to, yet the law joins with her in specifying correct conduct for the "married" man. And directing penalties for deviation from such specified conduct. Man has meekly borne all this because of his liberality. But now it is time for him to admit that a limit has been reached; that a new regime is in order. It is no longer necessary for each man to have a woman to prepare his food and perform similar service. Let him then do away with marriage. Let him put woman back where she belongs. Instead of spending his days trying to please her, let him ignore her existence. Let him once more rule the earth. Let him exercise his rights. Let him enjoy the freedom that was once his. Let him possess the earth—and rule woman.

HOMO.

All right, Mr. Homo, we will let him! In fact, no one has ever tried to stop him. It was he who was miserable in Eden! And even after the apple episode he did not suggest getting rid of Eve! And he never will. So let him! Let him!

YOUR NAME
What Does It Mean?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

The family name "Mears" has come down to us from several quite different sources. In most cases it is derived from the old English "mere," meaning "a pool" or "a pond," and indicates an original place of residence. Sometimes its source is the old English "gemaere" which means "the boundary." When it is derived from this second source it generally implies that the persons who were first so called had their residences near the boundary paths or roads which separated two estates. Finally, this name has sometimes been assumed by families which were originally called "Mayer," "Meyer," "Meara," or "O'Meara." The Hundred Rolls mentions a Gregory le la Mere and a William ad le Meere.

The family name "Mayer" (also spelled "Mayor") is sometimes derived from the French "Maire" or "Lemaire." Since its ultimate source is the Latin "maior," its real meaning is "the greater man." As is well known, the expression has been adopted as the title of the chief official of a city. In English-speaking countries, however, "Mayer" and "Mayor" have frequently been adopted as Anglicized forms of the German "Meyer."

The family name "Meyer" is of German origin. Although its ultimate source is the same as the English "Mayor" and the French "Maire," it generally has the extended meanings of "steward," "bailiff," and "farmer."

The personal name "Phoebe" is ultimately of Greek origin, and means "shining."

The family name "Giesing" (also spelled "Giesing") is of German origin, and means "the son of Giso." "Giso" (also spelled "Kiso") was an old personal name meaning "the spear."

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood—Filmtown goins-on:

The few pictures that have been on wide film will not be followed by others, this year at least.

INA CLAIRE
in talkie equipment.

The main reason is that too few theaters have equipment to show them, making the cost of production almost prohibitive.

Many theater owners have refused to install machinery to exhibit the so-called grandeur film because they are still making payments on their talkie equipment.

Change the Title.

Because the public isn't interested in movies about kings and queens, the title of a picture has been altered because it suggested a story about royal characters.

The story is "The Royal Family," which has been made into a picture from the stage play with Ina Claire, Fay Brian, and Frederic March in the main roles. It is about the stage's royalty—the Barrymores, of course—and has nothing to do with kings, queens, or even jacks, in their literal sense.

The movie title will be "The Royal Family of Broadway."

It is perhaps a little late to mention it, but Hollywood boulevard, the main street, failed to see a Christmas spectacle that is typical of filmland artificiality.

In past years, to give the children as well as the grown-ups a treat, a reindeer drawn sleigh was pulled down the avenue with two actors as passengers—one of them dressed as Santa, the other playing straight. Preceding the sleigh was a movie-lighted machine puffing gusts of artificial snow.

The reason for the discontinuance of the stunt was not made known. It is suspected that no players could be found who would wear whiskers.

A Chance to Gossip.

Hollywood had something more to talk about when two stars who are said to have not spoken to each other since their engagement was broken two years ago were cast in the same picture.

Their names are Clara Bow and Gary Cooper.

A prankish statistician has figured out what should Providence see fit to recall Venus de Milo to this mundane sphere, she would take her place among the unemployed if she came to Hollywood.

The once lovely Venus would be described in movie terms as "Amazon size," "extra large," or "distorted."

Grace Moore Wins Praise With Zecchi at Musicale

Grace Moore, soprano of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, and Carlo Zecchi, Italian pianist, were the soloists who appeared in a joint program in Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's musical morning at the Hotel Mayflower yesterday.

Miss Moore, who has many admirers in Washington among those who enjoy vocal artists, was in excellent voice and the audience was very enthusiastic, especially about her singing of two operatic arias, "Mi Chicamano Mimi," from "La Boheme," and "Depuis le Jour," from "Louise." In a group of French ballads she delighted the audience with her dainty phrasing and expressive interpretation. The English group also brought Miss Moore an ovation.

The advance notices regarding Carlo Zecchi as an outstanding pianist of Europe, were justified in his part of the concert. His agility in fingering, impeccable technique, beautiful singing tone and unfailing virtuosity made his artistic merit apparent in a varied program, which included a Vivaldi concerto; three sonatas by D. Scarlatti, J. S. Bach's "Organ Toccata in C Major" and a Paganini-Liszt group, which brought forth much applause from the audience.

The artists at Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's forty-ninth musical morning at the Mayflower next Wednesday will be Mme. Claudia Muzio, dramatic soprano of the Chicago Opera Company, and Alfredo San Malo, violinist.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

PROBLEMS OF YOUTH.

Most of us in looking back over the past can not help but feel that the teens were the most difficult years of all.

It was then that we became aware of the conflict between the life of our own generation and the behavior which our elders expected of us.

It was then that we knew our most intense religious experiences, our most painful doubts and the necessity, never again so urgent, for finding some ideal order in the universe.

Nothing was settled for us. From the confusion of ethics, religion and standards of conduct which surrounded us on every hand, we somehow had to evolve an order and philosophy of our own.

Any swiftly changing society must put upon its youth this excessive burden. Social conditions in our own country have never changed more quickly than during the last few decades.

More than ever is it useless to try to hand down to children any set patterns of belief and conduct. No matter whether we like it, the conditions of modern life make it necessary for youths to make their own choices.

All we can do is to prepare them to choose as wisely as possible.

We can set before them the example of mature, self-disciplined adults who courageously meet their own life problems. We can free them to meet their problems in the light of this example and in the light of their own experience helped always by a feeling of security and sympathy in the home environment.

Such a program should prevent at least some of the conflicts and mistakes for which youth pays so heavily in wasted years and energy. It should to a large extent prevent false starts and irrevocable commitments to courses which must bring too heavy penalties.

UNIQUE SALAD DRESSINGS.

(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

Sour Cream Salad Dressing. teaspoon mustard
teaspoon salt
teaspoon paprika
tablespoons sugar

eat the eggs until very light, add other ingredients, and cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly until thickened. Remove from the fire and beat well. If this dressing is cooked properly, it will have when cold a thick, smooth consistency. If it is overcooked so that there is a tendency to separate, it should be strained before cooling.

Cheese Dressing for Salads.

Neufchatel or cream cheese cup salad oil to 4 tablespoons lemon juice
teaspoon salt
Tabasco sauce, onion juice, a bit of garlic, or grated horseradish for seasoning.

Wash up the cheese, add the oil, and beat with a Dover egg beater. The mixture curdles at this point, but add the other ingredients and continue beating until the mixture is smooth and creamy. Use this dressing in the same way as any other salad dressing. For fruit salads it is particularly delicious if whipped cream is added.

Endurance Fliers Flee From Storm

Women Aviators Plan to Pass Night Soaring Above Desert.

Los Angeles, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—A storm brewing off the Pacific Coast sent the endurance plane, Lady Ralph, and its two fliers, Bobbie Trout and Edna May Cooper, in full flight for better weather late today. With their refueling ship they beat a hasty retreat southeast to Imperial Valley, planning to spend the night soaring over the desert near El Centro.

When they left Los Angeles at 2:30 p. m., they had passed the 72d hour of their attempt to break the world endurance refueling record of 645 hours. The young women trusted to luck in their decision to leave the home airport. If forced down at any point other than the airport here, their flight will have been vain and the women's endurance refueling record they exceeded on the second day will still stand.

But with all their troubles, the day was a happy one in the narrow cabin. It was the twenty-fifth birthday anniversary of Bobbie Trout and celebration was in order.

The Navy Department will investigate the collision in New York Harbor yesterday between the battleships Alabama and Kentucky, in which both were damaged.

More than 200 members of the Bartenders League attended the installation of officers and the annual banquet in Arion Hall, Eighth and D streets northwest yesterday afternoon.

All guests of the National Hotel were saved early this morning when fire damaged the building to the extent of about $15,000. The alarm was quickly spread by hotel employes, enabling guests to flee to safety.

The kaiser is said to have given up the idea of presenting an oil portrait of himself as a wedding present to Miss Alice Roosevelt and will probably send instead a complete dinner set of royal Berlin China.

Clarence Darrow, noted Chicago lawyer, yesterday advocated the closed shop principle in an address under auspices of the Peoples Church in Pythian Temple. He spoke in connection with the local strike of printing and typographical unions.

GOOD ROADS IN PANAMA.

WITHIN ten years good roads have been built over much of the Republic of Panama. If present plans are continued the end of the just beginning decade will see a national highway from the Costa Rican border on the northwest to the Colombian border on the southeast, with feeder lines at intervals. Within the Canal Zone there are the newly constructed Madden highway and various paved roads joining together different posts and towns. A proposed continuation of the Madden highway, together with the Panama-Summitt road, will form the American Interoceanic highway.

The development of these great highway systems is proving both disadvantageous and healthful from the health standpoint. The residents of the Zone, for whose health our Government is responsible, are being exposed to smallpox, malaria and other diseases because of the newly created currents of travel between the Zone and the interior. Protecting the health of our Zone population is certain to be more difficult and expensive. On the other hand, the people of the Panamanian interior ore learning how to care for their health. In every Panamanian village the authorities have dug at least one village well. The larger towns have put in public water supplies with water mains, piping, bath tubs and toilets. In these larger places there are sewage systems. In the smaller villages every house has a newly erected sanitary privy. In a few there are health departments and an occasional community has a small hospital.

A resident tells me that it is easy to note the elevation of standards which follow the completion of a highway into a new town and across a new section. They are justified in expecting better health and less communicable disease among the population away from the zone. And when that day comes, the health of the canal workers can again be maintained with ease. Thus works the law of compensation. Temporary misfortune often become ultimate gains.

Sports Boom In Colleges On Coast

Survey Shows Tendency to Expand, Not Curtail.

Decrease in Receipts Small; Night Games Aid in Rockies.

(This is another of a series of stories based on an Associated Press survey of college athletic conditions.)

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The undefeated football machines of Alabama and Notre Dame, rather than any effects of business depression, handed far Western football its biggest jolt of the sensational gridiron season just closed.

The East and South may make the most of this competitive deflation, after many a lean year. Otherwise, so far as the Associated Press survey of college athletic conditions is concerned, the colleges and universities of the far West have enjoyed a prosperous year, on the whole.

"The tendency at Washington, and I believe at all other schools in the Pacific Northwest, is to expand rather than curtail," Earl Campbell, graduate manager at the University of Washington, told the Associated Press.

Great Future Seen On Coast.

"We all see a great future in this region. Interest in football seems to hit different sections of the country at different times. First it took hold in the East and Middle West and then it surged out to California. It now has jumped to the Pacific Northwest and we expect to see several years of capacity crowds."

Significant of this exceptional growth is the fact that plans are under way to enlarge the stadia in Seattle and Portland, where record crowds of 42,000 and 35,000, respectively, saw featured college games last season.

There will be no curtailment of 1931 athletic programs at the California "Big Three"—California, Stanford and Southern California—despite some examples of decreased gate receipts.

California's football "gate" dropped from $665,000 in 1929 to $618,000 for 1930, but the Golden Bears will continue to enjoy competition in seventeen sports—six major and eleven minor—involving one of the biggest of all college athletic programs.

Stanford's Receipts Drop $20,000.

Stanford's football receipts dropped from $499,822 to approximately $480,000. Southern California, its season climaxed by the Notre Dame game, again exceeded $500,000 in receipts. St. Mary's of California, while not making public its receipts, showed an attendance increase of more than 100,000, the profits from which will be turned into developing teams for the first time in such sports as track, tennis, swimming and boxing.

So far as athletic policies are concerned, the new year holds forth no radical steps in Pacific Coast areas, although California is busy sifting the talent for a successor to "Nibs" Price as head football coach. The "systems" of Dr. Clarence W. Spears at Oregon, and James Phelan at Washington have been given a season's trial and approved. Rumors that Glenn S. (Pop) Warner might leave Stanford to accept an offer from Pennsylvania have not been substantiated.

Rocky Mountain Group Enjoying Boom.

Stanford is slowly working toward a two-year school, with only junior and senior enrollment, a plan sponsored by President Ray Lyman Wilbur, but this is considered to be a long way from fulfillment. It is opposed by a large section of the alumni.

Across the big divide, in the Rocky Mountain Conference, the boom in football and other sports has continued. Very little, if any, retrenchment is planned, although the sched-

Knoxville Campaigns To Buy Mobile Stock

Knoxville, Tenn., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Councilman W. N. Smithson said today he will make an offer to directors of the Southern Baseball Association in Memphis Thursday for taking over the Mobile franchise.

A campaign to raise funds for purchase of Mobile stock was directed here today by Mayor James A. Treht and other city officials. Mayor Trent said approximately $15,000 was raised.

Smithson visited Maj. George L. Berry at Pressmen's Home, Tenn., and reported on his return that Maj. Berry had agreed "to buy a portion of the stock."

Pennsylvania Joins In Ban on Walker

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Mickey Walker's middleweight boxing title was declared vacant by the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission today.

Walker had been given until January 1 to sign for a title bout by the Pennsylvania commission, and when he failed to do so he was automatically deposed, the commission announced today.

The New York Athletic Commission took similar action against Walker yesterday.

Griffith-Consumer Five Beats Tremonts, 33-18

Griffith-Consumer basketers were forced to come from behind to defeat the Tremonts in a Community Center Basket Ball League game played last night in the Macfarland Gym, by a 33 to 18 score. Trailing at the intermission by two points, the Griffs spurted in the second half to sew up the verdict. Bob Lyles, Griff forward, carried off high-scoring honors by caging a trio of double-deckers and three fouls. Nicholson also starred for the winners. Wilner and D. Ciango were the Tremont luminaries.

Norwegian Girl Quits International Skating

Copenhagen, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—International skating events probably will no longer see the flashing little figure of Sonja Henie, the Norwegian school girl who wears the laurel wreath of the 1928 Olympics in figure skating.

The local press quote her parents as saying they were tired of following their daughter around to tournaments and wanted to settle down in a Norwegian home.

Sonja's last international competition was in the world skating carnival at Madison Square Garden last winter, where she won the figure skating crown with an amazing exhibition of grace and speed. She is only 18 years old and her parents have always traveled with her as chaperons.

18 Midwestern Cities Sponsor Mat Circuit

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Tom Packs, St. Louis wrestling promoter, announced today the formation of a circuit of eighteen Midwestern and Southern cities in which wrestlers, friendly to Jimmy Londos, of St. Louis, one of the heavyweight title claimants, appear on guarantee of a lump sum.

Cities in the circuit are Chicago, St. Louis, Wichita, Tulsa, Oklahoma City, San Antonio, Houston, Beaumont, Tex.; New Orleans, Shreveport, Alexandria, La.; Little Rock, Memphis, Nashville, Chattanooga, Knoxville, Atlanta and Evansville, Ind.

Appearing as often as three times a week, the wrestlers can cover the circuit in as little as a month and a half.

Tennessee U. Votes To Suspend Baseball

Knoxville, Tenn., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The University of Tennessee Athletic Council voted today to suspend intercollegiate baseball until a playing field is made available by the university.

Col. Paul Parker, athletic director said the suspension was due to the uncertain availability of a park owned by the city and lack of interest among students.

Miami Amateur Medal Won by Jack Ryerson

Miami, Fla., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The smooth stroking putter of Jack Ryerson, Cooperstown, N. Y., brought him a 72 for medal honors in qualifying play of the Miami midwinter amateur golf tourney today. Ryerson went into the cup with one putt on five greens to tie par on the Miami Country Club course.

Win Day, 15-year-old Chicago youngster, was second among the qualifiers, with a 75. His score stood up from yesterday's play against the 77 today of Jimmy West, Miami, defending champion, who tied with Lee Chase, Buffalo.

Ryerson was one under par going out, and one over on the return trip.

Match play between the fewer than 60 entrants in the tournament will start tomorrow and continue through Sunday.

Nokesville Woodman Hold Ring, Mat Bouts

Special to The Washington Post.

Manassas, Va., Jan. 7.—An interesting program of wrestling and boxing has been arranged for the benefit show sponsored by the Modern Woodmen of America, which will be given in Woodmen Hall, Nokesville, on Friday night.

The feature wrestling bout will be between Roy Seaton, Middleburg, Va., lightweight champion of Virginia and Frank Milo, of Columbus, Ohio. The main boxing bouts staged are a 6-round go between "Kid" Davis, of Alexandria, and Lin King, of Warrenton, Va., both boys weighing 130 pounds; six rounds by "Radio" Kearns, 118 pounds, of The Plains, Va., and Billy Pickeral, of Laurel, Md.; and a four-round affair with Jimmy Wines, of The Plains, meeting Prince William County's popular 130-pounder, Glenn Bowman, of Haymarket.

Conger in 1931 Debut At Brooklyn Saturday

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Ray Conger, leading American miler, will make his 1931 bow for charity in the Jefferson Club meet in Brooklyn Saturday night, it was announced today.

He will match strides in a 1,000-yard run with Gene Venzke, of the Newark A. C., and Fred Veit, of the New York A. C. Conger runs in the colors of the Illinois Athletic Club.

Conger had not intended to run before the Prout games in Boston late this month, but because the proceeds of the Jefferson Club games are to go to charity he was prevailed upon to make his first start there.

The former Iowa State star is in fine shape, he said recently, and is working out daily at Columbia University, where he is a graduate student.

Ben Coltrin's 70 Best In Pre-Tourney Drill

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Ben Coltrin, Oakland professional, set an early pace today in practice for the 36-hole qualifying round of the Los Angeles $10,000 open, which starts Friday, by turning the first eighteen in 70. Wind and an occasional light drizzle made the scores high for the more than 350 golfers, of whom approximately 100 will qualify. Play was over six courses.

Behind Coltrin came W. H. Cox, Brooklyn, with a 71. Other low cards were turned in by John Perelli, Feather River, 75; Al Zimmerman, Portland, Oreg., 75; Harold Sampson, Burlingame, Calif., 78; Pat O'Hara, Santa Barbara, Calif., 78; Ray Mangrum, Dallas, Tex., 78, and Frank Minch, Sacramento, 81.

Harry Westbrook, Pasadena amateur made a 235-yard hole in one on the second hole at Fox Hills Country Club. His score for the first round was 79.

Old Line Five Wins From Gallaudet

Maryland Coasts to 38 to 29 Triumph Over Blues.

Chalmers and Berger Lead Attack; Score 16-2 Near Start.

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY'S 1931 basket ball team, minus the services of Bob Gaylor, its triple-threat performer, made its bow last night at Ritchie Gymnasium and presented a reasonably potent game to defeat Gallaudet by the score of 38-29. About)500)witnessed)the Maryland opener.

It was a determined Maryland team which took the floor to pile up a 16-2 lead before many minutes had passed. But it was also a Maryland team which failed to sustain its drive, and one which permitted to Silents to draw up to 19-14 at the close of the first section.

Chalmers Shows Keen Eye.

Maryland was impressive when it took the game seriously, the basket-mongering of Chalmers being deadly, and the ball-retrieving of Berger standing him out. There was also strong evidence of a keen passing attack, always a Maryland forte.

Gallaudet was neither bad nor excellent, and was kept in the game mostly through the Trojan work of Cosgrove and Ringle, who contributed 19 of their team's total points. The Kendall Greenmen played consistently throughout the game, making strides whenever the charges of Coach Shipley took matters a bit too lightly.

Especially at the very end of the game, when Maryland was freezing the ball to death, was the fight of the Gallaudet men evident. Ringle, Cosgrove and Wurdemann broke in on the refrigeration act, not only to secure possession of the ball, but to lessen the gap 6 points as the game ended.

COLUMBUS U. BEATEN BY SHEPHERD

Local Five Defeated, 38 to 28; Hough, Shipley Star.

THE Mountaineers of Shepherd College invaded Washington last night and today are back in Shepherdstown, W. Va., displayed the scalps of Columbus University, whom they defeated last night at Central High Gym, 38-28, before a capacity house.

It was the second triumph this year of the West Virginians over the Knights, the local team having dropped a decision last month on the home court of the winners of the game last night.

Columbus was beaten by a team that was its slight superior in every department of play. Shepherd took an early lead and never relinquished its upper hand. In Shipley and Hough, center and forward, the visitors displayed a scoring duo that always loomed as a threat. In passing and guarding invaders also were more than ordinarily good, evidencing little concern at playing on a foreign court.

Coach Tommy Connor used his entire squad in an effort to reach the team which was always a few points ahead of his. Twelve Knights saw service during the fray, including Coach Connor. Plant was the high scorer for the local combination, and also proved the kingpin in passing and guarding. Berk Mealy also displayed better form than he has shown this year.

Shepherd drew away at the very close of the gawe to finish up 10 points ahead. Up until that time no more than 4 points ever separated the teams.

Chicago, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Bad news for golfers.

The period of the golfing business man is over and the new year will see the appearance of more modern executives who don't go in for golf, Dr. Fred E. Clark, professor of economics at Northwestern University, Evanston, told the United Furniture Industries, holding their first annual rally.

THE smallest bird in the world is a humming bird—when it is small. Sometimes a humming bird grows to be 8½ inches long, and sometimes it doesn't seem to grow at all. This particularly small member of the family lays eggs so small that the young birds at hatching time are not much larger than a common flea. But their size doesn't matter much for they still can fly as no other bird can—remaining stationary in midair or flying backwards.

All of us have heard the story of the man who lifted a calf every day until she became a cow; as the calf grew heavier the man grew stronger. H. E. Mann heard the story, too, and decided to test its accuracy. He started with a 50-pound calf on his farm, lifting it several times every day. Now the calf weighs 600 pounds, but Mr. Mann still lifts it. So far, then so good—but the cow has a lot more to grow. Will Mann continue to grow stronger?

The two dots are the same size—but you can make the black one fit into the white one. Here's how! Take a small card and place it on edge between the two dots; then press your nose and forehead against the top edge of the card, with one eye on one side, and one on the other. See the dots come together.

FREE TOSSES DECIDE FOR G. W. FROSH

Foul-Shots Defeat Central High Five by 28-26 Count.

GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY FRESHMAN tossers made good their free tosses yesterday at G. W. gym to defeat a strong Central High School aggregation by the score 28 to 26 in a furiously played contest. The Colonial Plebes showed up gallantly to win the game, finding themselves on the short end of a 10-to-4 score at the quarter, a 19-to-15 score at the half and a 24-to-20 count at the end of the third quarter.

A concentrated drive in the final minutes of the game, which was led by Woodward and ably backed up by Cordova, saw the Frosh overhaul the fast-flying Hill Dwellers and draw away at the very end to win by 2 points.

Woodward, Cordova Star For Colonials.

But it was the ability of the G. W. team, in the persons of Woodward and Cordova, to sink nearly all free tosses offered them that turned the tide their way. Woodward and Cordova also made up a real passing and guarding duo.

Henry Broadbent, Central blond menace, was the high point scorer of the game, accounting for 11 points. He was closely followed by Capt. Burke, of Central, with 9 points.

Central looked impressive throughout the fray, and many at the game looked upon it as the likely winner. The passing of the Blue and White was especially potent, but in the end it could not offset the better all-around play of the Plebes.

Draft Question Still Open in Association

Chicago, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The draft question is still a matter of unfinished business in the American Association, President Thomas Jefferson Hickey of the Class AA Baseball League said today.

"Nothing has been done by the club owners since Kansas City protested against the acceptance of the draft plan by mail vote," Hickey said. "I wrote each club owner to ascertain if a meeting to hold a definite vote was wanted, but so far not one answer has been received."

George Muehlbach, president of the Kansas City Club halted official acceptance of the major league draft proposal by the American Association December 27 by demanding a special meeting to reconsider the mail vote.

250-Mile Speed Record Aim Of Campbell's New Invasion

By DILLON GRAHAM.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Capt. Malcolm Campbell, last of the four dare-devil racers officially credited with driving an automobile faster than 200 miles an hour, will risk his life on the beach here early next month in challenging for the "speed king" crown.

The British captain, in his Blue Bird II, will try to break the 231-mile an hour record set in 1929 by the Golden Arrow with the late Sir H. O. D. Segrave at the wheel. Campbell will be the second Britisher to attempt to pass Segrave's mark. Kaye Don made an unsuccessful attempt last March in the Silver Bullet.

Campbell, who thrice has held the highest crown in the racing firmament since he set a mile straightaway mark of 150.76 in 1925 at Pendine

Spurt at End Threatens Middies

Sailors Barely Hold 4-Point Lead of Opening Half.

Burgess and Conner Share Honors With Loughlin.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 7.—In a thrilling, well-played game, in which spectacular shooting was commonplace, Naval Academy tossers this afternoon were extended to their best efforts of the season to keep their string of victories unblemished and at the same time break the streak of George Washington University cagers.

The final score of this stubbornly contested but cleanly played fracas was 42 to 38, the Middies clinging to a 4-point margin of the first half as the final stanza found each of the teams scoring 23 points.

Resuming their schedule after three preyule games, the Middies were on edge for the Washingtonians, who had swamped two rivals to date. The initial half, marked by brilliant guarding by both fives, ended 19 to 15, with the stars in the van.

Colonials' Final Spurt Falls Short.

The final stanza was more wide open, with a one-minute spurt by the Middies midway in the period giving them a lead which barely withstood a final challenge by the Colonials.

After Loughlin, the Middie ace, had dribbled in for a "snow bird" after the first minute of play, the invading Colonials spurted and led, 9 to 6, until four consecutive field goals, scattered among as many Middie players, took the lead away. There were few easy shots in this period, though the players cut beautifully on well-timed plays, only to find that an equally alert defense awaited.

Navy slightly increased its lead at the outset of the second period, due to fine passing and team play by Chittenden, substitute forward. However, Conner tore through the Navy defense twice and then sunk two fouls to bring his mates within 1 point of John N. Wilson's charges, at 27 to 26.

Loughlin Brilliant In Scoring Spree.

This spurt by the Colonial captain seemed to inspire Navy's ace, Loughlin, for within the next minute he gave the goodly throng of spectators the thrill of the season. Four times he received the ball and aimed at the basket, and, as many times the leather sank through the net without as much as touching the rim, a part of the crowd rose to its feet at this rare exhibition of marksmanship.

This, together with a foul by Holtzworth, put Navy ahead, 37 to 27. Holtzworth made two goals close in for the Navy, while several new middie scrubs were losing part of the lead to the Colonials, who kept plugging until the final toot of the whistle.

Burgess Shares Honors With Loughlin.

Loughlin, who has averaged better than a dozen points a game in the four played to date, looped seven field goals today, but had to share high-scoring honors with Forrest Burgess, of the visitors. The former Central High School and American University player made good on two foul shots to reach Loughlin's total, however.

Team play was clever throughout the game, but Conner, of the visitors,

HEAVYWEIGHT FIGHT SITUATION AT STANDSTILL

Plan of Action Is Pondered By Carey

Schmeling's Manager and Chicago Group Are Silent.

News Expected When Clamor of Max's Ban Dies.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Worn out vocabularies rested today and the question of where and when Max Schmeling would fight some one for the heavyweight title was answered only by silence.

Nate Lewis, matchmaker at the Chicago Stadium Corporation, and Sidney Strotz, president of the corporation, discussed with Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, their $500,000 bid for a championship match with Young Stribling until daylight came this morning and then all went home to bed without anything to announce for the papers. For the purposes of ballyhoo it seems likely that nothing of moment will be announced until the clamor raised by the New York State Athletic Commission's withdrawal of championship recognition from Schmeling had died.

Bill Carey, president of Madison Square Garden and the owner of a contract on Der Maxie's services for a match here in June, still ponders his next move in the muddled situation.

Commission Opposes Carey's Plan.

Carey still would like to pit Jack Sharkey, now recognized as the "outstanding heavyweight" by the local commission, against Stribling with the winner fighting Schmeling for the title in June, despite the commission's refusal to permit such a program.

Carey and Jacobs discussed prospects for the Schmeling-Stribling match with George F. Getz, wealthy sportsman, by telephone to Chicago. Getz sponsored the late Tex Rickard's invasion of the mid-West Metropolis with the second Tunney-Dempsey match in 1927 and there seemed a likelihood today the Garden considered a similar move with Stribling and Schmeling to the exclusion of Lewis, Strotz and the stadium corporation.

The Events Leading Up to the Tragedy —By H. T. Webster

N. B. A. Does Not Oppose Schmeling-Stribling Bout

Chicago, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The National Boxing Association will not stand in the way of the heavyweight championship fight between Max Schmeling and W. L. ("Young") Stribling in Chicago or any other State within its jurisdiction if held this summer, President John V. Clinnin intimated today.

Although the N. B. A. parent body of professional boxing and wrestling in 34 States, is polling its members to decide if it should declare Schmeling's title vacated, Gen. Clinnin said a period of grace undoubtedly would be granted. Ten State commissions already have answered the poll, eight of them voting to vacate the throne and the two others voting for 30 and 90 days grace.

Schmeling Wants Match With Sharkey in Chicago

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, from whom the New York State Athletic Commission yesterday withdrew title recognition, told the Associated Press today he was ready to fight Jack Sharkey or any one else, "but not in New York."

"It is ridiculous, this talk about me trying to evade a fight with Sharkey," he said. "I've always said I wanted to meet Sharkey, and say so now. I'm prepared to defend my title against all comers—Sharkey, Stribling, anybody else the National Boxing Commission puts up, but not in New York. I'm through with the New York Athletic Commission, if I fight, I'll fight in Chicago."

Max said he was in good shape and was only waiting word from Joe Jacobs, his manager, as to when he should go to the United States. He said he was returning to Berlin Saturday and might be able to announce his plans then.

German Press Condemns Methods of Schmeling

Berlin, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—There was little comment today in the German press on the action of the New York State Athletic Commission in withdrawing heavyweight championship recognition from Max Schmeling, German boxer, and what comment there was was adverse to Max.

Most of the newspapers merely contented themselves with bringing the news of the New York commission's action to the German public, but the Zwoelfuhr Blatt devoted two pages to proving Schmeling was afraid to again meet Jack Sharkey.

"That he (Schmeling) tries to evade Sharkey this paper regards as a disgrace to German sport," the Zwoelfuhr Blatt said. Then referring to his letter yesterday in the Berliner Zeitung, the paper continues:

"One doesn't know what to condemn more in connection with this latest blast of a world champion—his attempt to bluff the public or the haughtiness wherewith one who was helped to his position, not by ability, but by luck, tries to center the spotlight upon himself."

The Boersen Courier also was outspoken in its condemnation of the German champion.

"We've seen the movie of the Schmeling-Sharkey fight," it said. "Every impartial observer must realize there was but one man in the ring—and that wasn't the boxer who afterward left the ring as world champion. We saw a marvelous technician and tactician who was giving a lesson in boxing to a greenhorn."

To that man—Sharkey—Schmeling must give an opportunity for "revenge," the paper said, "if he wishes rightfully to carry the championship title."

Boots and Saddles

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Fair Grounds Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

FIVE 3-year-olds will compete for the Calmette purse, fourth on the program, at one mile, featuring the Fair Grounds card this afternoon. C. V. Whitney's MALAITA is selected to win on his last two races. In the last he ran second to Spanish Play and in his previous race, which was as a 2-year-old, he beat Skibo and Ben Marshall.

The strongest of the opposition seems to be BRASS MONKEY, which won a good race last week his first time out, beating his stablemate, Burgoo. GARLIC may figure in the race. He won two races in Maryland last fall, beating good 2-year-olds and if up to a race now, will have a chance to be closer than third.

FIRST RACE—BURGOO looks best in the first race for 3-year-old maidens, at a mile. His second to Brass Monkey, running mate, last out, showed he had found his speed, and his races in the East as a 2-year-old attest his class. He was rated one of the best of E. R. Bradley's juveniles, but went through the season without earning brackets. SHONNA should be the contender on earlier racing form, but has dropped back. ATTIRE'S last was bad, but at Jefferson Park ran third to Agnes Sorrel.

SECOND RACE—VALEDICTORY will only have to repeat his last race, in which he defeated Eye White and Greenwald, winning by four lengths to take the measure of the field of the second event, at six furlongs. He should not have as easy a victory as his last, for ZAILA now and then runs a good race, and should be the contender. Also FALMOUTH BELLE may be close up. FLYING NANCY has shown her winning race was not a fluke and may figure in this event prominently.

THIRD RACE—The C. V. Whitney entry of AGITATOR and ZOOM should run first and second in the third. Both won their last starts over competition as strong as this appears to be. AGITATOR beat Couts and Broad Meadows, while ZOOM won over BETTY BEAU and Broad Meade. BETTY BEAU looks like the contender in this dash on her last start, and BEN MARSHALL, long overdue, should get third money. In his last start, he was third to Elizabeth Bolla in the Pontchartrain Handicap, in which Scone and others were far behind. There will be no better race on the program than this, for the short distance will mean a race from the barrier to the wire.

FIFTH RACE—VANQUISH is selected for the winner of the fifth race, at a mile and a sixteenth. Last out, he ran second to Herendeen, and in his previous race he won over Water Fowl by a length. H. R. Riley will ride. BOB SHANNON is rated next best and is due to improve over his last race. He looks like the contender, if his last race is thrown out. In his previous start, he was second to Night Signal. SPAN FLOW has had a rest, and should be freshened up, putting third money in his reach.

SIXTH RACE—FAIR ORB is selected to repeat in the sixth event. She won her last, defeating the favorite, Sterling Silver, and has weaker opposition today. LADY BIENVILLE, also a winner recently, should get the place. LILLIAN T, third to Herendeen the other day, has a chance and should be no worse than third.

SEVENTH RACE—The seventh event is at a mile and three-eighths, and attracts the largest field on the program, as well as the cheapest horses of the day. OLD KID, contender against Satisfy last week, and winner at Bowie over a field of fair platers, may be best in this. VORPEIL has a chance, and is sure to be a contender all the way on his second to Sorrento last time out. TOMMY may have enough speed to get in the money, but the race seems strictly between the first two horses mentioned.

PANDA, 5½-1, WINS RACE FEATURE

Filly Scores on Own Courage at Fair Grounds.

FAIR GROUNDS RACE TRACK, New Orleans, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—C. T. Grayson's Panda, after many unsuccessful attempts, finally won a race when she beat Grecian Beauty a length in the Pine Hills Purse, mile and a sixteenth feature here today.

Panda was ridden by C. Cogan and at the end the boy was of absolutely no help to the filly. Grecian Beauty, owned by the Southland Stable, and with E. James up, was second and Battling On third.

Panda Wins Despite Jockey Cogan.

Battling On, with his good early speed, rushed to the front and was under wraps for the first half mile. However, around the turn Panda moved up to him and he stopped. Panda took command, but when Grecian Beauty challenged in the final furlong, little C. Cogan became rattled and dropped Panda's head, almost getting the filly beaten. Panda, however, held on with her own courage to win by a length. The winner paid $13.00.

Newburger, a fine looking son of Theo. Cook—Goldie Girl, scored in a drive in the opening event, a three-furlong dash for baby racers. Lucky Stone was second and Adobe Post third. Lucky Stone jumped away to the lead, but in the final sixteenth Newburger was up to outgame him and take the decision by a head in 9:36 1-5. The winner paid $11.90.

The first form reversal of the meeting occurred in the second event when Fly Guy, owned by E. Schwarz, romped away with the purse, running the six furlongs in 1:13 1-5.

Wagering on Fly Guy Most Erratic.

The mutuels showed the betting to be most erratic, Fly Guy paying $8.30 to win and $9.70 to place.

The start was good, but before the field had gone a sixteenth several of the contenders dropped many lengths behind.

Fudge led the field to the stretch where Fly Guy took command to win by a length and a half.

C. V. Whitney's Skirl, favorite in the betting and paying $4.60 for a $2 ticket, was a galloping winner of the fifth race. Guide Right was second and Rocket Glare third.

Skirl rushed into the lead at the break and, under wraps, led all the way to win by a length and a half in 1:46 2-5.

Interest High as Marlboro And Kickers Drill for Game

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

BOTH the D. C. Kickers and Marlboro soccer teams had short workouts yesterday in preparation for the semifinal round of the Washington and Southeastern District cup tourney Sunday.

It has been two weeks since either has played in competition, so neither will have the advantage of recent games. The Kickers' last contest was against Rosedale and Marlboro played Fashion Shop.

As the game nears interest is increasing by leaps and bounds. Followers of the German club discount the fact that Marlboro nosed it out for the Washington Soccer League title, claiming that their eleven is in far better shape than at any time this year, injuries hurting their league chances not a little.

On the other hand Marlboro has little to say anent the probable outcome, but showing a calm confidence nevertheless. The Prince Georges County lads possess a sturdy defense that has held back the best forward lines in the city for two years and despite their alleged "American" soccer have rolled up sizeable scores against most of their opponents.

Manager Herath, of the D. C. Kickers, announced his starting lineup for the Sunday game last night. It is the same as the eleven that held Marlboro to a draw. Following is the team:

The Post is in receipt of a communication from John Pollock, secretary of the Newport News Soccer Club, in which he extolls the sportsmanship of the Washington fans, officials of the Washington Soccer Association and the Washington-Concord Club, its opponent last Sunday.

It is true that the 3,000 spectators that witnessed the thrilling match could not be termed partisan as the Virginians were roundly applauded for their good plays. In fact the gathering was about divided in its support of the teams.

EASTERN HIGH FIVE ROUTS WASHINGTON-LEE, 60-25

Lincoln Park Varsity Far Superior

Entry of Five Giants Ends Competition as Noonan Stars.

Waters, Sub, Shares Limelight in Scoring Deluge.

EASTERN High School's Basket Ball Team in some measure atoned for the defeat suffered Tuesday night at the hands of the Boys Club when the Lincoln Parkers yesterday swamped Washington-Lee High of Ballston by the score of 60 to 25. The scoring deluge was played at Eastern's Gym.

Against it was Eastern's Big Five—Kane, Lieb, Noonan, Shirley and Zola—who held the fate of Eastern in their sizable hands. Entering the game when Eastern was enjoying a scant 18-15 lead over the invading Virginians, the machinery of their game began to click in short order, and before long one of the largest scores of the early season was well in the process of making.

Noonan Outstanding Player.

Big Bill Noonan, with 16 points to his credit, was perhaps the outstanding player on the floor. The elongated jumper, who towers 6 feet 3 above the center circle, was also in rare passing form.

Coach Guyon was more than pleased with the showing of his reserves, who, while they performed no miracles, presented a more than smooth front whenever used. The individual work of Al Waters, Capt. Barney Kane's understudy, was especially noteworthy. Used at the start and in the third quarter of the game, the sharpshooting little 'potshot' artist accounted for 16 of his team's points.

Mat and Ring Show At Maryland U. Tonight

The Baltimore Y. M. C. A. wrestling team, reputed to be the outstanding amateur wrestling outfit in the East, will tangle with a team composed of Washington Y. M. C. A. and College Park A. C. grapplers tonight in the second of a series of monthly programs which are being staged by the College Park Athletic Club. The matches will be staged in Ritchie Gymnasium at the University of Maryland, starting at 8 o'clock.

The Baltimoreans last year captured three first places in the national amateur wrestling championships, which were held at Ohio University. Three former college captains are members of the team. They are Milton Andes, of V. M. I.; James Cox, of West Virginia, and A. Cornsweet, one of the famous Brown University "iron men."

Three boxing bouts also are on the program. The matches will be conducted under the supervision of William R. Whipp, boxing coach at the University of Maryland and the Racquet Club, and Tom Clayton, College Park A. C. wrestling mentor. John Earecson, former National A. A. U. wrestling title holder, will referee, and Harry Kirchman, Olympic lightweight champion in 1920, will serve as one of the judges.

250-MILE MARK AIM OF CAMPBELL

Segrave Set Mark Of 231.

On the 14-mile narrow sand strip, hailed by many the finest straightaway course in the world, Segrave first flashed across the stretch at more than 200 miles an hour. The Britisher took the title for the "flying mile" at 203. At the same place the sands saw Campbell boost the mark to 206, the late Ray Keech pushed it to 207 and then Segrave came back to establish the present record of 231.

Keech was killed at the Altoona track, while several others, including Lee Bible and Frank Lockhart, hurtled to their death on the Daytona Beach sands in trying to win the speed honors. Segrave lost his life several months ago in England in a speedboat accident.

The sands of Daytona Beach are in shape for the trials only a short time each year. Whether the record stands or another year may depend upon the condition of the racing car on the few days available for trial tests.

Wind and Wave Balk Many.

Countless attempts to break the mile straightaway mark have been made on this course, but owing to the adversity of wind and wave, only a few have succeeded.

Capt. Campbell will come back to the famous battle ground of speed with a goal of 250 miles an hour. He says he has gone 225 in Africa, where he sought a new mark last year, and he believes his car is capable of going faster than the record mark.

N. C. U. OPENS RING YEAR JAN. 16

South Carolina to Be Guests; Three Tarheel Vets Back.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Jan. 7.—A check-up since the holidays reveals that the University of North Carolina boxing squad this year will be composed of three veterans and a number of youngsters who are expected to come through. Coach Crayton Rowe is directing chief attention to the opening meet with South Carolina, to be held in the Tin Can here Friday week, January 16.

With three letter men and a pair of outstanding sophomores in the camp, prospects are fairly good, but much depends on the way youngsters come through in the 115 and 145-pound classes.

Goodridge, Warren Sure Of Berths.

Several of the candidates did regular work during the holidays, all kept in good shape, and Coach Rowe is prescribing daily practice bouts in an effort to build a strong squad all around.

Capt. Goodridge, 135 pounds, and John Warren, 160-pound brother to the better known Addison Warren, virtually have their places sewed up.

A third senior and letter man, Obie Davis, 160 pounds, is showing the best form of his college career, and probably will be a regular, although Tom Parsons, a reserve, and Jim Hubbard, a sophomore, are running Davis a close race.

Martin Levinson, 125 pounder, and Platt Landis, a heavyweight, are the outstanding sophomore bets. Both have been punching harder than ever and have been developing more craft and skill while boxing Goodridge and Warren. Clark, a reserve, also has been showing well in the 125-pound class.

Levinson, Landis Best Sophomores.

Miller, a southpaw, is another clever sophomore who is threatening to make himself heard from in the heavy classes.

Borings and Biggs, two sophomores, have proven best in the 115-pound class, with Borning having had a slight edge.

Dale Holderness, intramural champion, still held the edge in the 145-pound class in this week's practice exhibitions, but the hard-hitting redhead is getting much competition from Jackson, sophomore, and Gatlin, Parris and Lumpkin, reserves.

Episcopal Has Another Formidable Court Team

Episcopal High's basket ball team has shown early-season promise of equaling the record success of the school's football squad. In practice games the Virginians have beaten Emerson Institute, 36 to 11; the Alpha Delta Omega Fraters, 27 to 15, and the Alexandria High tossers by the score of 60 to 18.

Coach Fleming has elected as his first team the combination of Hancock, captain and center; McDonald and Cleveland, forwards, and Train and Orich, guards. The reserve five is Robinson, Mizell, S. Taylor, R. Taylor and Williams.

A formidable schedule has been arranged for the Episcopalians, with the stronger local high and prep schools on the list.

Track, too, is going full blast at the Alexandria school. Coaches Tompkins and Kaminer have a squad of 60 aspirants out. Sprinters include Dabney, Dodson, Baylis and Sherrill; quarter-milers, Mitchell, Mason, W. Carey and Garnett; half-milers, Hanlon and Mason; miler, G. Carey; weight throwers, Stocker, Calhoun and Brawley; pole vaulters, Swift and McDonald.

No schedule has been made out as yet for the cinder men, but the revised basket ball schedule reads as follows:

January 10, Tech; 14, Swavely; 17, Eastern; 21, Georgetown Prep; 24, Gillman; 28, Tech; 30, Augusta Military Academy; 31, Virginia Episcopal Institute. February 4, Central; 7, St. Alban's; 9, Shenandoah Academy; 11, St. Johns; 14, Eastern; 18, Western; 21, Swavely; 25, Emerson; 28, Woodberry.

Yankees' $75,000 Recruit, Hoag, Was Sought by Nats

Outfielder Said to Be Coast's Best Rookie Since O'Connell, Scouted by All Clubs; Descended From Baseball Family.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

IN ADDITION to keeping a watchful eye on the doings of the Washington Club's rookie players this spring, Manager Walter Johnson is expected to show particular interest in the baseball goings on of one Myril Hoag, Sacramento Club outfielder for whom the New York Yankees paid $75,000.

Hoag is said to be the best fly-chaser developed on the Pacific Coast since Jimmy O'Connell, the lad who was banned from organized ball when a member of the Giants. News of his prowess reached the Washington Club early last season. It is understood that the Nats could have landed Hoag for around $50,000 at the time, and that Johnson urged that the deal be closed, but President Griffith held off, waiting for the price to fall, and it went higher instead.

Hoag has some weaknesses which he must overcome, but these are more or less minor ones, and experts in general look for him to make good this season. In addition to the Nats, practically all of the other big league clubs were after Hoag, but Bill Essick, Pacific Coast scout for the Yankees, sneaked in and grabbed him while the others were still haggling over terms.

Is Descended From Baseball Family.

Hoag was born in Davis, Calif., just outside of Sacramento, 21 years ago. He comes from a real baseball family, and his father, grandfathc and three uncles excelled at the game. His dad is Tracy Hoag, who was a big leaguer several years ago.

It has taken Hoag but three years to battle his way to the majors, as he graduated from Davis High School in 1927. Three different times he signed with Owner Lewis Moreing, of the Sacramento Club, before finally making good.

Moreing first signed Hoag after the start of the Utah-Idaho League in 1927 and gave him transportation to Pocatello, where Manager Bill Leard looked him over for only one day and then handed him his release, wiring to the Sacramento boss that Hoag was neither a good hitter nor fielder.

The youngster was ready to start for home when Moreing signed him again by wire and ordered him to report to Twin Falls, also in the Utah-Idaho League. He hit .305, but was again given his release after reporting to Sacramento the next spring. In the winter league of 1928, however, Hoag performed so brilliantly that Moreing signed him again. He was playing with the Woodland Team, of which his dad was also a member.

Developed Fast In 1929.

Reporting to Sacramento in the spring of 1929, Hoag developed into one of the most graceful and fastest outfielders in the league, although he hit 20 points below the .300 mark.

Last season, however, Hoag, who is a switch hitter, suddenly uncovered a batting punch. He was among the league's ten leading hitters all season and ended with an average around the .350 mark, while many of his blows were extra-basers.

Should Hoag develop into a star for the Yankees, it will cause Manager Johnson a deal of grief thinking of what might have been.

3-Game Court Show Arranged for Benefit

Two fast preliminary games have been carded to precede the Griffith Consumer-Sak's Clothier game to be played Saturday night at the Boys' Club Gym for the benefit of the family of the late Willie Andrews, veteran sandlot athletic figure.

In the first preliminary, the Jelleff Whirlwinds and the Southerns will mix matters, to be followed by the Nye House Five's game with the Ravens.

The main event, the benefit game, is due to start at 9 o'clock.

STENOG FIVE WINS FROM EMERSON

Lucas Stars as Business High Turns in 31 to 18 Victory.

ANOTHER victory was chalked up by Coach Lynn Woodworth's fleet young Business High School Team yesterday at the Boys' Club when Emerson Institute tossers were beaten to the tune of 31-18.

The feature of the game was the playing, both offensive and defensive, of Bobby Lucas, sterling Stenog forward, who not only accounted for 11 of his team's points, but held Jakie Lewis, the opposing team's outstanding performer, scoreless.

Smaller Business Team Steps Out.

The Business players, smaller by several suit sizes than the Emersonians, soon gave warning that they were out for a win following Tuesday's fairly ragged play against Gonzaga. Lucas put his team ahead with a field goal and commenced the guarding of Lewis which balked the progress of the Emerson five. The score at the half stood 8-5 in favor of Business.

Bill Duryee, whose work has shown marked improvemnet of late, again played a feature role in the game yesterday, and a competent running mate for the sharpshooting Lucas was found in Sherman, heretofore an undistinguished forward.

ON THE SIDELINES by BRIAN BELL

HENRY CHADWICK, father of baseball, probably would not recognize some of the game he made, if he could see it played today, but as early as 1874 he had some sane ideas on the subject of hitting.

Father Chadwick wrote a baseball manual in 1874, when he was baseball editor of the New York Clipper. In defining the expression "popping one up," he said:

"This term is applied to a ball hit up high, which readily falls into the hands of an infielder. It is the poorest hit made." Baseball has changed but pop ups have not. Fifty-six years after the great Chadwick wrote his indictment of a pop up it still "is the poorest hit made."

His definition of an artist:

"This term is applicable only to a player who is not only experienced and skillful in his use of excellent physical qualifications, but who also uses his mental powers in the game to aid him to excel."

There are major league managers who will say there are few "artists" playing baseball.

FATHER CHADWICK'S 1874 manual was published in England and was intended to make baseball popular among the British. He told the British they could not afford to neglect baseball for it was far too good a game to overlook. That they did not take his advice is another story, but surely it was not for lack of knowledge for he told them all about it.

He took up each position and advised prospective British players in detail. Catchers were told that they "must be able to throw with great accuracy and speed a line ball a distance of 50 yards and be able to stop swiftly pitched balls and low grounders, and be especially on the alert in judging foul bound balls, besides having the nerve to face sharply tipped balls direct from the bat."

In those days the catcher played back when the bases were unoccupied and caught pitched balls on the bound. With runners on he came up under the bat. Hence the reference to throwing with "speed and accuracy" a distance of 50 yards, for at his point farthest removed from second base he would not be more than 150 feet.

CHADWICK refers to one word of baseball slang which has fallen into disuse. The term "muffin" is not applied to the palookas of today. Said he:

"A player may be able to hit long balls and to make home runs, and yet, for all that, be a veritable muffin from the simple fact that he can not field, catch or throw a ball decently. Muffins are the lowest in the class of club nines. Next to them come the 'amateurs,' then 'second nines' and then 'first nines.'"

Fans in some major league cities possibly will agree that there are a few "muffins," and underdone ones at that, in fast company today.

Bryonia, at Odds-On, Wins Havana Feature

Havana, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable won its first race of the season over the Oriental Park track today, when the 2-year-old Bryonia accounted for the Poinsettia Purse.

The New York turf youngster, a son of St. Germans, had Vernon Smith in the saddle with the result he went to the post the odds-on-favorite at quotations of 4 to 5. Smith was forced to ride the Greetree "Bab" out to defeat Becky E. with Cloiseth third. The winner raced the two furlongs over a slow and drying out track in 23 4-5 seconds.

Blue Ridge League To Rename Officers

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Jan. 7.—J. Vincent Jamison, jr., who has served as president of the Blue Ridge League since prewar days, will be unanimously tendered that post for another year when the moguls of the Tri-State district loop hold their annual meeting tomorrow in Hagerstown, it was learned here today. Vice President Lewis H. Thompson, this city, and R. T. O'Neill, Hanover, who holds the treasurership, also will be offered reelection.

Either tomorrow or at a later meeting, an attempt to lower the salary limit of the Jamison-piloted wheel will be made. At present the limit is $2,800, plus the manager. A decrease of either $800 or $1,000 is regarded as probable.

Roguish Eye Is Sent To Stud by Coughlin

Chicago, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Roguish Eye, the "almost horse" of American turf fame, has said farewell to the race tracks.

Alderman "Bathhouse" John Coughlin's big horse, which for two years flashed great promise and greater disappointment, will be retired to stud on the Glen-Helen Farm near Lexington, Ky.

Roguish Eye will be remembered despite his many disappointments for furnishing the turf with one of its most memorable races in the rich Futurity at Belmont in 1928. High Strung was given the judges' decision by a whisker.

NINE CREWS INVITED TO REGATTA

Little Change in Collegiate Race Seen for 1931 Test.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The 1931 intercollegiate championship regatta at Poughkeepsie again is expected to feture a nine-crew race for the 4-mile varsity honors won in such sensational fashion last June by Cornell University.

Thus it appears that any depression felt otherwise in the college athletic world will not affect rowing this year if, as is anticipated, California, Washington, Wisconsin and Massachusetts Tech accept the invitations to be extended to them shortly by the board of stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association.

The association is composed of Columbia, Cornell, Pennsylvania, Syracuse and the United States Naval Academy. Its annual meeting, Chairman Maxwell Stevenson, of Columbia, announced today, will be held January 22, to settle upon the details for this year's regatta, which probably will take place on the Hudson, Thursday, June 25.

Rejection of Proposals Expected.

The stewards are expected to reject several proposals made for altering the Poughkeepsie regatta program, including a suggestion that it be spread over two or three days, with the various events rowed in heats because of the large number of entries. This is not considered practical, nor are the conditions of rough water that have now prevailed for two straight years on the Hudson regarded as more of a handicap to one crew than another.

Last June, Cornell, Syracuse and M. I. T. finished 1, 2, 3, in the varsity classic, proving themselves better rough-water crews than several other highly favored combinations such as Columbia, California, Washington and Navy, which swamped near the finish. The year previous four of the varsity crews failed to finish.

Drastic Move Likely Against "Wash."

As a result of some unsatisfactory experience last year, however, it is likely a drastic regulation will be adopted to keep coaches' launches or other craft following the races from moving out of position and causing a "wash" in the crew lanes. The penalty probably will be disqualification of the crew whose representatives so interfere with the race.

The proposal to include a race for "lightweight" or 150-pound crews in the Poughkeepsie Regatta has been rejected as impractical.

RAILS LEAD RALLY AND CLOSE STRONG

Stocks Touch New Highs Before Losing Gains; Steel Eases Off.

CHEMICALS GET WEAK

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Cheered by welcome news from the steel and automobile industries, as well as by the impressive strength of bonds and the firmness of commodities, the stock market touched new highs today before losing most of its gains in late profit-taking and bear selling.

Rails, which led the rally, closed strong, but leaders in the other groups, with few exceptions, were mostly lower. However, few declines exceeded a point and the average loss for 90 issues was less than half a point. Activity improved over yesterday, sales totaling 2,140,190 shares.

The bond market received important support from a cut in time money rates, the first in some time. The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reduced its rediscount rate, but the Philadelphia directors announced no change. Since New York, Cleveland, Boston and St. Louis have acted to ease credit, more are expected to follow.

Steel Encourages.

From the steel trade came word that operations during the past week had eliminated the December shrinkage and put activity back to the late November level. The improvement, however, was regarded as only seasonal and those who look through conservatively tinted spectacles did not read too much into this news. Nevertheless, the turn was encouraging and the steel shares, particularly independents, were considerably higher most of the day.

An official report placed December automobile production not only above the November aggregate, but over that of December, 1929. Inventories at the close of the year were down 25 per cent.

Extreme gains in the pivotal industrial and utility stocks ran to a point or so, which was considered satisfactory, in view of the market's performance since the holidays.

Reactions from the highs carried United States Steel off half a point net, and there were similar declines in General Motors, Sears-Roebuck, National Biscuit, Consolidated Gas, American Telephone, Radio and Montgomery Ward. American Can, Union Carbide and General Electric were off a point at the close.

Buoyancy of the rails was sufficient to prevent their losing much more than a point of the maximum gains. There were advances of 2 to 3, net, in New York Central, New Haven, Atchison and Southern Railway. Frisco was up 4 and Atlantic Coast Line 9. Rock Island 7 per cent preferred closed at par, where it was 6 higher.

Coppers Steady.

Railroads equipments strengthened and the oils found the weekly production figures encouraging.

Chemicals developed group weakness in sympathy with price cuts in their products.

Softness appeared in Westinghouse, Case, American Tobacco, Johns-Manville and Auburn Auto, which dropped 1 to 3.

Declaration of the regular dividend by Goodyear Rubber, even though the payment was not earned, sent the stock up 6 points on covering by traders who had sold in expectation of a reduction. It lost half the rise.

A bullish Government weather report and light receipts influenced fractional gains in wheat, while corn rallied a cent net in response to larger consumption demands. Early declines in cotton uncovered a weakened technical position and futures showed advances of 4 to 11 points on the day.

The Canadian dollar's discount was reduced to ¾ of a cent, leaving it still under the gold shipping point. A rise in silver metal strengthened the Far Eastern exchanges. Continental Europeans were steady.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Indications that corn was being locked up in cribs on farms, and that immediate larger supplies from rural sources appeared unlikely, helped bull sentiment today, with offerings of arrive meager and only at prices above the market, corn jumped to the highest point in weeks, 8 cents higher than a week ago. Advances were in the face of brisk profit-taking.

Corn closed unsettled, ⅞ to 1¼ cents above yesterday, wheat ⅝ to 1½ cents up, oats at ⅜ of a cent decline to ⅞ of a cent advance, and provisions 2 to 37 cents higher.

Almost from the outset, corn pursued an irregular upward course zigzagging as a result of profit-taking, but forced into the final hour to the day's top figures. The rise accompanied reports that a sudden turn to more wintry conditions would bring about increased feeding demand, with further curtailment of receipts.

Cash prices were:

WHEAT—No. 1 hard, 79⅛@79½; No. 1 Northern spring, 79@79¼; No. 1 mixed, 78.

CORN—No. 2 mixed, 70½; No. 3 yellow, 68@70; No. 3 white, 70½@71¾.

OND PRICES CLIMB O HIGHER GROUND

idding Brisk, U. S. Governments Advancing, as Do Other Groups.

BRAZILIANS STILL RISE

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Bond prices climbed to another new high today.

The brisk bidding was confined to no one group. Corporate domestic issues, United States Government obligations and foreign loans were buoyed by the heavy demand which originated with banks and other institutions that find bond yields attractive with call money at 1½ per cent and unusually low rates for time loans. The latter were reduced but the demand was negligible.

Individuals Buying.

Investment purchases by institutions have provided the impetus for the strong recovery made by bonds in the last fortnight, but traders report individual investors are displaying more confidence, encouraged by the rising prices. The inquiry from that source, however, still remains small and is not expected to expand markedly until definite signs of an upturn in business appear.

The advance in United States Government issues brought them within a small fraction of the peak level for the last two years. There was an unusually large turnover in Treasury 4s and they closed ¼ of a point higher. All issues advanced.

A sharp expansion of activity in the foreign list shows a rally in Latin American governments. Brazilians made the best gains in weeks, on top of a strong advance yesterday. Some were up 8 to 10 points for the two days.

Brazilians Advance.

Brazilian Central Railway 7s advanced 6 on top of a 6-point rise yesterday. Brazilian 8s were up 5 and the 6½s from 2½ to 3½. Various Argentine, Chilean, Bolivian, Peruvian and Uruguayan bonds participated in the advance. Turnovers in Kreuger & Toll 6s, Royal Dutch 4s, Japanese 6½s, British 5½s, Deutsche 6s and German 5½s were very large. German 5½s advanced 1¾ and other German bonds gained 1 to 3.

Railroad and utilities showed the largest gains nd were the most active obligations in the domestic section, but the bidding for many industrials improved. Convertible and warrant bonds moved upward by points. Lautaro Nitrace 6s gained 6 points; International Telephone 4½s, 5½ and General Theaters 6s duplicated its advance of the previous day, closing 3½ higher. Alleghany Corporation bonds and Warner Bros. 6s eased.

Reports Record Gross.

Record gross business indicating record profits on the basis of earnings for the first three quarters of the year, was achieved by International Business Machines Corporation in 1930, F. S. Smithers & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, say in an analysis.

Though marked depression has characterized industry for more than a year, this company is one of those companies which in 1930 increased its work force (20 per cent) and added to manufacturing facilities.

The circular notes that in only one of the last eleven years (1921) have net profits of International Business Machines failed to exceed the previous year, approximately 50 per cent of the profits for the period having been distributed to common stockholders. The amount disbursed in dividends has increased in each of these years, cash distribution for 1930 being the largest.

To Visit Banking Chapters.

T. Hunton Leith, assistant cashier of the Security Savings & Commercial Bank, who is a national executive councilman of the American Institute of Banking, leaves Monday for the winter meeting of the executive council at Shreveport, La. He will visit institute chapters at Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans after the meeting.

Arthur Foraker, manager of the Washington office of Eastman, Dillon & Co., has returned from Cincinnati.

$3,500,000 Bonds Of Phone Co. Offered

Bonbright & Co. and Paine, Webber & Co. are offering $3,500,000 of Pennsylvania Telephone Corporation first-mortgage 5 per cent gold bonds, it was announced yesterday. The securities, issued as series C and dated December 1, 1930, are in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100, registered as to principal only and interchangeable as to denomination.

The Pennsylvania Telephone Co., formerly the Mutual Telephone Co., operates without competition in 161 Western Pennsylvania communities. It also serves Johnstown, where there is competition. Tobacco Exports Gain in Volume Quantity Increased 3.6 Per Cent, but Value Only 0.6, in 11 Months.

(Associated Press.)

Tobacco exports for 11 months of 1930 were 517,511,000 pounds, valued at $128,570,000, compared with 499,401,000 pounds, valued at $127,814,000 in the same period of 1929.

The Commerce Department, announcing the figures yesterday said exports increased 3.6 per cent, but the increase in export value was only 0.6 of 1 per cent. The average price per pound dropped 0.8 of a cent to 24.8 cents, against 25.6 in 1929.

Bright flue-cured tobacco averaged 28.3 per pound, against 28.4 in 1929; burley, 21.6 cents, against 22.5; dark fired, Kentucky and Tennessee, 16.9, against 19.6; dark, Virginia, 27, against 18.1; Maryland and Ohio exports, 23.1, against 21.1; Green River, 24.3, against 21.6; one sucker, 18, against 22.8; black fats, 21.2, against 21.3; cigar leaf, 17.3, against 21.7.

Exports of tobacco products declined nearly 35 per cent to $11,719,500, compared with $17,979,311.

Wheat Dethroned As Grain Pit King

Chicago Market Moves Maize Into Space It Occupied.

Chicago, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The dynasty of wheat is at an end, the Board of Trade has chosen a native king. Ruler of the pits these 84 years in the world's greatest grain mart, wheat will be deposed next Monday as the trade acknowledges the native maize as market leader.

The formal gesture of a new allegiance will be the transfer of corn trading into the larger pit now occupied by wheat buyers and sellers. Evicted, the wheat trade moves to the lesser pit.

The Government's entry into the wheat pit coincided with the retirement of the private trader into an attitude of watchful aloofness. The knowledge that its powerful trading agencies would not permit the market to drop below a fixed level; the burden of the 60,000,000 bushels of wheat removed from the market and still undisposed of by the stabilization corporation; uncertainty over the outcome of the Government's policy and increasing use of cooperative associations by the farmers—these considerations all have attracted private trade away from the wheat pit and into the corn pit, where the Government has not entered.

Quarterly Dividend Omitted.

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Directors of Spiegel-May-Stern Co. have omitted the quarterly dividend of $1.62½ on the preferred stock, due to be paid Feburary 1.

Curb Review

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The curb market extended its recovery through most of another session today, only to encounter extensive profit taking in the more popular trading shares in the last hour. Final quotations, however, were irregularly higher.

Trading quickened substantially and the turnover aggregated 480,900 shares, nearly 60,000 more than yesterday. Net gains of a point or two were frequent.

In the utilities, Electric Bond & Share, American Superpower, United Light A and Middle West eased in the last hour, and closed with losses of minor fractions. Some of the lightly traded preferred issues recovered sharply.

Oils and coppers were mostly higher. In the former group, Noranda, United Verde and Roan Antelope all gained a point or more in fairly active trading. Newmont lost 2. Gulf advanced 3 points. Cities Service and Indiana closed steady. Kentucky and Vacuum were fractionally higher.

Industrials were irregularly higher in light trading, as were most of the holding company and investment trust shares. The Continental Shares preferred issues advanced 3 and 4 points, in sympathy with Republic Steel and Goodyear on the big board.

Miscellaneous issues selling up a point or two included Hiram Walker, Douglas Aircraft, Dresser Manufacturing A and B shares and Lehigh Coal and Navigation. Deere and Ford of Canada A each lost a point.

United Founders and American Founders were active and fractionally higher. Goldman Sachs reacted three-fourths, to 6¼.

Wilson Profits Gain, Despite Vast Slump

Chicago, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Despite a sales decerease of $40,000,000, about 13 per cent, Wilson & Co., packers, report 10 per cent increase of profits.

Thomas E. Wilson, president, said in his annual statement today total sales were $270,000,000, compared with $310,000,000 the preceding year. The difference is attributed largely to declining commodity prices and to consequent inventory losses. Net profits totaled $2,542,656, equal to $8.89 a share on 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock outstanding. This compared with $2,304,592, or $8.05 a share the year before.

Canada Expects Wheat Surplus

Exporting at World Prices, but Big Holdover Is Perdicted.

Winnipeg, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—A large surplus of Canadian wheat next July was predicted today by John I. McFarland, general manager of the Canadian wheat pool.

"The producers in the Dominion are selling their wheat to importing countries at world prices," he said, "as and when it is required by such countries, and will continue to do so. It is only fair, however, to state that while world prices remain at such ruinously low levels, we should not be alarmed if we have on hand a large carryover at the end of July."

Referring to the recent low level of 50 cents a bushel for wheat, he said: "Our people can buy wheat at the present time at much less than we can produce it."

Argentina Shipping $5,000,000 in Gold

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—A shipment of $5,000,000 in gold, the first of several consignments to cover external debt service, will be sent from Buenos Aires January 12 on the steamer Western Prince by the Banco de la Nacion of Argentina.

The metal is consigned to the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., Chase National Bank, Guaranty Trust Co. and Irving Trust Co., banks which recently granted the Banco de la Nacion an exchange credit of $16,000,000 for payment to another New York bank of a short term loan.

CUT IN FOOD PRICES GERMANS ADVOCATE

All Slogans Heard in Nation Thunder Forth One Word, "Down."

BUYERS NOT SATISFIED

Berlin, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Nearly all political slogans of the moment in Germany begin with the same word—Down!

"Down with the hunger-government!" yell the Communists.

"Down with democracy and pacifism!" shout Adolf Hitler's National-Socialists.

"Down with the Versailles Treaty, the Young plan and Hollywood war pictures!" also cry the Hitlerites.

"Down with public expenditures!" thunders and decrees the Bruening government.

"Down with prices!" roars every one, meaning, of course, the other fellow's prices.

Prices Declining.

Unanimous roar of the world-wide business depression, actually are showing evidences of a fractional decline.

In most cases the fraction is so small that the consumer refuses to get excited.

There have been reductions in numerous fields, but it is difficult for the government (which is trying to put through a general wage and price reduction program) to explain that the percentage of decrease for a single day or week can not be expected to be startling.

The range of the price reduction campaign is a wide one. Mill dropped two pfennigs (one-half cent); some brands of tooth paste dropped as much as 20 per cent in a week; deep sea fish were cut 16 to 38 per cent.

Burghers Dissatisfied.

"But," say many pessimistic burghers, "our rent hasn't come down any.

"There's a new tax on everything we drink, including coffee; a new tax increasing the price of cigars; gas and electricity still cost as much; street car and bus fares are just as high, and as for taxicabs, it was only a few months ago that a special surcharge of 20 pfennigs (5 cents) a trip was authorized. Where are we saving any money?"

SAN QUENTIN PRISON INMATES STUDYING

Nearly 1,500 Courses Being Given in Stone-Walled State Penitentiary.

SCHOOL SPIRIT IS GOOD

Berkeley, Calif., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—There's little to the social side of "university life" at San Quentin prison, but much is being accomplished in class work on the "stone-walled campus."

Nearly 1,500 separate courses are being given to as many prisoners by the extension department of the University of California at a total cost of more than $10,500 yearly without expense to the confined students. No other prison in the world is believed to have as many inmates pursuing an education.

School Spirit Good

A good school spirit, while not of the stadium-building type, is reflected in the work accomplished, says Prof. A. Smithson, extension director.

Certificates given for courses completed do not intimate that the recipient has ever been in prison, and credits bestowed are good for matriculation into the university.

Language courses are the most popular, with Spanish leading. Mathematics and economics are next. For some time after one of the year's best sellers had been authored in San Quentin there was a veritable deluge of enrollments in writing courses.

Writing Loses Popularity.

There had long been a prison rule against writing for outside publication, but this book was smuggled out.

It met with instantaneous success, but the prison management was adamant in its refusal to lift the rule, and enthusiasm for writing has waned somewhat.

Most of the instruction is by correspondence but occasionally teachers or lecturers visit the prison.

Two Life Companies Dicker on Merger

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Merger negotiations are under way, it was learned today, between the Springfield Life Insurance Co. and the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance Co., both of Springfield.

Under the name of the latter concern the company will have about $100,000,000 in assets and a surplus of more than $500,000 above reserves.

Belgians Slaughter Birds.

Brussels, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—The Belgian Society for Protection of Birds figures that between December 15 and September 25 each year, 15,000,000 feathered creatures are snared in this country and that as a consequence insects damage gardens and orchards about $2,000,000 annually.

Egypt Gets "Caps."

Cairo, Jan. 4 (A.P.).—Capital letters, theretofore absent from the Arabic alphabet, have been designed and won a decree from King Fuad, who is combatting a tendency to introduce Latin script in this country in emulation of Turkey.

More Work in Kiangsu.

Shanghai, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—The governor of Kiangsu Province has ordered all officials on a ten-hour working day because the present eight-hour day is too short for carrying out his reconstruction program.

Dogs As Italy's Guests.

Florence, Italy, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—The Prince of Wales, as hunter, policeman and warrior, will have his day here next May when a show designed to bring to this city the most accomplished dogs in the world.

SCIENTISTS TAKING MEASURE OF LIGHT

Influence of Windows Upon Inside Illumination Is Under Study.

CHECK NEAR ARLINGTON

A scientific quest for the most beneficial daylight illumination is being conducted by specialists of the Public Health Service.

In a special building on the governmental experimental farm at Arlington measurements are being made of the amount and quality of daylight which comes in through different shapes and types of windows.

Each of 24 windows in the building is equipped with removable shutters, so that its size can be modified.

Studies made by the Weather Bureau show the brightness of certain sections of the sky may be ten or twelve times that of other sections at certain times. Consequently, the light which enters a room is dependent upon which portion of the sky the window faces.

To measure the brightness of the portion of the sky which sends light into the building,

An instrument has been placed on the roof of the experimental building

Another apparatus inside the house records the illumination at 36 places on the floor.

The two readings are computed to obtain a ratio between the sky brightness and illumination in the house.

Factors in the brightness of a room are the color of the walls, the size of the room, the height of the ceiling, the size, location and proportion of the windows.

The Iowa House of Representatives will be equipped with an electrical voting device at its next session.

NEW BRIDGE TO TAP WILD AFRICAN AREA

Huge Structure Will Cost $16,000,000; Includes Rail Connections.

TO REQUIRE THREE YEARS

London, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Tapping large areas of undeveloped Africa, an immense railroad bridge will be built across the Zambesi River to connect the transzambesi and central African lines.

The new connection, with a short line, 25 miles long, will give Nyasaland a rail connection with the sea at Beira.

Contracts providing for the expenditure of upward of $16,000,000 were signed by representatives of the affected railroads and an English construction firm.

At the behest of the government, the contract provides that all construction material must be British-made.

British engineers and workmen will be engaged for three years or more in the construction work.

The bridge proper will cost approximately $6,000,000, while the approaches and connecting railroad will consume the rest.

Funds for the construction are to be raised by the government of Nyasaland, the interest on the loan being guaranteed by the British imperial government.

The site chosen for the Zambesi bridge is between Mutarara, on the left bank, and Sena, on the right. The normal width of the river here is 5,000 feet, but at high flood it spreads to about 2 miles. The bridge will consist of 25.89 feet 3 inches of viaduct, 33 main spans and six approach spans.

CANVASS FOR CHEST IN SCHOOLS OF CITY ALLOWED BY BOARD

Long-Standing Policy Reversed, but Request for Quotas Given Refusal.

BALLOU REPORTS ON OPERATION OF BUSES

Junior High Schol Is Named Taft; Elementary to Be Caled Lafayette.

Community Chest solicitation will be permitted in the public schools, but quotas for each school will not be allowed, the Board of Education decided at its first meeting of 1931 yesterday. This reverses a long-standing policy.

Action was taken following an address on the campaign by Sydney F. Taliaferro, former District Commissioner. The board denied the Tuberculosis Association permission to sell Christmas seals in the schools last year.

Chest workers will be allowed to explain the drive at school mass meetings, display posters and charts, establish subscription booths in the schools and distribute buttons to contributors. Sales pressure will not be tolerated. The board frowned on the quota idea, believing it would tend ot overemphasize competition and embarrass those schools which can not give as much as others.

Bids Too High for Athletic Plants.

Municipal Architect A. L. Harris said bids for a new athletic filed at Western High and stadium at Dunbar High exceed by several thousand dollars the sums appropriated. The "incongruity between the bids and appropriations" will be brought to the attention of the subcommittee on District appropriations of the House this week, it was decided.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, submitted seven points to form a foundation for the board's policy on the proposal to operate buses for children in isolated communities. His recommendtions were the result of a study made by Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent in charge of elementary schools.

These factors are: Distance of communities from nearest schools; whether population is stable or changeable; whether a number of children of school age is sufficient to warrant bus service; whether present transportation facilities are adequate, and conditions of roads leading to schools. Small school buildings may be constructed in isolated communities, depending on the outcome of a study of their cost and the cost of running buses.

Names for Two Schools.

It was decided to name the new junior high school at Eighteenth and Otis streets northwest William Howard Taft and the elementary school at Broad Branch road and Northampton street northwest, Lafayette. Both names were submitted by The Washington Post, through coupons on which readers gave their preferences.

Expansion of the Americanization school was asked in resolutions adopted by the Washington Education Union No. 198 and presented to the board. The recommendation to include provisions for field workers and the advancement of adult education was referred to Superintendent Ballou for study.

Woman Starts Action For Absolute Divorce

Alleging her husband has been intimate with a woman who is not named, Mrs. Leah G. Bennett, of Thirteenth street northwest near Kenyon street, yesterday asked an absolute divorce from Wayne M. Bennett, whose address is not given, in the District Supreme Court.

The Bennetts were married February 21, 1924, at Rockville, Md., according to the suit. Prior to separation the wife alleges the husband often came home drunk, and failed to support her. Attorney Henry M. Fowler is appearing for the wife.

$10,000 Suit Alleges Injury by Automobile

Claiming injuries as a result of an automobile accident, Philip H. Krapf, of 511 F street northeast, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court seeking to recover $10,000 damages.

The suit is directed against James Springman, of 4627 Ellicott street northwest. Kraft alleges he was struck down by the defendant's automobile last November 9 on Bladensburg road northeast. Attorneys Fred B. and Cooper B. Rhodes appear for the plaintiff.

Darrow Talk to Mark Abolition Anniversary

Commemorating the 100th anniversary of the publication of the Liberator, famous abolitionist newspaper edited by William Lloyd Garrison, Clarence Darrow, Chicago lawyer and equal rights advocate, will address a mass meeting at Lincoln Temple Congregational Church, Eleventh and R streets northwest, tomorrow night.

Maj. H. C. Atwood, chairman of the committee of arrangements, has announced that this occasion will be used also to honor the memory of Wendell Phillips, Frederick Douglas, Charles Sumner and other leaders in the antislavery movement.

Two Liquor Raids Net Four Arrests

Ale, Whisky and Wine Are Seized by Police in Two Dwellings.

Two raids made yesterday by the liquor squad, under direction of Sergeant N. O. Holmes, netted the arrest of four persons and the seizure of assorted liquors.

In the house on Ogden street, near Fifteenth street northwest, Ernest Abt, 49, and his wife, Hattie, 40, were taken into custody. They were charged with possession of 44 bottles of ale, 35 bottles of red whisky, 7 pints of gin and 3 quarts of wine. Both were released on $500 bond.

Rose Walker, 48, and Randolph Walker, 49, were arrested in a house on N street, near Thirty-first street northwest. Police found 24 bottles of beer and a small quantity of whisky there. Both were released on $500 bond after being charged with possession.

Welcome to Rare Pig Like One to Film Star

Underwood & Underwood.

Latest addition to the Washington Zoological Garden—a babirussa, a native of the Celebes Islands, distinguished by the lower canine teeth, which sometimes grow so long as to appear to be horns.

Camera Flashlights Pop as Babirussa Makes Debut at Zoo.

One of Washington's latest residents is hardly prepossessing in appearance, but he has been greeted with enough booming of camera flash powder to please a visiting stage star.

The new resident, however—a babirussa pig, from the Celebes Islands, in the Malay Archipelago—is hardly as pleased with the attention he is reeciving from camera men as a stage star would be. He never met them in his native wilds, and they are extremely distressing to him now, although he is rapidly growing used to having his portrait made.

The pig, which joined the collection at the National Zoo last Monday, is one of three now in captivity, and his acquisition represetns several years of effort by Dr. William M. Mann, director. The pig's two relatives now behind the bars may be seen in Philadelphia and Berlin.

The babirussa pig is of a distinct genus from the porkers yielding Virginia hams. Instead of the tough bristles worn by them, the babirussa is clothed only by fine silky hair, which gives him a nude appearance. He also has better table manners than the domesticated swine. Yesterday he was munching his crushed carrots from a small square pan—never staining the floor with one particle of food.

One of the most interesting attributes of the babirussa pig is the long horn-like tusks, which grow from the top of his nose and finally reach such length that they curl almost around his ears. The pig's use for these decorations is somewhat obscure, but they probably protect his eyes from the bushes and undergrowth, Dr. Mann says.

The specimen at the zoo, about one-third grown, has just begun to sprout these wicked-looking tusks.

It was a day of debuts at the zoo yesterday. In addition to the reception accorded the pig, Susie, 6-month-old lion cub, which has been a pet of Mrs. Mann, made her bow to zoo society. Susie is growing too large to be a pet and is now keeping house with the two sons of the Coolidge lion.

Then the zoo has received another rarity, making its bow in Washington for the first time. Three Schlegel's ghavials, a distinct type of crocodile from Borneo, made their appearance yesterday in closed, electrically heated glass cages. These crocodiles are only about 18 inches long, but members of the family attain a length of 30 feet.

Most of the huge ones in captivity have been captured in infancy, just as these at the National Zoo, and have been properly fed and cared for until they reached their majority, according to Dr. Mann.

Sites Bought for Buildings Sanctioned by Justice Department.

Soper, executors, for building site, $15,000; lot from National Savings & Trust Co., trustee, for building site, $72,500.

Eldridge, and others, $17,500; lot from Ellen Oriane, and others, for enlarging the Capitol Grounds, $10,990; ten tracts of land conveyed by Chevy Chase Land Co., for addition to Bureau of Standards, $340,000; lot from William A. Lions Club Members Help Feed Unemployed

Members of the Washington Lions Club assisted in serving of food to unemployed men in the rear of the Hotel Mayflower yesterday. The volunteer committee relieved the usual staff of servers on motion of the club. This food is being supplied daily by Daniel J. O'Brien, president and managing director of the Mayflower.

The Lions who assisted were Charles J. Stockman, Dr. George F. Dudley, George A. Lewis, Arthur B. Heaton, D. J. Barry and Ralph E. Jones.

Bankruptcy Petition Filed.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday in District Supreme Court against Hyman Tabb, trading as "H. Tabb" and "Gilberts" at 1128 and 1200 Seventh streets, respectively. Three petitioning creditors claim that the alleged bankrupt has shown preference to another creditor. Attorneys Loving & Hammer appear for the petitioners.

Signs' Destruction Leads to Change

Those Attached to Corner Lamps Are to Be Pointed Inward.

Due to the frequent destruction of street signs attached to corner lamp posts by towering trucks, such as moving vans and buses, the designations are to be altered throughout the city so that they will project away the roadway rather than toward it as at present.

Maj. D. A. Davison, assistant engineer commissioner, issued the order yesterday upon the recommendation of Warren B. Hadley, District electrical engineer.

The signs, which are of cast metal with gold characters, are nine feet above the curb line, and this is believed to be the maximum effective height, Mr. Hadley said.

CUT IN LIGHT RATES MAY RESULT FROM RULING ON PACKERS

Court's Opinion Linked With Its Authorship of Power Decree.

EFFORT UNDER WAY TO AMEND OLD PACT

Corporation Counsel Aim to Consult With Utilities Board on Procedure.

The opinion delivered this week by Justice Jennings Bailey in the District Supreme Court in the packers' decree case may have the far-reaching effect of lowering the electric light rates in Washington.

At least it doubtless will influence action of the counsel for the Public Utilities Commission in seeking to effect modification of the consent decree under which the light and power rates of the District are now determined.

The same court that handed down the opinion in the packers' case was author of the consent decree, which was a compromise between the Utilities Commission and the Potomac Electric Power Co., six years ago. Consequently, his observations on a similar decree, which was the center of the packers' controversy, are viewed as significant.

William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel for the Public Utilities Commission, is closely studying Justice Bailey's opinion to better prepare his case for modification of the concsent decree in accordance with instruction issued to William W. Bride, corporation counsel, and to himself last week after a public hearing on the power company's 1931 rates.

May Confer Today.

Mr. Bride and Mr. Roberts may confer with members of the utilities agency today and advise them on steps that should be taken to alter the compromise agreement so that the rate of return of the Potomac Electric Co. may be reduced from its present level of more than 10 per cent to 7¼ per cent.

Stating that the interveners in the packers' case contended the court had not the power to modify the decree it ordered in 1920 as a compromise agreement between the Federal Trade Commission and the meat packers, Justice Bailey said in his opinion he agreed with the Government, in that the court did have power to modify the decree.

The interveners had held the decree was final and could not be modified by the court "after the expiration of the term at which it was entered;" that it was entered by consent and "was a contract which the cour could not abrogate; that the provisions in the decree for modification could only apply when all parites to it joined in the application."

Counsel for the Potomac Electric Power Co. made similar arguments at the recent hearing on the consent decree, and William F. Ham, president of the power company, said in reply to a question by Mr. Roberts that his company had "property right" in the decree and that it could be altered only with its agreement.

Government Upheld.

"I agree with the Government's position on this point," Justice Bailey said, "for a decree of injunction differs from a judgment of law; and while it is a final adjudication of the rights and equities of the parties at the time it is entered, the remedy by injunction is subject to modification upon equitable consideration which may thereafter arise, due to subsequent changes in conditions."

In another paragraph, the card says that the decree is "to be taken as valid and binding" and the only ground for modification is "that conditions have so changed since its entry as to render it inequitable to further enforce certain of its provisions."

The opinion is regarded as giving the court authority to modify any decree it makes, with or without, the consent of one or both of the parties involved. Thus, it is believed, the District Supreme Court may on its own initiative call both the utilities commission and the power company before it and order certain adjustments in the consent decree.

The opinion also may have the effect of eliminating the necessity for conferences between the utilities commission and the power company counsel before seeking modification in court. Mr. Bride has admitted that such parleys may be held.

STORE'S HEAD HELD ON FRAUD CHARGES

J. C. Millar Accused of Using False Statement to Obtain Goods.

POSTAL OFFICERS HEARD

J. C. Millar, trading as the J. C. Millar Co., of Pennsylvania avenue near Fourth street northwest, was held for the grand jury's action under $5,000 bond yesterday on a charge of obtaining merchandise fraudulently from two score merchants through a false financial statement sent through the mails.

Fifteen witnesses produced by Assistant United States Attorney William A. Gallagher and Postoffice Inspector W. F. Chester required an entire day to present their testimony before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage. It was stated that Louis Stone and Nathan Lindenbaum, alleged confederates of Millar, are being held in Philadelphia for return here to answer similar charges.

According to Inspector Chester, Millar falsely represented that he possessed merchandise valued at $17,000, though investigation of his establishment revealed less than half that amount. Chester stated that, through misrepresentation, Millar had induced merchants to ship goods valued at more than $50,000. Government investigators testified that they have been unable to uncover evidence of any large sales of the merchandise, nor can they trace more than $40,000 worth Millar is said to have disposed of.

Containers of merchandise were introduced in evidence in an attempt to show that Millar had tried to give the impression that his store was well stocked. Supposedly full of standard merchandise, the containers were shown to hold only discarded remnants or practically worthless goods, Gallagher and Chester charged.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

JANUARY MOOD.

THIS is the time of year when I
From cold and sulsh would like to fly—
To get away from flu and grip
By motor, train or plane or ship;
I do not care much how I go
Provided I don't walk or row,
And when this feeling burns or smolders
I sit and read the ads and folders.

* * * *

There's fair Havana close and handy
With weather hot, and hotter brandy,
Where life is very antipurist
And bombs are dropped to please the tourist;
There's Trinidad and blue Bermuda
With girls in one-piece suits, or nuda;
Where no one's ever in a hurry
And traffic never knows a worry;
Where autos are a thing that's lacking
And necking's done in open hacking.

* * * *

There's Nassau, too, in the Bahamas
Where one can wilt in thin pajamas
And watch the airplanes day and night
Give bottled goods a nonstop flight;
And if I like to sail a week
There's Port au Spain and Martinique.

* * * *

AND nearer home is Biscayne Bay
Where I can find Miami gay;
Where fishing's good and sailing's better
And nights are made to charm the petter;
Where natives wear low, open collars
And love the tourist (for his dollars);
Where I can write "It's very hot"
On cards and mail 'em where it's not;
Where bankers stroll with manner solemn
And watch girls tan the spinal column;
Where ev'ry hut and beach pavilion
In '26 was worth a million—
And where some guy will always harp on
The time he nearly caught a tarpon.

* * * *

Or, if you're ritzy, just above it
You'll find Palm Beach and learn to love it,
Where with rich men you'll share the sun
And—if you're careful—pass as one;
Where ev'ry female in the water
Is some big magnate's wife or daughter;
Where you can have a sandwich nifty—
And get a check for seven-fifty;
Where all the folks who really matter
Can splash about and also spatter;
And where the waves seem awed and "frighty"
So close to folks so high and mighty.

* * * *

Then, too, there's white Daytona Beach
And Ormond where the tourists each
Consider it a treat to see
An awful golfer named John D.
And there's Augusta, staid and old—
It's not too hot and not too cold—
Where tourists for diversion itching
Make whoopee just by horseshoe pitching!

* * * *

Oh, great are the resorts of Florida—
Some cooler, others rather torrida.
But Southern "Cal" has places, too,
Where winter skies are ever blue,
And how my yen to see them smolders
As I peruse the ads and folders!

MORE TROUBLE.

PROF. WILLIAM F. OGBURN, of the University of Chicago, chairman of the Hoover Commission on Social Trends, says that education is making such strides that in a few years plumbers will read Aristotle. This makes the outlook pretty dark if you're delaying the matter of fixing that leak in the kitchen pipes.

* * * *

You can imagine a plumber apparently all ready to crawl under the sink and begin work, only to crawl out and send his helper back to the shop for all ten books of the Nicomachean Ethics.

* * * *

The best observation of the times comes from Squire Vermilion, of Oak Grove, Mo., who says, "As far as Hoover prosperity is concerned, I manage to get three meals a day in spite of it."

* * * *

A 13-YEAR-OLD grandson of Augustus A. Busch was kidnaped in St. Louis the other day. The story carried to a logical conclusion would have to include a note saying "We will release the boy when we get $50,000 or a can of real beer."

* * * *

Mussolini says he is for peace. Well, most people won't believe it until they see him smile in those news reels.

A Yale divinity student, in reply to the question, "What is the Apocalypse?" said, "a bridge." Correct, but where?

Retention Assured Of 2-Cent Postage

Kelly Asserts an Increase Urged by Brown Will Not Be Adopted.

(Associated Press.)

Letter writers were told yesterday that a 2-cent stamp will continue to carry their mail.

Representative Kelly, ranking Republican on the postoffice committee, said in the House that the 2½-cent proposed by Postmaster General Brown will not be adopted.

"As a service giving institution," Kelly said, "the postoffice is today the most efficient organization on earth. It has been built on the basis of low rates and large volume."

Increased volume and better morale of the workers, he concluded, "will do more to accomplish the end desired by the officials of the department than the recommendations they have made to Congress."

Diamond Stickpin Stolen.

Dim Light on License Plate Not Excuse for Police Shot

Holding that improper illumination of a license plate was not sufficient to justify firing a shot to stop the car, Judge J. Chew Sheriff yesterday dismissed charges against H. A. Moore, of Rock Creek Church road, in police court at Hyattsville.

Moore, who is 19 years old and a student at Greenbrier Military Academy, was driving with his father and several other lads when he was arrested by Sergt. H. G. Machen, of the county police, and Constable Andrew Gasch, who fired one shot in the air. The policemen said that they chased the Moore car for 2 miles on the Baltimore boulevard near Berwyn. They blew a police whistle and when the car did not stop the shot was fired.

Moore said he thought the whistle was blown by occupants of another car accompanying his machine. He and the policemen agreed that the Moore car was only making 30 miles an hour, and that the policemen were not in uniform. The youth said that he stopped immediately after hearing the shot.

Moore and his companions said that when the policemen first approached their car, they charged him with driving without a rear light. Learning that the light was on the car, they amended the charge. Constable Gasch said last night that the tag was bent so that not all the figures were visible, even with a strong light on the plate.

FEDERAL EMPLOYES' CHIEF CONFER HERE

Leaders From All Over Country Prepare for Congress Fight.

MEMBER DRIVE PRIZES

Leaders of Federal employes throughout the country gathered in the Labor Building yesterday to consider the condition of the state, so far as the employes were concerned, and girded their loins for the battle over the amounts proposed by President Hoover for increases in appropriations in various departments to provide less than one-third of the amount needed to bring under-average salaries up to the point specified by law.

The question of providing the increases recommended by the President still is a matter of debate and trade and political expediency among members of the House and the Senate. Coming from all sections of the Nation and representing thousands of employes in the various States the Council of the National Federation of Federal Employes is expected to make a careful survey of the voting by various members of Congress and pin down every member to a statement of his or her position on the matter.

None of this, however, got beyond the doors of the executive meeting of the council. Announcements of what the council had done were made by Luther C. Steward, president of the Federation. Mr. Steward said that the council had made awards for proficiency in the membership campaign just closed.

Two Washington locals were given gavels by the council. They were No. 260, of the Bureau of Standards, and No. 71, of Washington, the last embracing colored Government employes.

Cash prizes were awarded to individuals in various divisions who got the largest number of new members in the last year. Among District of Columbia locals first prize, $50, went to M. Dorothy Dick, Local, No. 2. Second prize went to Mrs. J. A. Thompson, Local, No. 2, $25; third, to Mrs. A. N. Kilmartin, Local, No. 261, $15, and fourth prize to Margarette E. Robbins, Local, No. 262, $10.

There were 12,876 new members added to the federation membership in the last nine months, reports to the council showed. In that period there were formed 30 new locals with a membership of 1,391, bringing the total membership to little less than 60,000, of whom about two-thirds are outside the District.

Members of the council were guests of the locals of the District at a reception held last night in the quarters at 714 Fourteenth street northwest. The council will continue its meetings today.

50,000 Damage Suit Is Filed After Crash

Frances C. Heil, of 2308 H street northwest, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court, seeking to recover $50,000 damages from the Capital Traction Co. and William Wooldridge, of 3406 N street northwest.

The plaintiff alleges injuries as a result of an accident last September 27, when an automobile in which she was riding was struck by a street car. The automobile, it is alleged, belonged to Wooldridge. Negligence on the part of both defendants is alleged. Attorney Henry I. Quinn appears for the plaintiff.

Whelan Ordered To Pay $23,000

Attorney Is Said to Have Embezzled Sum From His Client.

Robert E. J. Whelan, who recently was sentenced by Justice Peyton Gordon to serve seven years in jail on a charge of embezzlement, yesterday was ordered to pay Miss Annie Hurley, of Eyattsville, Md., $23,000 for his alleged peculations.

Testimony in the civil case was similar to that introduced in the criminal trial. He was accused of having taken certain stocks and sums from Miss Hurley to reinvest and had appropriated them to his own use.

Whelan is a member of the local bar and had offices in the Columbian Building in which also is the office of Whelan & O'Connell, attorneys. Harry Whelan, of the firm, is in no way connected with the other of that name, it was said.

Half of 1931 License Tags Have Been Issued

More than half of the estimatted District automobile owners had procured 1931 license tags when the office of collector of taxes closed yesterday afternoon, according to Wade S. Coombs, head of the License Bureau. Approximately 55,000 plates are now in the hands of motorists.

Because of the rapidity with which the License Bureau has issued the tags this year, no extension of time beyond January 17 is expected to be granted by the District Commissioners.

Billboard Measure Urged on Zihlman

Commissioners Request Him to Attempt to Speed Bill.

The District Commissioners yesterday forwarded a letter to Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, chairman of the District committee, urging him to put forth efforts to secure the passage of the bill to eliminate billboards from the District as amended. The measure passed the Senate on April 17 last and is now pending before the House committee.

The amendments, which were added upon the recommendations of Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, executive officer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and by the American Civic Association, provide for public hearings before the regulations are adopted and for the increase in the range of fines, now from $5 to $100.

One of the amendments also eliminates the control of real estate signs because they are already regulated by another law.

$75 Snare Drum Is Stolen.

Leon M. Farber, of F street near Fifth northwest, reported to police yesterday that a snare drum and case valued at $75 had been stolen from the City Club, G street near Thirteenth street northwest, since Tuesday.
